Truscott Defence Refuted

OTTAWA (CP) — The Crown produced two expert pathogists today, one from London and one from New York, who told the Supreme Court of Canada they believe 12-year-old Lynne Harper was sexually assaulted and strangled at the wooded spot where her body was found June 11, 1959.

Professor Keith Simpson, an Oxford lecturer and consultant to Scotland Yard, and Dr. Milton Helpern, chief medical examiner for New York City, based their opinions on an examination of photos and medical evidence at the trial of Steven Truscott, convicted of the slaying.

"There is nothing inconsistent in the evidence with death having taken place where this girl lay," Prof. Simpson said.

SAY BODY MOVED

The defence has produced experts who contend the Harper girl was attacked and slain elsewhere, then dragged to the spot where an RCAF search party found her near Clinton, Ont.

Dr. Helpern said: "I would say from the pictures of the body and the condition of the body that death occurred where the body was found."

He based this view on the presence of the girl's clothing at the scene and marks on her body that could be attributed to the rough ground. It was unlikely in a homicide that clothing would be picked up by the killer and carried to another spot if the body was moved by him.

Dr. Helpern also supported the Crown contention that stomach contents indicated death occurred within two hours after the girl's last meal.

"In my opinion, from the amount of food in the stomach, the fact that the body was of a healthy and energetic girl and that death was rapid . . . I would conclude that death occurred not more than two hours after the food was ingested," he said.

He added: "I think that is the rule in these cases."

A string of defence experts have attacked the two-hour theory and advanced arguments that death could have occurred several hours later—at a time when the Truscott boy was in his home.

DISAGREES ABOUT BODY

Questioned by Donald Scott, Welland Crown attorney who is special prosector at the hearing, Prof. Simpson also disagreed with earlier defence evidence that the girl's body had lain on its left side for some time after death and later was placed on its back, the position in which it was found by an RCAF search party.

He said there was "a very simple explanation" of the discoloration along the left side of the body which defence experts had interpreted as indicating the position after death.

He said the marks could have been caused by movement of the body after it was discovered and during the process of examination and of photography.

The London pathologist, a lecturer at Oxford and a veteran of more than 100,000 autopsies in 31 years, also challenged defence evidence that the girl could not have been sexually attacked where the body was found.

Defence experts had testified that the absence of semen in the immediate area of the body showed the attack had occurred elsewhere.

Prof. Simpson said he had

FIREMAN keeps watch on flames that still burned this morning, seven hours after blaze did $30,000 damage to a barn, animals and hay at Colquitz Prison Farm on Wilkinson Road. Firemen said the flames were impossible to extinguish and they concentrated on keeping it from spreading.

Arson Charge Laid After Fire at Jail

44 Pigs Roasted Alive

Saanich police have charged a 38-year-old man with arson in connection with a $30,000 blaze early today at Colquitz Prison Farm on Wilkinson Road.

Detective-Sergeant Robin Stewart said a suspect was questioned by detectives at the scene of the fire shortly after it was discovered at 1 this morning.

The man was questioned later at Saanich police station and formally charged around 10 o'clock. He was to appear in magistrate's court this afternoon.

44 PIGS KILLED

The fire killed 44 pedigreed pigs, consumed 200 tons of hay, and destroyed two barns. Damage is estimated to be at least $30,000.

The barn is about two blocks from the main jail.

The presence of the hay in the barn did not give firemen a chance. The hay was still burning at 8 this morning, seven hours after the fire was discovered.

Fire Chief Joseph Sutherland said his men were also hampered by having to lay 1,700 feet of hose to bring water to the fire.

By the time firemen arrived on the scene, on the prison property at the end of Roy Road, a large barn and an attached smaller barn were both "really going," according to Chief Sutherland.

The pigs were housed in the big barn. All were roasted alive with the exception of one sow that was saved.

Firemen brought in a bulldozer to knock down the adjacent barn and set up a fire break to keep the blaze from spreading to other farm buildings.

KY

Jealousies Threaten Split In Ky Cabinet

SAIGON (CP)—Regional jealousies flared in Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's cabinet today, threatening a split in the government just two weeks before Ky is to attend a summit conference at Manila.

Several ministers were reported to have resigned or on the verge of doing so.

The Associated Press said five civilian ministers, disgruntled at what they contend is anti-southern manoeuvring by government leaders from the northern provinces, sent a letter to Chief of State Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu saying they were on the verge of resigning, informed sources said.

Reuters news agency reported that usually well - informed sources in Saigon said seven cabinet members submitted their resignation.

Ky refused to accept the resignations of the seven ministers, all civilians, the sources said. Ky had met the seven ministers several times, Reuters said, and had appealed to them to stay in the cabinet for the sake of government unity.

Informed sources said the government crisis appeared timed to exert maximum political leverage on Ky since leaders of the military junta want to present a solid front of stable government in Manila.

OIL FEVER MOUNTS ON ISLAND

Drilling fever may hit the Maple Bay - Ladysmith areas as well as some adjoining islands as the provincial government offers almost 60,000 acres of Crown reserves for oil and natural gas exploration.

Robert Moss, deputy oil and natural gas commissioner, today said the reserved areas to be auctioned are "just north of this Maple Bay occurrence."

He was referring to last week's discovery by realtor Nat Staples of a flammable liquid in the bottom of a drainage ditch on his land which has aroused interest of two oil companies who sent investigators out from Alberta. (See story Page 25.)

Three exploration permits for parcels totalling 59,802 shoreline acres ranging from Maple Bay to Ladysmith and portions of Gabriola, Valdes, Thetis, Pylander, Galiano, Reid, Hall, Secretary and Salt Spring Islands are included in the auction list.

58 PARCELS

The list, totalling 640,460 acres in 58 parcels, will go up for sale Nov. 23 in the mines and petroleum resources department's third offering this year.

About 75 per cent of the Vancouver Island-Gulf Islands parcels is under water, Mr. Moss said.

"Our offering of these parcels is not in any way connected with (Mr. Staples') discovery," he said. "I want to make that clear.

"Our list was made and published at least two weeks ago while his discovery came only last week. It's just a coincidence."

Mr. Moss said it was difficult to assess how interested the oil industry was in any given area until "the money is laid on the line," because most companies try to avoid tipping their hands.

Ex Parte Injunctions Attacked by Liberals

McILRAITH
. . . discussion muted

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal policy conference today laid down a set of labor principles that included a call for the elimination of the ex parte injunction, a sore point with unions.

This form of injunction is granted by a judge to one party in a dispute without hearing the other side of the story. Unions object to its use by employers to limit picketing and halt strikes.

Such disputes, the policy said, should be shunted to a special government board to handle, rather than be subject to ex parte injunctions.

A task force was established to review labor law also was urged to consider legal methods to allow continuous collective bargaining during the life of a labor contract.

This was seen as a reflection of the Freedman report on railway run-throughs that recommended management negotiate technological charge during the life of a contract with the unions.

The industrial relations program, largely the work of John Turner, minister without portfolio, said government must provide protection for people disrupted by technological change and automation.

It said federal manpower policy objectives should include adult retraining and training and employer obligations to provide advance notice of plant shutdown or relocation.

Workers displaced through new technology should get relocation expenses. Consideration should be given to a royal commission on the status of women.

The program was rammed through by weary delegates in a post-midnight session, amid a number of complaints that labor was getting the short end of the stick at the three-day convention.

Bryce Mackasey, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, said he was ashamed the convention had devoted so little time to labor, "the backbone of the Liberal party."

Fear Leaks To Press

OTTAWA (CP) — Discussion of government policy in the Liberal caucus is muted becaue of a fear of leaks to the press, George McIlraith, government leader in the Commons, said today.

MPs do not feel free to express their full views on policy, Mr. McIlraith told a workshop discussion on Parliament at the party's national policy conference.

Cabinet ministers did not disclose fully the problems they face.

The workshop passed a resolution for a later full session of the conference urging that caucus proceedings remain "strictly secret so that the fullest type of disclosure of government policy can be made to caucus and thus give individual members the greatest possible influence in decision-making."

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israeli and Jordanian forces exchanged fire for 20 minutes today after an Israeli army patrol strayed into Jordan's territory during an early morning fog, an Israeli military spokesman announced.

One Israeli soldier was wounded.

'Landymore Swears Brief Was Altered'

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Terry Nugent told the Commons today he has a sworn affidavit by retired Rear-Admiral William Landymore saying Defence Minister Hellyer altered the admiral's prepared brief before it could be given to the Commons defence committee.

But Mr. Nugent's attempt to present a motion charging Mr. Hellyer with breach of Commons privileges for "tampering" with a witness before a Commons committee was disallowed by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

Gordon Churchill (PC — Winnipeg South Centre) said he plans to raise the matter later.

Mr. Nugent said Admiral Landymore went to Mr. Hellyer's office before his committee appearance and gave his brief orally. He was asked to leave a copy of the statement with the minister. The brief later was returned to the admiral with four pages deleted and two others substituted.

PROBERS URGE OTTAWA TO END CRITICISM

'Lift Veil of Secrecy on Campaign War Chests'

OTTAWA (CP) — The multi-million dollar campaign war chests of the federal political parties will be open to public view if the government adopts a mammoth election expenses report made public Tuesday.

The committee report, two years in preparation, recommends creation of an impartial body to check and recheck the parties' revenues and spending.

Candidates would be required to submit sworn statements detailing the names of donors and the amounts, while national parties would file statements about the totals received from business and other groups.

A proposed registrar of election and political finance would be empowered to investigate and launch court actions leading to stiff fines or imprisonment and ejection from Parliament for persons convicted of violations.

The committee, headed by Montreal lawyer Alphonse Barbeau with representation from three federal parties, was appointed in 1964 in response to criticism about present methods of financing campaigns.

The report was tabled in the Commons by State Secretary Judy LaMarsh.

At present the public learns little about the sources for the millions — the committee estimated the 1965 election cost the five federal parties about $16,000,000—that is raised for the country-wide campaigns.

And the history books are dotted with scandals where political contributions amounted to bribes for government favors.

The committee also recommends partial subsidization of candidates, expenses through grants, mailing privileges and more free-time broadcasting.

And further savings are aimed at in a recommendation to limit the most expensive part of campaigning — the purchase of advertising space and time—to the final four weeks of a campaign.

Central to the report is a recommendation that the existence of political parties be legally recognized by requiring them to register with the new registrar's office and to designate persons responsible for their financial affairs.

The committee recommends that the "doctrine of agency" be used so that an agent for a candidate or party is fully aware of all financial transactions and is responsible for their legality.

Besides receiving detailed financial reports from parties and candidates, the new registrar's office would receive statements from broadcasters and publishers about their revenues to enable a double check.

Candidates would have to send the registrar, within 30 days of an election, a sworn report giving the name and address of each donor and the amount of money.

They would have to submit vouchers for all expenditures above $10 along with the name and address of recipients. The goods or services received for the expenditures would have to be described.

National parties would be re-

THIS WORLD OF OURS

People and Things

NAKINA, Ont.—Picture in these days of soaring food prices a trackside supermarket with free meat for all.

Women wading waist-deep in wieners. Indians barbecuing a hind-quarter of beef while they picked out various other items. Sides of beef for the taking. Hundreds and hundreds of pounds of lunch meats and sausages and turkeys and hams as well.

It all came about, and in time for Thanksgiving dinner, as a result of a freight train derailment. Thirty-two cars went off the tracks Sept. 30 at Penequani, 55 miles west of here, and most of them were loaded with meat.

The CNR decided to destroy the meat because some of it was damaged. But before it was scheduled for burial in a near-by gravel pit, the railway told townspeople they could come and get it—all they wanted.

The result was the greatest Thanksgiving in the 43-year history of this northwestern Ontario railroading community, 200 miles north of Port Arthur.

Soon storage space had run out. In less than 24 hours the nearest community, Geraldton, had sold all its deep freezers and more were ordered from Winnipeg and Port Arthur.

"We've got so much meat now that we'll have to stuff turkeys with cooked ham," said one resident.

DETROIT—Leapin' Lena was buried in 1926 under an apple tree in Perry Andrew's backyard.

She was 15 at the time, and buried because no one would promise Andrews to treat her in the manner to which she was accustomed.

Leapin' Lena was a Model-T Ford.

Bill Morris, Andrews' son-in-law, helped with the funeral:

"The old man wanted to give me Lena just after I married his daughter. But I wanted to remodel her and make her sporty. He said he'd rather bury Lena than see her ruined."

So he did.

Now Morris is getting heady to exhume her.

Harvey Verstreet of the Detroit Historical Museum wants to dig Lena up and put her on display, rust permitting.

BILLINGHAM, Eng.—Officials of Britain's nationalized railways breathed a sigh of relief today after workmen discovered a missing refrigerated box car carrying £15,000 ($45,000) worth of coins.

The box car, normally used for carrying meat, was being used under a secret cover plan for transporting currency around Britain, where rail and banking officials have become extra-security conscious since the Great Train Robbery of 1963.

The box car was loaded with bags of silver coins three days ago and coupled to a freight train for a 40-mile trip from a bank in Sheffield to one in Bradford, in the north of England.

It then went astray—possibly because someone had slapped an "empty" label on the side of the car. It eventually was shunted onto a factory siding where workmen found it.

PATERSON, N.J. — Patients at the Mount Carmel Guild Social Service Centre, a rehabilitation hospital for alcoholics and drug addicts, from now on will go to the corner of Straight and Narrow Streets for treatment.

The change was asked by Msgr. William Wall, director of the centre, who wanted to remind patients to stay on the straight and narrow road to rehabilitation.

Water Study Urged Before Any Export

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada should refuse to export water to the United States until it completes an assessment of its own needs, delegates to a national Liberal party convention workshop decided Tuesday.

The recommendation was one of several passed by the workshop on resources. Others called for federal control over water pollution, a tightening of offshore fishing regulations and definition of policy for Northern Canada.

Delegates were divided on water export with one faction seeking to retain all Canada's water resources and another pressing for export.

Bruce Howard of the Penticton area, said Canada does not have a water surplus.

Joseph Coyle of Montreal said the export of water would improve Canada's economic position.

WANT ADVISORY BOARD

The 60 delegates also endorsed a recommendation that a joint federal-provincial advisory board be established to advise on water pollution control, fisheries and irrigation.

A recommendation favoring a national and international power grid was watered down to ask the government to stimulate the development of long-distance transmission lines.

Maritime delegates favored national and international power grids as a means of using the abundant supplies of coal in sections of the Maritime Provinces.

Delegates endorsed export of Canadian oil to expand production and improve the Canadian economy. They also called for an oil pipeline from Alberta to Montreal.

Maritime and British Columbia delegates won approval for a resolution asking that Canada's newly-adopted 12-mile fishing limit be strictly enforced, providing exclusive rights within this area to Canadians.

quired to report within 60 days of an election on the total amount of money received from private individuals, corporations, trade unions and associations and foreign sources, although they would not be required to name the individual donors.

WOULD SHOW SPENDING

Parties would also file a statement of spending showing how much was given to provincial organizations and candidates and the amount spent on advertising, leaders' travelling and other transportation costs, salaries and services.

Party leaders and other candidates and their agents would be subject to stiff penalties if the laws were infringed.

In all cases, convictions would throw them out of Parliament and bar them from running for seven years. When a party leader or his agent was convicted of breaching the act, the party or association would be subject to a fine of from $5,000 to $50,000.

The registrar would be empowered to enter the offices of parties to audit books.

The size or source of campaign contributions would not be restricted, but expenditures would.

A candidate would be allowed to spend only 10 cents per riding voter on print or broadcasting advertising and no other groups would be allowed to buy space or time for him.

PROHIBIT PAYMENTS

Payments to agent, scrutineers or persons driving voters to the polls would be prohibited and subject to severe penalties.

Both the CBC and private broadcasting would be required to provide six hours of free time to be allocated among the parties, with the registrar's office paying for 50 per cent of this time used in private broadcasting.

Parties would be prohibited from buying or using any additional time on radio or television.

Broadcasters and publishers would be prohibited from charging other than standard rates for political advertising during a campaign.

Public subsidies for candidates would take two forms:

—A candidate obtaining at least 15 per cent of the total vote would receive after the election two cents for every elector in the riding toward paying proven expenses in buying advertising space or time.

—Every candidate would be reimbursed for the postage costs of mailing one item of literature to every elector in his riding, providing the item weighed no more than two ounces for householder unaddressed mail or one ounce for first class letter mail.

To further aid the local candidate, the committee recommended that radio and television stations be encouraged to provide free time on an equitable basis among the candidates.

And it recommended a personal income tax credit for donations up to $300 by individuals to a candidate in an election year or to a party in any year.

The report says a 50-per-cent credit should be granted for $1-$20 contributions, 40 per cent for $21-$100 donations and 30 per cent for $101-$300 donations. clude a prohibition against pub-

Other recommendations inlishing the results of public opinion polls about probable election results during a campaign and a change in the minimum votes a candidate must obtain to have his $200 election deposit returned.

The committee said that instead of having to receive half the votes of the winning candidate to get his money back, the candidate should only have to poll 12½ per cent of the votes cast in his riding.

Political affiliations would be written beside the candidates names on ballots and a new "you-vote-at" card would be sent to all voters. This would replace the mailing of preliminary lists of electors now sent only to urban voters.

Besides Mr. Barbeau, the committee was composed of M. J. Coldwell, former national leader of the CCF party, Gordon F. Dryden, secretary-treasurer of the Liberal Federation of Canada, Arthur R. Smith, former Conservative MP for Calgary South and Dr. Norman Ward, political science professor at the University of Saskatchewan.

handled many cases involving rape before death. In some of them, seminal fluid had been located around the body. But in many others it was absent.

COULD BE OTHERWISE

"I would certainly not regard absence as evidence that sexual intercourse did not take place," he told Mr. Scott.

Referring to marks on the body shown in photographs, he said "collectively, they are very much like the kind of marks I would expect to see if the body were pressed or held down on this type of undergrowth." This would be particularly true of a body in which there was movement.

The defence experts had interpreted the marks as proof the body had been dragged to the spot after death.

Prof. Simpson said he was surprised in the manner that Dr. Charles Petty of Baltimore had based his findings on the presence of rigor mortis in the girl's body.

WERE WORTHLESS

He said the arched back, one of the symptoms used by Dr. Petty, was normal in both live and dead bodies and was of no value in determining the presence or the degree of rigor mortis. The position of one finger of the girl's hand probably was caused by it being held for a police photograph and also was of no help in establishing rigor mortis.

He repeated that he would have come to the same conclusions as had Crown doctors who performed the autopsy — that the girl died between 7 p.m. and 7:45 p.m. June 9, 1959.

He also said that the changes after death observed in the body were consistent with the time factor. Defence doctors have said the changes indicated a time of death several hours after that estimated by the Crown.

Prof. Simpson also upheld the opinion of Crown doctors that wounds on Truscott's penis could have been the result of forcible sexual intercourse.

He said that after hearing Truscott's own evidence and reading the trial evidence he concluded that Truscott's penis, already sore, could have been further injured in a sexual assault.

Exponent Of LSD Free Again

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Timothy Leary is free on his own recognizance following his arrest on a charge of violating a customs regulation on a trip to Canada.

Federal officers arrested him Tuesday at La Guardia Airport. They said he went to Canada without notifying customs that he had a narcotics conviction, a notification required by federal law.

Leary appeared on a television show in Toronto Monday night.

The 45-year-old former Harvard lecturer is free on $2,500 bail while appealing a federal conviction in Texas for possession of untaxed marijuana. He was sentenced to 30 years in prison and a $30,000 fine.

Leary recently announced he is founding what he calls a new "religion" based on the use of LSD and other hallucinatory drugs as "sacraments." However, he said he will not advocate use of the drugs until he obtains a court order making them legal for religious purposes.

When he was arraigned before U.S. commissioner Max Schiffman in Brooklyn on the customs violation he gave Millbrook, N.Y., as his address.

Schiffman said Leary could continue his travels for lectures and appearances, provided he notifies the U.S. attorney's office of his plans.

Former 'Exec' Takes Command Of HMCS Fraser

New captain of the recently converted helicopter-destroyer, HMCS Fraser, will be Cmdr. John F. Watson, of Victoria.

Cmdr. Watson was the Fraser's executive officer from 1962 to 1964.

The Fraser will operate from Halifax along with her six sister ships following her commissioning Saturday.

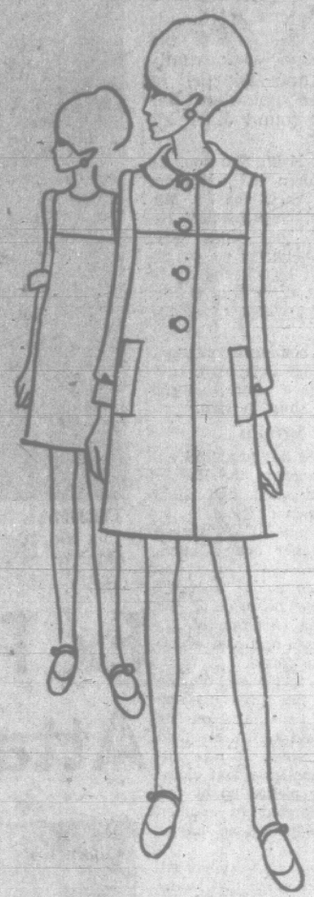

The conversion at Canadian Vickers Ltd., Montreal, included installation of a hangar, a helicopter landing platform, variable depth sonar and improvements to her anti-submarine system.

Grits Heal Breach on Economics

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Liberal party Tuesday night handed Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp resounding support for a policy to promote greater Canadian industrial ownership without penalizing foreign investors.

Region by region, and faction by faction the Liberals closed ranks to conclude their debate on economic nationalism with a dramatic expression of party unity.

A key figure in this feast of unanimity was former finance minister Walter Gordon, a long-time crusader for restrictions to reverse the trend of foreign domination of Canadian resources and industry.

Gordon and Sharp took the spotlight at the national Liberal convention to publicly reconcile the breach which has divided segments of the party for months.

Between them was a determined and highly organized band of western leaders intent on resolving the need for a capital without any suggestion of Gordon's penalties for foreign investors.

The debate on economic growth was easily one of the most crucial of the convention.

The individual participation of both Sharp and Gordon — not once but twice in the same day — was indication of how closely the outcome was tied to government interests.

BOTH CLAIM VICTORY

Final victory was claimed on all sides, with Gordon smiling that he had got 90 per cent of what he wanted, and the Sharp supporters, also beaming, insisting they had barely given an inch and that Gordon had caved in.

It was a somewhat bemused but enthused convention which gave blanket endorsation to a special resolution worked out by both sides after a private meeting.

The convention resolved that "we continue to welcome inflows of international investment capital and, without penalizing other forms of investment, provide encouragement for a greater percentage of this international investment in bonds and other fixed term securities;

"And that government policy should encourage the association of Canadian equity with international equity investment."

The resolution was moved by one of Gordon's western critics, British Columbia Liberal Leader Ray Perrault, and seconded by one of Gordon's supporters, Ontario Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson.

The key difference between similar resolutions which Gordon was promoting and Sharp's firm policy statements lay in what delegates considered the "negative or positive" approach to foreign investment.

Sharp stressed the need to "encourage" greater Canadian ownership through incentives, but firmly rejected the idea of any penalties against outsiders who were investing their money in Canadian development.

Gordon, however, has continuously underlined the need to take action to reverse the trend of outside investment through specific fiscal restrictions.

He argued that Sharp's approach was not contrary to his, because one man's incentive is another man's penalty.

"We have resisted the temptation to divide on regional grounds or on purported individual disagreements," he told the meeting when the resolution was introduced.

"I am delighted that no division was allowed to develop," Gordon said.

"We Liberals are now on record as recognizing the deep concern of Canadians that the sovereignty and independence of the country must be safeguarded."

A loud ovation greeted Sharp who followed Gordon as the last speaker in the debate.

"Nowhere is there any evidence of narrow nationalism or restrictiveness," the finance minister said, adding that Canada could proceed with confidence to play its part in the international community.

"I believe that we are a united party in this issue and we have all unanimously confirmed our determination to make this country prosperous, strong and independent," Sharp concluded.

Delegates stood to cheer him for the second time in the day.

The debate originally started with a lengthy resolution by Donald Macdonald of Toronto, parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Paul Martin.

It was completely supported by Gordon.

One of its chief objectives was to see that the proportion of foreign ownership and control of Canadian industry and resources was reduced to not more than one-third in the next 25 years.

This concept did not appear at all in the final resolutions.

Most of the other portions of the Macdonad resolution were adopted in bits and pieces by the delegates, but they always contained a subtle word change produced by the Sharp supporters.

Instead of "reversing" the growing foreign ownership, they ended up "encouraging" Canadian ownership.

Protest Fails To Stall Plan For Education

OTTAWA (CP) — Vehement Quebec protests, backed by an eloquent plea by Walter Gordon, failed Tuesday night to divert the Liberal party policy conference from endorsing universal accessibility to all levels of education.

A plenary session of the policy meeting heard repeated demands from Quebec delegates that the subject of education be recognized as exclusively provincial and, therefore, outside the federal government's concern.

Mr. Gordon, former federal finance minister, pleaded with delegates who supported the resolution "not to push your point of view beyond what is acceptable to the Quebec Liberals."

"For the love of Heaven, let's remember that some of our fellow Canadians are very sensitive on this subject and let's take a second thought."

Tony Pearson, president of the Canadian University Liberal Federation, said no Liberal can on any grounds avoid declaring himself publicly in favor in principle to the elimination of all social and financial barriers to education.

BASIC PRINCIPLE

This surely is a fundamental principle of Liberalism and the resolution dealt only with the principles and not the implementation of them, he added.

A series of Quebec delegates tried unsuccessfully to have the whole question referred to a study group on federalism or to have all the education resolutions tabled.

Gerald L. Ohlsen, University of Alberta delegate, warned that if the education resolution was defeated the Liberal party would lose the support of young people who soon would be in the majority of voters.

An education workshop earlier, over similar objections from Quebec delegates, approved a resolution to create a federal secretariat of education.

The secretariat would "afford research, leadership and co-ordination at all levels." The motion said the concept should be referred to a federal-provincial conference for study.

NOT ILLEGAL

Jean-Pierre Goyer Montreal-Dollard said the secretariat would be illegal. The British North America Act gives education powers exclusively to the provinces.

After wrangling over the secretariat about 45 minutes, the 150 delegates approved, almost without debate, a motion for massive federal funds to support education at all levels, distributed on the principle of equalization.

They also supported a motion to establish a royal commission to study "education, leisure and technology" in co-operation with the provinces.

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Johnson has signed a $545.5 million Child Nutrition Act extending for four years the school milk program and launching a plan to provide school breakfasts for needy children.

Suddenly I Lost My Memory!

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new book, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. Tax Control Still Needed

OPPOSITION IS GROWING TO tax increases expected to be brought in soon by Finance Minister Sharp in a "baby budget." Several economists have professed to see a recession on the horizon and cite this as a more severe danger to the economy than inflation. Increasing taxes now, they say, would have the effect of sharpening the recession whereas leaving things as they are would result in a natural slowing of the boom which in turn would take care of inflationary pressures.

Unfortunately for this theory the available statistics don't back it up. There has been a slowdown from the breakneck and unsustainable pace of expansion earlier this year. In July the index of industrial production declined fractionally but this was due to factors such as strikes in the mining industry, an earlier-than-usual auto model changeover as well as summer vacation slowdowns in many industries. Despite the drop-off, however, the index at the end of July was still nine per cent above the previous year.

Except for a few scattered industries there have been no reports of slackening demand in the last few months and, indeed, in most areas the pressure on labor and materials is still strong. Where there have been cutbacks—in the forest industries, for instance—they have been due to special circumstances not directly related to the general Canadian economic scene.

Meanwhile, with no significant decline in industrial expansion, the consumer price index has continued to rise, showing that the pressure on prices has not decreased. At the same time there has been no let-up in the demand for money to finance capital expansion even at the extremely high interest rates now prevailing.

While the indications are that inflation is more to be feared than recession — and particularly since inflation robs Canada of its all-important ability to be competitive in world markets — the need for a further touch on the brake still exists and it will have to be applied through taxation. There is no room left for further tightening of the money supply. Demand will have to be slowed more directly until there are signs that the shortages of skilled labor and materials are easing and that prices are becoming stable.

Leader on a Limb

THE DECISION OF THE LIBeral convention to take a secret vote at post-election meetings in order to determine whether a leadership ballot should be held within the following year, may have some points in its favor as regards internal party interests. But it ignores the interests of the nation whose leadership might be suddenly changed.

When a leader takes his group into office it is because enough of the country's voters favor his party's policies, as epitomized in his leadership, to entrust the nation's affairs to him. It raises a moral issue if the party, having achieved governmental power, should then call for an immediate leadership vote which conceivably could place at the head of the government someone who differed with the previous prime minister on certain essential matters of policy.

The party would then be in the position of having got into office on one line of policy and immediately put the government of the country in the hands of a man who held to a different line of thinking. It is true, of course, that the party would be likely to maintain its earlier policy line, but the personal powers of a prime minister under our system are very great. The country could have voted for one man and got another.

It should not be forgotten that a prime minister is the leader of the nation as well as of his political party. A candidate would be handicapped in an election campaign if his opponents could claim that even if elected he might soon be ousted by internal party action.

If the measure were intended to apply only in cases in which the Liberals lost an election the arguments against it would not be so strong. But the resolution as adopted does not make this distinction. A political party can at any time call a convention and remove its leader — the new device appears merely to encourage a rupture by urging dissidents to stage their revolt. The net effect can only be to weaken the leader without giving the party any corresponding new strength.

A Shocking Weekend Toll

THIS COMMUNITY, WITH others on the island, has been deeply shocked by the violent tragedy which claimed five lives in the highway crash at the Shawnigan Cut-off Saturday night.

This is a section of the Island Highway where several other accidents have occurred — although none with so heavy a toll as at the Thanksgiving weekend. The location is hazardous because of the turn-off which draws lake-bound traffic left across the lane carrying cars south toward Victoria, downhill and frequently at high speeds. A car at the cut-off entry may have to wait in the centre lane. Unless some improved engineering can reduce risks there, a speed limit may have to be imposed on the hill to minimize the hazard to a point where drivers can bring their cars to a quick stop if necessary.

The accident on the Island highway was one of the worst, but not the worst, in Canada during the holiday weekend—a weekend which has recorded a death toll higher than any on record in this country for a corresponding period.

That record spells out a clear message. We in Canada — and the same can be said of other countries — must do more to determine the basic causes of highway accidents and from that information take the proper steps to reduce traffic deaths.

It Needn't Be Made of Wood

IN RECENT YEARS THE LUMber industry has been told repeatedly that it holds no monopoly on materials that can be used in home construction and has been advised to recognize the competition provided by other sources of supply. In particular the caution to the woods industry has emphasized the importance of competitiveness in prices.

The point is brought home again in a short newspaper feature from Duncan—the heart of Vancouver Island's timber industry—describing the home a resident has constructed from concrete blocks.

By imaginative planning the owner has a design he likes, certain benefits including resistance to the weather and to rot, and at a price which he considers equivalent to what a home built from lumber would have cost him.

The contractor has offered the opinion that "Wood is pricing itself out of the market and masonry is taking over."

The opinion of one masonry contractor does not necessarily prove a trend. But when masonry construction can invade the timberlands and provide competition on lumber's home grounds, the woods industries have cause to review their position and practices.

"The dove is too tough and the vegetable is overdone . . ."

FROM OTTAWA — By MAURICE WESTERN

Quebec's Recalcitrance Is for the Birds

EVER since the change of government in Quebec there have been intimations that Mr. Johnson, though determined to adopt a strongly nationalist line on major federal-provincial issues, had no intention of resorting to the pin-pricking which caused so much ill-feeling in the recent past. This approach has undoubtedly won for the new premier a considerable measure of goodwill. It is surprising that the Quebec government would risk this credit by provoking a new and rather petty controversy over migratory bird-hunting permits.

Western

These permits were introduced, not as a revenue measure, but as a means of checking the annual harvest of game birds in the interests of conservation. They were not a sudden innovation but were thoroughly discussed by the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers.

Three points are to be noted. In the first place there is ample authority for the permits in the Migratory Birds Convention Act, now almost half a century old. Thus Section 4 (1) reads: "The Governor in Council may make such regulations as are deemed expedient to protect the migratory game . . ." Such regulations may provide, among other things, "(d) for the granting of permits to kill or take migratory game . . ." or "(g) for any other purpose that may be deemed expedient for carrying out the intentions of this Act and the said Convention, whether such other regulations are of the kind enumerated in the section or not."

There is obviously nothing restrictive about this language. It is further provided in section 5 that the minister "may appoint game officers for carrying out the Act and the regulations and may authorize such officers to exercise the powers of a justice of the peace or the powers of a police constable; all members of the RCMP are, for the purposes of the Act, ex officio game officers."

Validity Upheld

The second point is that the Supreme Court of Canada only recently upheld the Act as a valid statute of Parliament.

If it is not assailable on constitutional grounds it is even less so on grounds of common sense. Game birds do not respect provincial boundaries and we cannot have a serious conservation program unless the federal government takes the lead.

The third point is that federal-provincial co-operation has been the rule for a great many years in this field. By virtue of a long-standing agreement, provincial game officers exercise the necessary authority under the Migratory Birds Convention Act. No great added burden has been cast upon them since they can presumably check, at one and the same time, on provincial licences and federal permits.

Surprisingly, Mr. Gabriel Loubier, Quebec minister of tourism, hunting and fishing, has now taken the position that his province will not co-operate unless the federal government enters into a special agreement with Quebec on the subject. "Our department," he has announced, "cannot but disregard the new federal permit until an agreement has been concluded. We have informed our game wardens accordingly."

Even more surprising is the fact that he waited until the very eve of the hunting season before serving notice of non-co-operation on Mr. Laing, the federal minister.

Non-co-operation is not synonymous with non-enforcement. Mr. Laing has pointedly observed that "the law must be respected and is being respected by the hunters concerned. The RCMP will continue to enforce all aspects of the Migratory Bird Regulations throughout Canada." But Mr. Loubier has obviously made enforcement a good deal more difficult.

Pin-prick

There has apparently been no suggestion that Quebec regards the Act as an unwarranted invasion of her own jurisdiction. Mr. Loubier's position seems to be that there was inadequate consultation. One would assume, however, that there are other and more reasonable ways of bringing a grievance to the attention of the central government than abrupt notice at the last moment that Quebec will have no part in the scheme.

This is exactly the sort of harassment by pin pricks which caused so much irritation in Mr. Lesage's day and which, it was generally believed, Mr. Johnson hoped to avoid. It is possible that the new premier, who faces serious and pressing financial problems, has paid little attention to the activities of his colleague. If so, he would be well advised to rectify matters because it appears unlikely that many people, inside or outside Quebec, will be much impressed by a quarrel with Ottawa over so unlikely an issue as duck stamps.

Too Canadien

Ottawa Le Droit

French-speaking Canadians should oppose with all their strength the election of Jean Marchand as leader of the federal Liberal party . . .

Two or three times since his entry into politics, Mr. Marchand, as we know, has heard himself proclaimed successor to the present prime minister, Mr. Pearson, as leader of the Liberal party. . . . But for their own security, French-speaking Canadians should oppose the choice of one of their own as successor.

History has proven that under French-language prime ministers, French-speaking Canadians made no progress. It has even happened that they lost ground.

With all due respect to Mr. Louis St. Laurent, who was and remains a great Canadian, what progress did French Canada make under his administration?

To Sir Wilfrid Laurier, great man that he was, we owe the definite loss of French rights in Manitoba as well as the loss of Catholic schools in that province. To the same Laurier, we owe one of the great Anglo-French quarrels in Canada —over participation in imperial wars following the sending of an expeditionary force to South Africa without the approval of Parliament.

Mr. Jean Marchand or any other French-speaking Canadian undoubtedly would not repeat the errors of Laurier, but through fear of being accused of favoring "his own," he probably would be as inert as Mr. St. Laurent as far as French-speaking Canadians are concerned.

Psychologically, it would have been impossible for a French-speaking prime minister to have appointed a French-speaking Canadian as governor-general as Mr. Diefenbaker did, and it would have been equally impossible for him to give Canada a distinctive flag as Mr. Pearson did.

Because French-speaking Canadians still have a great deal to gain in this country which should be theirs from one ocean to the other, they will make gains only under an English-language prime minister who, although hostile, will feel obligated to a certain amount of "fair play" each passing day.

FROM HONG KONG — By JOSEPH ALSOP

Mao Fears the Historic Chinese Rhythm

IN the long, majestic Chinese story—the most impressive history of any race on earth to date — there are two repeating rhythms. One is the relatively short, dynastic rhythm of centralization and disintegration, strength and weakness. Most of the prevailing Western misconceptions about China derive from the simple fact that Westerners' first large-scale contacts with the Chinese began in the nineteenth century. This was a characteristic period of weakness and disintegration, of which China has experienced thirteen, all told, in the last three and a half millennia.

Alsop

But the alternating periods of strength and centralization are in fact even more characteristic and have usually been much longer-enduring.

The other Chinese historic rhythm is far greater in span and very much more mysterious. So far as one can judge, the Chinese have a way of making a brand new start at very long intervals. The new system that the new start provides then very gradually deteriorates, becoming more and more obsolescent, century by century, with a vast resulting accumulation of social debris and inefficiency.

Whereupon, what amounts to a revolutionary regime makes still another brand new start, clearing all the debris, and erecting an entirely novel structure of state power. In the era of fully recorded history, there have been three new starts, when the Chinese Empire was founded by the Ch'ins in the third century, B.C., when Chinese feudalism was swept away by the Suei in the sixth century, A.D.; and when the Communists finally triumphed nearly two decades ago.

Mao Tse-tung has repeatedly shown that he all too vividly remembers an ominous fact about the other great innovating dynasties. In brief, they have been by far the most short-lived of China's really strong governments, enduring less than a generation.

The burdens they have imposed have been too heavy. The wrenches they have inflicted have been too painful. They have been, at bottom, too un-Chinese. Their founders have inspired great awe, and have died unchallenged. But their second emperors have been, at one instant, the most powerful rulers on the face of the earth; and the next instant, they have been swept into the discard by internal upheavals, which have changed the dynasty without reversing the new start.

This is precisely the result that Mao obviously fears today. This is what his "great cultural revolution" is intended to forestall. The question, the really pressing question, is therefore whether Mao's designated second emperor, Lin Piao, has in store the same grim fate that befell the second Ch'in and the second Suei emperors.

No one can answer the question with absolute certainty, of course. But it must be said that the odds favoring such an outcome are now vastly heavier than anyone could have supposed a few months ago. The reasons are obvious.

First, the present convulsion in China would not be taking place, if thorough disaffection had not been enormously more widespread in China than anyone had dared to imagine. Clearly this disaffection has invaded the party, the army, and the other organs of Chinese state power. The reason that Mao and Lin are using the hastily improvised Red Guards to attack the entire power structure is that they have reason to regard the power structure itself as dangerously unreliable.

Attack May Fail

Second, it is entirely possible that the attack may be defeated, for the resistance to the Red Guards is by no means broken. There are ominous signs that this resistance is moving towards the centre, into Peking itself.

Third, even if the purge is successful, and Lin Piao thus consolidates his authority as the new master of China in all but name, the sources of disaffection will remain. Furthermore, the whole structure of state power will be horribly weakened by the attack on it. Thus a weaker power structure will confront continuing disaffection. In itself, this is a recipe for one of those vast, mysterious upheavals, like spontaneous combustion in a haybarn, of which China has always had the secret. And an immediate upheaval is likely, if the peasants' private plots are attacked.

These are not necessarily optimistic statements. The likelihood of upheaval does not even imply the end of Chinese Communism, at least in name. If the past is any guide, the successor regime will be characterized by a radically altered, immensely more pragmatic and successful system, which will probably still be called Communist. Such a new regime will also make China a truly great power, with the capability of playing true great power politics — the very capability that Mao's crippled, half-lunatic China so obviously lacks.

But it is still important to note that sane national policy must now be based on the possibility or probability of an extremely radical change in China at a fairly early date.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Back Looking

From the Times of Oct. 12, 1906:

"I would rather be in a leper ward than in one containing a case of common influenza. I can become infected with the latter, not the former." This remark was made by Dr. F. Montizambert, director-general of public health for the Dominion at the Driard Hotel this morning.

The doctor was here to examine the facilities and the patients of the lazaretto on Darcy Island. He said that there were no plans afoot to move the island's lepers from the island to Albert Head, adding that even if such were the case, the disease was not ordinarily communicable.

Emotional Transformation

In last week's Daily Times there was an article in reference to the emotion shown at the Billy Graham meetings which were held in London, England. And that His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury had condemned it.

I feel sure that the Bible is the best authority on this matter. In the second chapter of the Acts of the Apostles we read that on the day of Pentecost that tremendous emotion gripped those men who on that day were suddenly transformed from the natural man to the spiritual. We have to experience a change before we can explain to others what it's all about.—J. Borradaile, 1052 Topaz.

Brothers' Helpers

At a time when Canadians are ever on the march for nationalism — trying to create an identity of their own, an atmosphere of having a fair and judicial voice heard in regard to world affairs — I am distressed to hear (via the press) so many of our local "voices" saying, in effect, "Don't count on me for help, because my neighbor might not approve of the project, and therefore I am afraid to stand up and be counted" on the current proposed Half Way House for this area.

Is this not a time in our history that calls for fearless, positive-thinking, and action-minded public officials? Certainly by now everyone must agree that we are indeed our brother's keeper; therefore, all citizens are involved with all of society's problems.

Can't we see some "go-ahead" and "let's try" attitudes somewhere in Victoria?—(Mrs.) C. Covin.

Late Booze Buying

"Bottlenecked" was Douglas Street and Humboldt Saturday night until midnight.

Why does our temperance government allow liquor stores to do business when other stores are closed and why do the drinkers leave their supplies to the last minute?

Orders of merit from Bavaria do not provide law and order in Victoria. Mr. Bennett and Mr. Bonner should take early steps to put the liquor business on a sensible and decent basis.—A. Carolyn Bayfield.

Centres for Teen Leisure

In the last few years I have been very much interested in the young people of the community, who; through broken or indifferent homes, seem to have nothing to do with their evenings or weekends. They don't have much, if any, money to spend.

Why couldn't the school auditoriums or rooms be used for simple inexpensive recreation? Surely it would be cheaper than hiring more policemen or putting young people in industrial homes. They need more supervision. Are there any social workers available in the evenings or on weekends to give young people or parents advice or are there only policemen to call in difficulties?—"Teenager's Mother."

MINISTERIAL POWERS

I think a minister in fact exercises as much power as he deserves. In other words he has to exert his personality in order to exercise it. There are many limitations and checks upon his power, but if he is a good minister he will use the originality and drive he possesses in order to carry through his policies.

—Quinton Hogg, a former British Conservative cabinet minister.

Ceylon Disillusioned By the Wealthy Nations

COLOMBO — Ceylon is a sad and disillisioned island. It has an economic crises caused mainly by world over-production of tea, which Ceylon sometimes calls its "green gold."

The disillusion is with the behavior of the rich nations and may turn out to be a more wounding experience than current economic discomforts.

The island of dusky leaves has been in economic trouble for years, but in the past few months it has lost nearly $18 million by way of foreign exchange because of falling prices for tea and rubber, its two biggest earners of foreign exchange.

High Grown

Ceylon's quality tea — the so-called high-grown tea, most of it British owned — has not been seriously affected. But mid-country and low-grown teas, almost entirely Ceylon-owned, and bought abroad for blending, have been hit so hard that scores of smaller factories have closed down and thousands of workers have suffered.

There are enough buyers for all the tea in the world. The trouble starts — and this is where Ceylon's disillusion has begun — when buying nations begin to exercise preferences guided by hard business principles and other mixed motives.

At present, for example when Britain is not seeking the best quality tea, she seems to prefer to buy the new African teas (Africa, no doubt, has easier exchange regulations), and the "devalued" Indian teas.

Britain's control over Ceylon tea extends to buying for the European continental market as well, much of the tea trade being through British firms, and this makes Ceylon's economy even more dependent on the goodwill of Western bloc buyers.

Until recently Ceylon had markets in the Middle East and with Communist countries, but since Ceylon buys little of their produce, preferring to buy from Britain, none of these countries is now willing to buy tea from Ceylon. Bilateral trade agreements with these countries have stagnated. The Soviet Union pulled out of the Ceylon market in May this year and now favors the Cochin market. The United Arab Republic had been out of the market since last August, making a reluctant return recently; but only Iraq in the Middle East still buys substantially from Ceylon.

Reds Pulled Out

The pulling out of the Communist and Middle East countries began about 18 months ago when Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike, then the world's only woman prime minister, and her coalition of leftists, fell from power.

Many Ceylonese naively assumed that the West would now find it politically expedient to patronize a country which they would feel had been "saved for democracy" by the election victory of the Nationalists led by Mr. David Senanayake.

It was hoped that the West would now pour in assistance to ease the country's economic woes. But although World Bank teams came and went and wrote reports, the help did not arrive on the hoped-for scale. Mr. Senanayake's Government toed a strictly neutral line, and the Ceylonese began to feel that help from the United States, for example, would have been readier and greater if only Ceylon had been in a strategic place for the containment of Communism.

More Troubles

Instead Ceylon feels that the United States had even added to the country's troubles by increasing synthetic rubber production and at the same time releasing a substantial quantity of real rubber from its stockpile. These two factors, together with the increase in Britain's Bank Rate lie behind Ceylon's rubber crises.

This crisis may ebb when American stockpile releases cease and through close collaboration between the Ceylon and Singapore rubber markets. But the tea crises seems likely to continue and worsen unless the powerful nations of the West give more aid, or — and which would be even more welcome — adopt trade policies that allow countries like Ceylon to help themselves by paying their own way.

Supplies of Food Aren't Keeping Pace With Needs of World

By DON ROBINSON
The Washington Post

BALTIMORE — A U.S. department of agriculture economist has presented a dour assessment of the world's race between food and people.

Speaking at a symposium in connection with the 50th anniversary of the John Hopkins University school of hygeine and public health, Lester Brown told public health administrators that keeping food supplies equal to exploding populations is "one of the most nearly insoluble problems the world has ever faced."

He presented these facts:

● Thirty years ago, the less developed nations were food exporters; those nations last year imported nearly 31 million tons of food. "It is very clear that the less developed world is losing the capacity to feed itself, at an accelerating rate."

● World food consumption has exceeded production for the past six years. The deficit has been made up largely from U.S. surpluses, which no longer exist.

● Three of the four most populous nations of the world are now food importers. China, India and the Soviet Union contain 40 per cent of the world's population.

The young economist, who used to produce 750 tons of tomatoes a year on his own farm, said that although great expansion of food production is technically possible, prospects for realizing the potential are limited by economic, social and political inhibitions.

For example, food prices are kept so low in less developed countries that farmers find it unprofitable to use fertilizer and the latest technology. To change that, governments would have to defy political pressures from majority urban populations that want low prices.

Brown said a solution to the food-population problem in less developed countries would require programs of "family planning on a crash basis."

THE GALLUP POLL

Pearson 'Indecisive' Many Canadians Believe

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Having established, in a previous poll, that 10% of the people in Canada say their opinion of Prime Minister Pearson has gone up and 35% say it has gone down, Gallup Poll interviewers then asked these respondents to explain why their opinions had changed.

Among those who feel a higher regard for Mr. Pearson, the outstanding reason is a sort of boomerang against the Opposition . . . "He gets things done, despite the Opposition."

Other reasons for an improved opinion of the prime minister: Improvement in trade and less unemployment . . . A good leader, doing the best he can . . . Respect for his integrity.

Those who say their opinion of Mr. Pearson has gone down put forth a multitude of reasons, in the following order:

Poor government, too indecisive, too many blunders . . . Not doing enough, not keeping election promises . . . No good as a leader, weak, waffles . . . Mishandles strikes . . . Too old . . . Too many scandals, Munsinger, Rivard . . . Not handling inflation properly, high cost of living.

Among "other," lesser reasons given for Mr. Pearson's drop in public esteem:

Caters to French Canada . . . Allows petty issues to take time from national business . . . Lost respect of people . . . Don't like him . . . Taxes too high . . . Too influenced by United States . . . Better as a diplomat than a prime minister.

'Everybody's Doing It' And Prices Go Up, Up, Up

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — Taxicab rates in Ottawa are going up, and the explanation of one cab owner is illuminating.

"Everybody else is doing it," he said.

The size of the hike, 33 per cent, is also significant. It's in the magic range set by the longshoremen and the seaway workers, and aimed at by the postal and rail workers.

Waring

If "everybody is doing it," if everybody gets a third more money for the same amount of work and production, then obviously prices would have to go up. We might have to devalue our dollar to perhaps 75 U.S. cents to keep our foreign markets. This would skyrocket our international payments deficit and the prices we would have to pay for grapefruit, car parts and myriad other imports that figure in our cost of living.

Then everybody would start pushing for another wage increase.

The government, of course, "should do something."

One thing it is doing is talking about what wage guidelines should be, but without actually drawing guidelines. Industry Minister Drury says wage and price increases should not exceed three per cent, in line with increasing production. Finance Minister Sharp says four to five per cent. Then he acquiesced to a military pay increase averaging 9.8 per cent.

Mr. Sharp also plans to ask Parliament to increase taxes. This is a classic antidote for inflation, but unless it is accompanied by wage and price restraint, control or freeze, it likely will cause workers to demand even higher wages, and businessmen to raise prices further.

Prime Minister Pearson told a press conference last week that the government could not take action comparable to the British freeze on prices and wages. Saying first that the situation in the U.K "is very different from ours," he then explained that a British-type freeze "would be constitutionally impossible . . . in Canada, except by unanimous agreement of the provinces or by constitutional amendment or wartime emergency."

★ ★ ★

That is essentially correct. The BNA Act is a straitjacket that prevents action by Parliament except in what the courts have loosely defined as an emergency. Otherwise only the provinces can impose price and wage controls.

When would the present emergency of inflation be serious enough to justify federal controls? In a 1923 Privy Council judgment on a price control case, Lord Haldane ruled that "the Dominion government, which in its Parliament represents the people of Canada as a whole, must be deemed to be left with considerable freedom to judge whether a sufficiently great emergency exists to justify an exercise of the power."

If inflation continues unchecked, the government would unquestionably seek asquiescence of the provinces before taking action on Lord Haldane's authority, provincial sensitivities being what they are. If co-operation were not forthcoming there would be a real crisis to test the government's courage and leadership. But as of now the government is relying mainly on tight money and high taxes, meanwhile scanning the horizon hopefully for signs that the winds of inflation may be subsiding.

Women Play Full Role In Modern-Day China

TOKYO — The women of China have been described as serious, sexless, and shapeless. Their energies are channelled into loving Mao Tse-tung and stepping up production.

Admittedly, this appraisal by recent travellers is a generalization. It could be influenced by the fact that Chinese women no longer resemble those of the past.

Dressed in baggy, ill-fitting tunics and pantaloons, their hair cut short, China's 350,000,000 women nowadays often look like men.

No longer do they wear the body-clinging cheongsams of the past, with the slits high up the sides. Paint, powder and lipstick work no miracles for the proletarian plain or ugly.

Red Guard Target

The few who held out for femininity, and kept an occasional beauty parlor in business, have all but disappeared in the Red Guard surge. The youthful Red Guards made a prime target of women still clinging to such western beauty aids as lipstick, permanent waves and spoke heels.

Emancipated, given the vote, put beside their husbands in the factory or on the farm, Chinese women now play as large a part in production as the menfolk. They run steam rollers, operate bulldozers, mine coal, drive automobiles, deliver the mail, and sit on the ruling Communist party's central committee.

Official publications say women make up 30 to 40 per cent of those in the rice and wheat fields bringing in the harvest. In the cotton fields, 70 per cent of the workers are women.

Women Deputies

There are 542 women deputies in the National People's Congress, somewhat more than one-third of the total membership, and 1,430,000 women serve as deputies in local people's congresses.

Women are expected to work as hard as men, and in some cases work even harder. Theoretically, they are free from the old go-between marriages of the past, and may choose their own mates.

This right was guaranteed by a 1950 marriage law that swept away some other ancient customs, such as concubinage, betrothal of children, polygamy, bans against remarriage of widows, arranged marriages, and unequal divorce laws.

Divorce now is given without question on application from either party, unless the wife is pregnant or her husband is an old revolutionary.

Marriages, on paper, are as simply arranged. However, the old go-betweens of the past have been replaced in many instances by the local party committee if either of the lovers is a party member. The committee frowns on a girl's choice if he lacks enthusiasm in work or is politically questionable.

Economic crises and a high birth rate have touched off a birth-control campaign in which early marriages are discouraged. Though the legal age is 20 for boys and 18 for girls, in practice, marriage is put off to the middle or late 20s.

Once married, women get 56 days off at full pay for maternity leave. Their children are looked after in community nurseries and kindergartens.

A Small Ritual of Lights In the Lake's Off-Season

By ART STOTT

Bundled in sweaters against the cold of Thanksgiving night, we sat at the edge of our little beach on Cigarmaker's Bay and made our count of lights.

This is an old practice with us. It started when our children were no bigger than their children are now and when we had snugged them down for instant and untroubled sleep. The autumn night air is still sharp and clean — not yet touched with frost, but cool — and the small sounds of the water on shingle and the splash of a surfacing trout in the darkness are as old as we can remember, and still fresh.

Stott

You catch the changes of Shawnigan as you count the lights. There are more now, partly because there are more houses and partly because a family, using electricity, flicks switches in a number of rooms, no longer dependent on the old kerosene lamp, packed from one part of the house to another as occasion demanded.

At Spershott's the bright, high "street" lamp sheds its light over the developed land, and between the islands a window in the Behnsen place glows.

There are few of the sharp, white lights of the old Colemans, those white pressure gas lamps that once were the pride of their possessors when our part of the lake was wilderness. Those still seen come usually from islands to which the power lines have not yet been extended.

★ ★ ★ ★

In earlier years, as we made the count, each light was personalized. Across the bay we'd see the single oblong from a small house among the shore trees and report to each other "The Squire's up." That meant our old friend W. H. Binns, once director of technical education for Victoria, would be out in his boat come daylight, with his old golden Cocker spaniel in the bow, casting a wet fly and shouting a cheerful greeting as we passed, trolling.

Behnsen's light was always shining across the lake between the two islands, a familiar and friendly beacon that let us know the old cougar hunter and year-round resident was there and ready for a talk of old times if we rowed over the next morning. And from his home came the intermittent baying of hounds, mournful calls that took on music as you grew accustomed to them.

Closer to us, on our left in Cigarmakers' Bay, the lamps would be lit in Jesse's, and nearer still, the glow from windows at Steele's and Scott's would make their pathways on the water.

So we told the lights as one might tell beads, making each the unerring identity of a house owner and feeling a certain assured friendliness from them.

★ ★ ★

Electricity has changed the tone of the illuminations. More houses have blinked the night message of larger population. Many of the oldtimers have gone and some who have taken over their homes are strangers to us. Identity is less certain from the night shore of our small bay.

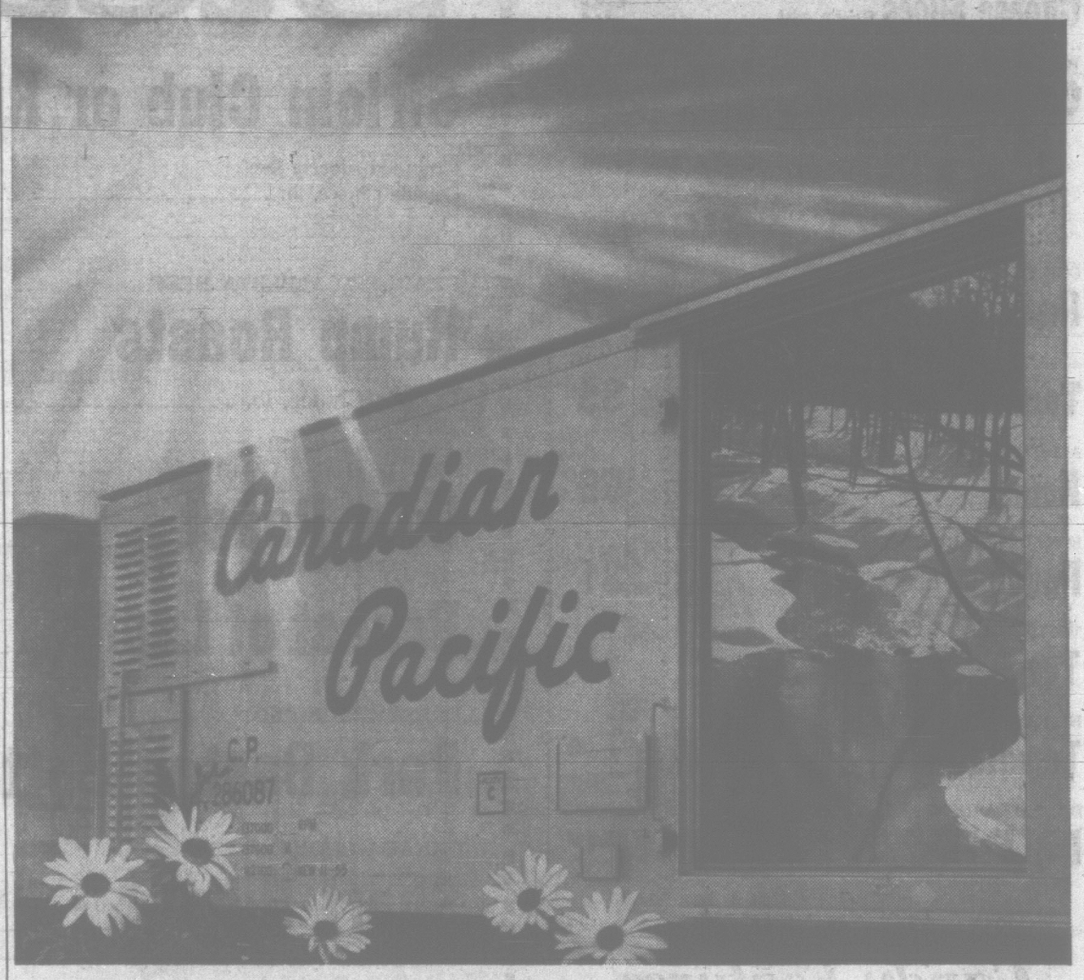

There is still, though, the relative peacefulness of off-season at Shawnigan. A lumbering freight train swings its headlight beam above the new growth and into the sky as it rolls north from Fitzgerald's. The wheel flanges clatter and couplings clank as it rounds the bend coming toward the John A. Macdonald cairn where Cliffside station used to stand. You miss the almost human puffing of its labor now that diesels are in use and you seldom hear the haunting call of its whistle — a fairly close approximation of the original — as it thunders along a level grade between the hills. But the light is little changed — a strong pathway swinging a third of the way up the mountain we call Stick to the rhythm of metal wheels on steel rails.

The air grows colder at our little beach. We have given silent greeting to the people in houses with lighted windows — and to the memory of those we greeted years ago. Another small ritual has been completed and we wander back up the path to a room where an open fire glows in a house where the flick of a switch has eliminated the chore of pumping a Coleman and heating the mantles before an old lamp once gave us one-room illumination.

Famous Last Words

Henry IV of France (1553-1610)

Attacked by Francois Ravaillac, a Brittany schoolmaster, he was stabbed twice, cried out: "Do not kill him!" and then was stabbed again. Ravaillac, tortured to death, would only say: "My God of Paradise!" over and over until he died.

Everyone talks about the weather.
Canadian Pacific does something about it.

Come rain or come shine, Canadian Pacific has a new car that's a stand-out in any kind of weather.

It's called a Mechanical Refrigerator Car which is kind of a long name for something this simple.

In essence, the Canadian Pacific "Reefer Car" carries its own climate. You select the temperature for your particular merchandise and the reefer car maintains it. Right away this car opens up all sorts of possibilities for shippers of perishable goods because it has a temperature range of below 0°F to 75°F. But let's not forget shippers of frozen foods. Or dressed beef, where a constant temperature of 32° to 34°F is demanded.

There's a little "extra" for beef shippers in the reefer car. A patented meat rail system. Using this system, three men who wouldn't know a bullock from a cowlick can unload the entire car in one hour and ten minutes. Quite a labour-saving bonus. One more thing about the remarkable reefer car. It has big wide doors that you can put a forklift through.

Next time you're talking reliable shipment of frozen, perishable or off the hoof goods, talk to a Canadian Pacific freight traffic representative about the Mechanical Refrigerator Car. The one that blows hot or cold anytime of year.

Service Unharmed By Switch

The chairman of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health confirmed Tuesday there would be no disruption of services if the board comes under Regional District control.

But Mrs. E. P. Thomas, Saanich school board representative, remained unconvinced the switchover would be made without trouble.

"I just hope this whole changeover won't end up in more red tape," she said.

Reeve Gordon Lee of Central Saanich, chairman of the board, said he is convinced the regional district would be the ideal vehicle for the administration of the board.

He told board members his conviction followed a meeting of all area reeves in the office of Mayor A. W. Toone last week.

The reeves and Mayor Toone have asked the provincial government to open a series of discussions in an attempt to solve the major problem of cost-sharing under the regional district set-up.

MINISTERS' BACKING

Health Minister Eric Martin and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell have pledged their support. Education Minister Leslie Peterson has also been asked to join in the discussions so that the needs of school children in the public health area can receive uninterrupted service.

In other business discussed by the board Dr. Harold Carter queried the necessity for the steady stream of courses being taken by health board employees.

The question arose when Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread sought permission for four senior staffers to attend an administration seminar in Vancouver between Nov. 28 and Dec. 2.

WHITBREAD SHOULD GO

Dr. Carter said he felt that if anyone was going to the course it should be Dr. Whitbread.

He asked what the agenda would be and Dr. Whitbread replied that he did not have a prospectus available.

"You mean to say we are sending someone and we don't even know what is going to take place?" he asked.

Dr. Whitbread said the course was designed to make senior personnel more proficient in their jobs.

On the vote Dr. Carter voted in favor of sending the staff members to Vancouver for the four-day course.

Five Bodies Found In Wreckage

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A marine ground party from the Kodiak Naval Air Station found the bodies of five persons Tuesday in the wreckage of a plane on a hillside on Afognak Island.

The bodies were identified as those of William Russell of Kodiak, and his four children, ranging in age from six to 14, who disappeared Sept. 25 on a flight from Homer to Kodiak.

Russell was reported to have been carrying a fifth, unidentified passenger when he left Homer, but the search party said only five bodies were found.

The plane wreckage was spotted Monday by a navy plane on a routine mission.

GERMAN CLERIC FIRED FOR DISPLAYING PILLS

FRANKFURT (Reuters) — A West German Protestant minister was dismissed here Tuesday after adorning his harvest Thanksgiving altar with birth control pills. Worshippers at Pastor Wilhelm Reinmuth's Thanksgiving service also found a wheelbarrow, tools, and various industrial items from everyday city life on the altar.

Hellyer Action 'Never Equalled Since Hitler'

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked Tuesday for recall of the Commons defence committee to consider the question of unification of the forces.

He pegged his demand in the Commons to a newspaper article by Gen. Charles Foulkes, retired chairman of the chiefs of staff, which he said contained grave charges about Defence Minister Hellyer's program.

Mr. Hellyer said there would be a chance to study the matter at the committee stage of a bill he will present to the Commons embodying steps to unification of the forces.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the House should know why the advice of such informed officers as Gen. Foulkes had been rejected.

Mr. Hellyer said he had not seen the article in question.

But he said Gen. Foulkes had written in the Toronto Star some time ago that Canada should unify her armed forces and put them into a single uniform.

Mr. Diefenbaker attempted to quote from the Foulkes article, the first in a three-part series being carried by the Ottawa Journal. He was ruled out of order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

But he managed to get in the fact that the retired general called the disregard of opinions of senior officers about unification something "never equalled since Hitler."

Gen. Foulkes said in the article senior officers are aware "that political expediency always takes precedence over military requirements."

Gen. Foulkes said there is concern in military echelons about the extent, method and timing of steps leading to integration and the state of morale reflected in a high rate of resignations and low re-engagements.

'Crown Agencies and Unions Need Public In on Planning'

The community at large should have representatives on policy boards of crown corporations and trade unions alike, New Democratic Party Leader Robert Strachan suggested Tuesday.

He said this would be a start towards developing a totally new pattern of co-operative management-labor relations "to eliminate the crisis climate which has become almost normal in this province."

Mr. Strachan made his proposal in a press conference here.

He said continual turmoil within crown corporations such as the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and B.C. Ferry Authority prove the government is one of the most irresponsible employers so the experiment should start with them.

"Every public agency should have a representative of the workers themselves on the board of directors," he said

He said such a union representative, and also a representative of the consumers, could have a voice without a vote on the board.

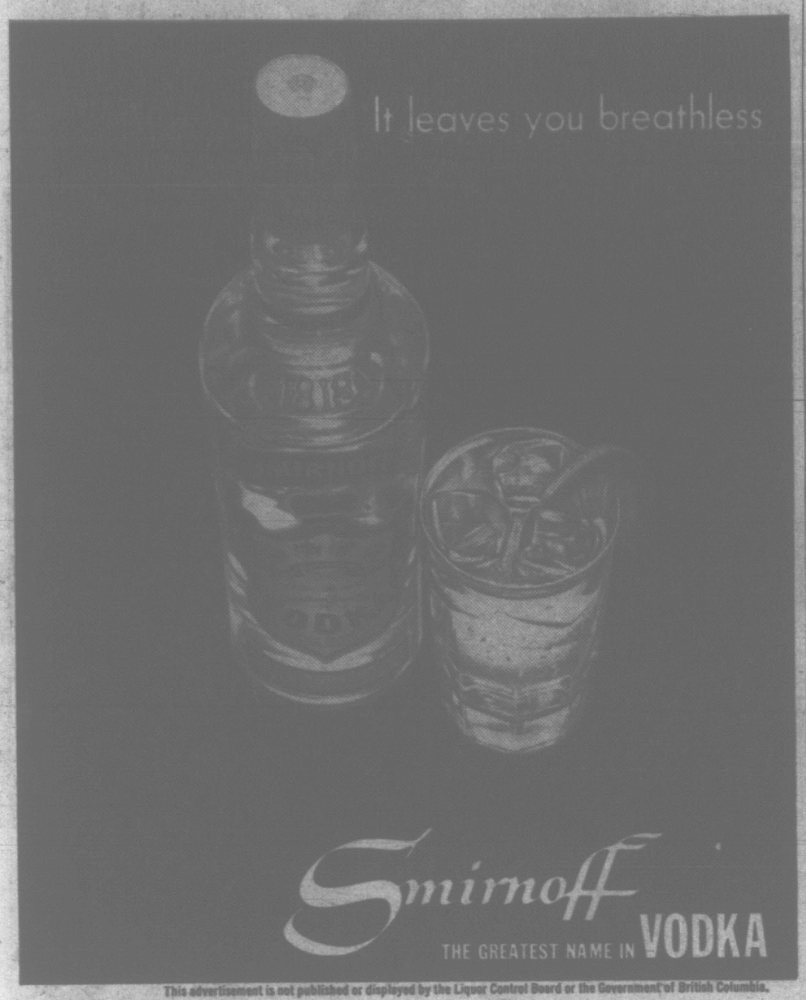

"This would then make sure that the voice and viewpoint of the workers and the general public were heard in management councils," Mr. Strachan said.

"An additional possibility in the new patterns would be the inclusion of a non-union representative of the public on the policy board of trade unions so that the union leaders would have full knowledge of the impact their actions would have on the general public."

The opposition leader also took a swing at Premier Bennett's current European tour where, among other things, he received a decoration from the state government of Bavaria.

"If the premier wants to absent himself from the province at such a time in order to receive an award of the Iron Cross Third Class then that is his business," he said.

"But I suggest his time could have been better spent in B.C. fulfilling the lavish promises he made prior to Sept. 12."

'Grits Flout Law of Land For Murderers'

OTTAWA (CP)—Why doesn't the cabinet observe "the law of the land" and allow convicted murderers to be hanged? Ralph B. Cowan (L—York-Humber) asked in the Commons Tuesday in a hot exchange with Prime Minister Pearson.

He started it by quoting a statement by Mr. Pearson at the time Parliament was debating a bill to settle the national rail strike. Mr. Pearson said then that when something is made a law of the land, most Canadians obey it.

The maverick Liberal MP went on to ask:

ASKS WHY

Why did the cabinet continue to commute death sentences when this was the law and when continuation of capital punishment had been confirmed by Parliament after a debate last session? Did the cabinet believe in observing the law?

"Yes, Mr. Speaker," Mr. Pearson replied emphatically. There had been a recommendation for mercy in the case of a man whose death sentence was commuted in a cabinet decision announced last Friday. Such a recommendation was "inevitably considered" in commutations.

ORDER CALLED

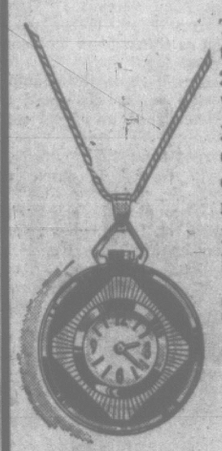

Before being called to order by the Speaker, Mr. Cowan said there had been no such recommendation in the case before that.

The Liberal government since 1963 has commuted every death sentence to come before it.

The Commons last session held a debate on capital punishment climaxed by a vote free of party ties that went against abolition of the death penalty.

Relief Sought On Sewer Costs

Saanich's solicitor will be asked if there can be any help for ratepayers in the Wende-Harrop area who have protested the high cost of a local improvement sewer extension.

The public works committee passed a motion Tuesday night to get an opinion from the solicitor on whether any taxation can be obtained from the school board. It has a new school in the area which will benefit from the sanitary sewer extension.

Council said earlier that work could not be halted because the local improvement had been properly and legally submitted to ratepayers who voted in favor of sewers after being informed of costs.

Some residents protested the vote was called on minimum notice in the summer when persons were on holiday and some were not eligible to vote because they had just moved to the area.

Coun. Leslie Passmore, chairman of the public works committee, said if Saanich gets into a sewer utility system costs in the separate sewer areas will be averaged out.

CONSOLATION

"You being the highest you can only go down," he told a neighborhood delegation. "That is the only consolation I can offer you.

"Your submission will be placed before our solicitor and if he can find anything to alleviate you I'm sure he'll be glad to."

Coun. Passmore also told some of the complaining residents that if they didn't agree with the price, others did and voted for it.

Bargain Day Every Day With Firemen

Saanich residents are getting "the biggest bargain in local services" through their municipal fire department.

Coun. Alan Newberry, chairman of the fire committee, said for about $1.50 a month each resident is entitled to:

- Emergency alarm service, with 1,948 calls handled last year;
- A four-passenger Cadillac ambulance available at all times anywhere in the municipality without direct charge which responded to 598 emergency calls last year;
- Inspection service to check on fire hazards in public buildings and oil-burning equipment installations;
- Fire prevention service including an inspection each year of all schools and hospitals and periodical inspections of such buildings as stores and halls.

He said the fire fighting force has a strength of 56 with nine vehicles at three stations.

He made his comments to mark Fire Prevention Week.

Live TV Planned For Apollo Flight

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Television cameras will accompany the first three-man crew aboard the Apollo spaceship to give home viewers their first live pictures from space, the Federal space agency said today.

A spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said the crew would take along a small, handheld camera on the first Apollo flight, scheduled for a mission of up to 14 days tentatively in early December.

Subsequent missions—including the first American landing on the moon—also call for the use of television.

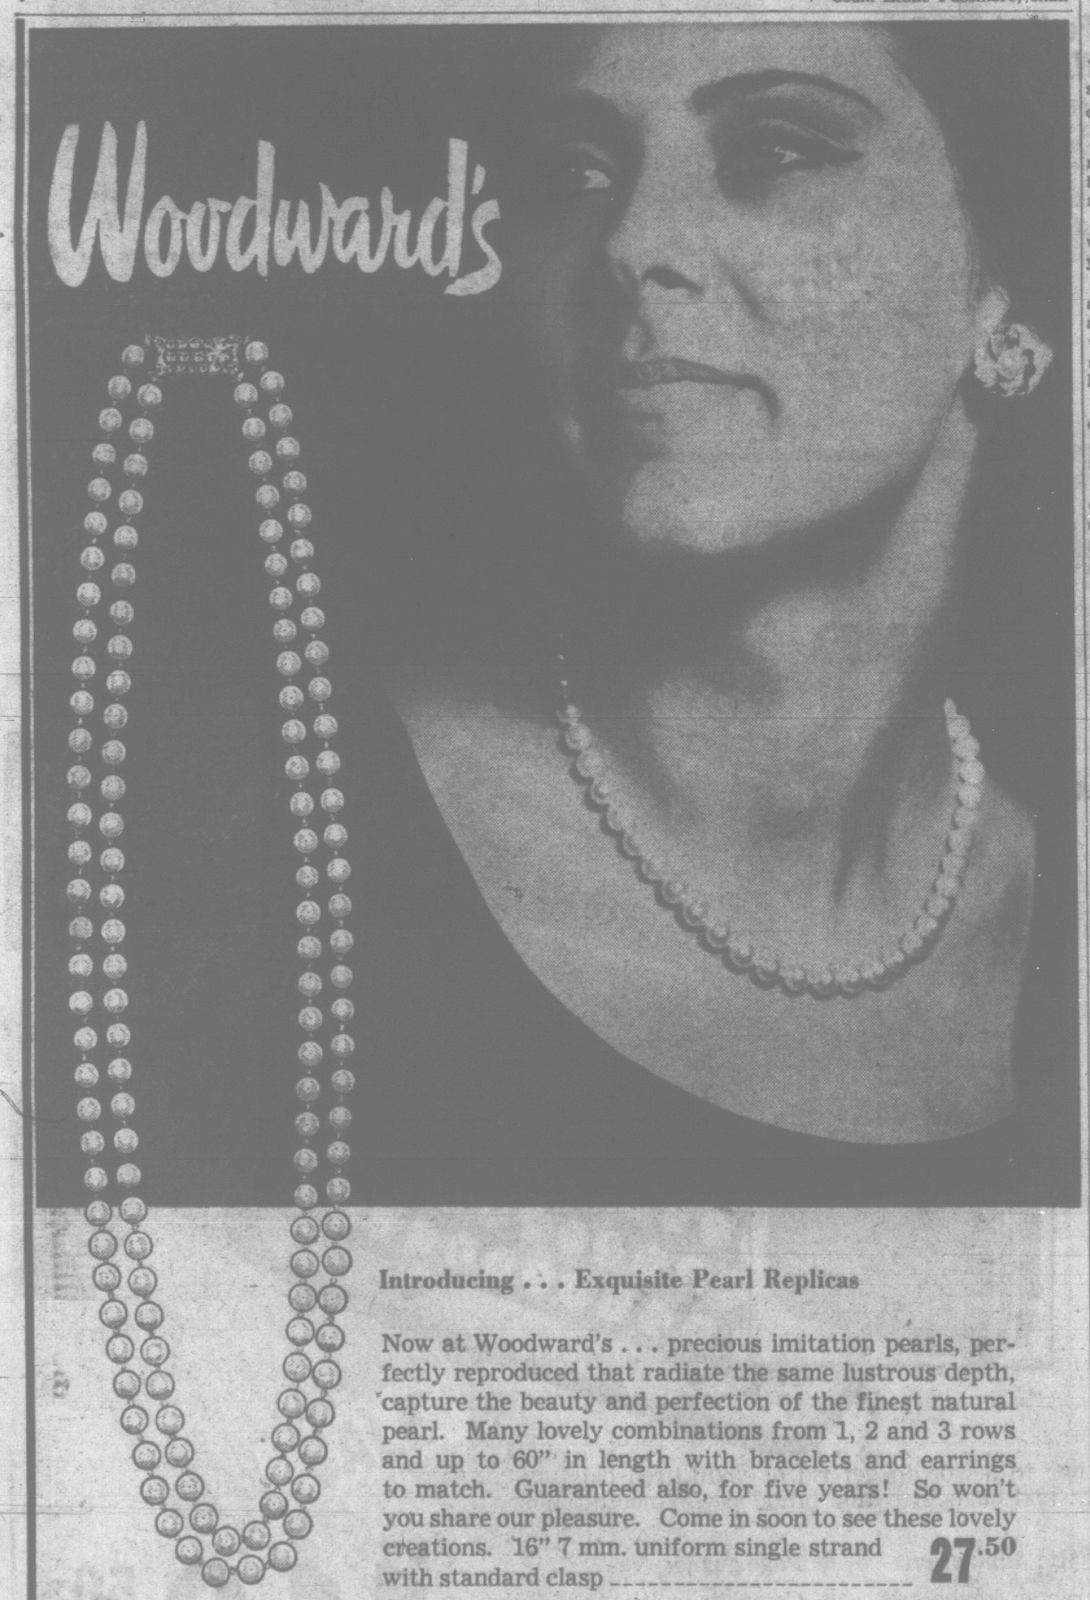

Independent Press Better

FREDERICTON (CP) — The editor-in-chief of Britain's Sunday Express said Tuesday the more independent the government and the press are of each other the better.

John R. Gordon, British journalist and editor for 40 years, told a group of students and faculty at the University of New Brunswick that the business of politics is to brainwash the public while the business of the press is to prevent government brainwashing.

PM'S Wife Strikes

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Mrs. Aina Erlander, wife of Sweden's Social-Democratic Premier Tage Erlander, went on strike Tuesday—together with about 1,300 other teachers. The strike—the first by Swedish teachers—followed a breakdown in negotiations for a new working agreement and affected about 1,000 school teachers in nearly 30 schools and 300 academicians at universities.

Protests Block Olde England Inn Addition

Esquimalt council Monday rejected a bylaw which would have permitted a 14-suite addition to Olde England Inn.

The rejection, by a six-to-one vote, came at a closed session of council following a stormy two-hour public hearing.

Esquimalt resident nagged, scolded and read parts of the municipal act to councillors in the packed council chamber.

During the hearing, residents cited noise, parking, air pollution and traffic hazards as problems that would snowball if the hotel's trade increased.

Peter Gleave, 1063 Bewdley said parking facilities in the area are already inadequate, and the expansion would worsen the problem.

"Caravans" of cars and "nauseating" fumes from diesel buses as a direct result of Inn traffic are spoiling the area said Mr. Marie Pickell, of 408 Lampson.

"If I wanted to live in the midst of noise, stink and confusion, I'd live in the city, wouldn't I?" she asked.

Said Alex Matte, 1023 Bewdley, also a neighbor of nearby Work Point Barracks: "Even the army doesn't bother us as much as traffic from the Olde England Inn."

Bruce McLean, 401 Lampson who earlier circulated a petition signed by 59 persons opposing the bylaw, read excerpts from the municipal act to council to prove a point.

The municipal solicitor's opinion on the bylaw was asked by J. C. Pepper, 1025 Wychbury, but Reeve Ray Bryant said all communications between staff and council were confidential.

Another resident told councillors "I do not honestly believe you gentlemen are considering the residents of this area first."

Inn owner Sam Lane rose to defend his plan. He said, "I feel very much like Sampson in the lion's den," before correcting himself to "Daniel."

Mr. Lane said his hotel had only held 10 wedding parties in 10 months, that it did not sell drinks, and has little entertainment. He denied his inn caused depreciation of nearby property.

He said he had co-operated in removing unsightly junk. And he had no control over the school board sending busloads of children to view his Anne Hathaway cottage.

Mr. Lane was supported by Esquimalt merchants and Victoria Visitors' Bureau. He told the hearing this would be his last addition because he had no more energy for battling.

Today Mr. Lane refused comment on council's decision.

Five Tons of Fallout Acceptable? Not by a Long Shot!

Five tons of dust fallout per square mile monthly may be light by pollution standards.

But it's too much for 700 residents in the Esquimalt-View Royal area.

In a strongly-worded protest the residents informed the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health that the fallout from the Victoria Plywood Ltd. mill on Hallowell Rd. is "shameful" and so bad at times "that we are all driven inside and have to shut windows and doors tight to keep out the filth."

Chief sanitary inspector Elwood Gropp admitted that many of the claims of the petitioners could be true.

"But the dust-collecting stations in the area tell a different story," he said.

Mr. Gropp claimed that fallout in the Victoria Plywood mill area ran between 4½ and five tons per square mile.

The readings, he said, were much lower than readings taken in certain areas in Victoria.

"None of the readings in this district (View Royal) comes up to the lowest readings in Victoria," he said.

He added that in some areas of the city the fallout readings registered 16 tons per square mile with the bad spots such as Hillside reading as high as 35 tons per square mile.

City smoke inspector Sam Mottishaw said he felt the comparison unfair.

He admitted that there were spots in the city where the readings could go as high as 16 or 35 tons but stressed that they were being rapidly cut down.

Victoria's worst hazard emanating from the B.C. Forest Products complex on Gorge Road is expected to be eliminated by the end of this year.

Last week mill manager Herbert Barnes said work is starting on the installation of equipment valued at $131,000 which would bring fallout to an all-time low.

In the meantime, View Royal and Esquimalt citizens received little comfort from the health board.

Mrs. Nell Horth, North Saanich, said she felt the situation was not one for the board to concern itself about.

"Our principal concern should be the matter of health rather than nuisance," she said. "I feel that we become involved in an issue only when there is a hazard to health.

"In this instance, that doesn't exist."

The 700 petition signers disagreed.

They claimed that the Hallowell mill operation was fouling the waters of Esquimalt Harbor, reducing the value of property in the area and constituted "a major health hazard."

But Mr. Gropp insisted that the fallout in the complaint area was less than the fallout in the highest residential areas in Victoria.

Last week Mr. Mottishaw told the city's pollution committee that fallout in the city proper was down 30 per cent from last year and 38 per cent from 1964.

He said the two remaining trouble spots at Garbally and Gorge and Tolmie and Douglas should be helped considerably once the soot collectors now being installed by B.C. Forest Products were in place.

Mr. Mottishaw said he had no average figure for the fallout throughout Victoria but that in most areas it ran around six tons per square mile as compared with 14 tons per square mile in Vancouver.

Two Firemen Killed

Russians to Take Off Again on Space Flights—Webb

NEW YORK (AP)—James E. Webb, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, has predicted the long period of Soviet inactivity in manned space flights will end soon.

Despite a 19-month time lapse since the last Russian manned space flight and despite hectic activity in space by the United States, Webb said, the Russians are still ahead of the U.S. in the race to land men on the moon. He said they are ahead in several areas by as much as two years.

"They are still ahead of us in the areas of booster rockets and payload capabilities," Webb said, "and it will be at least another year or two before we catch up."

Webb did not say how soon he expects Soviet manned space flights to be resumed. Their last flight was in March, 1965. But he said the Soviet Union is developing a booster rocket even larger than the U.S. Saturn V, which has a payload capability of 280,000 pounds.

The Saturn V is scheduled for its first test flight next year.

Last Aug. 25, a Saturn 1-B, with a capability of 37,000 pounds, was fired 18,000 miles and re-entered the earth's atmosphere twice during the trip before recovery.

"That was the first time we had ever fired that large a payload and successfully recovered all instrumentation and data," Webb said. "It was a tremendous breakthrough for us but the Russians have been doing it for four years."

Webb made the prediction of increased Soviet space activity in talking to reporters before a luncheon address to the New York chapter of the National Security Industrial Association.

Webb said that because no space plans have been made by the United States beyond the middle of 1970—by which time it is expected the U.S. will have landed a manned space flight on the moon—the American space capabilities will have fallen far back through sheer inactivity.

New Geneva Parley 'Best Hope'

BROWN
. . . pushing plan

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Foreign Secretary George Brown of Britain met Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Tuesday night for the second time in four days, pursuing a diplomatic campaign aimed at reconvening the 1954 Geneva

"The Geneva conference failed once before to achieve a lasting settlement in Viet Nam, but it is still our best hope," Brown told reporters.

He has been trying to persuade Gromyko to agree to reconference on Viet Nam.

convene the conference, of which Britain and the Soviet Union are co-chairmen. He reiterated this appeal in a speech to the General Assembly Tuesday.

When a reporter asked him whether he has elicited any Soviet response, he said: "I wouldn't reply in those terms, I would consider it very foolish. By nature, I am an optimist. I have had very realistic talks here with Mr. Gromyko and others, and I think now is the time for good men to press on."

An informed source said, however, that their private talk produced no change in the Soviet attitude. Main obstacle was said to be the U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam.

WILL MEET ROMANIAN

Brown will confer today with Romanian Foreign Minister Corneliu Manescu for the second time in three days. A diplomatic source said these contacts are considered especially significant "because of Bucharest's clear channel" to North Viet Nam.

The peace plan unveiled by Brown at a Labor party conference in Brighton, England, last week and reiterated Tuesday in the General Assembly would, if accepted in all its essentials, require Canada, India and Poland to play a bigger role in Viet Nam.

These three countries make up the International Control Commission, which Brown said should be strengthened with additional observers and a peace-keeping force so that it could supervise the carrying out of a new Viet Nam settlement. If necessary, additional countries could be asked to participate on the commission.

Brown told a press conference there has been no prior agreement by Canada, India and Poland to take on a larger responsibility for keeping peace in Viet Nam, and he has no indication whether they would agree to it.

Brown's plan calls for an end to U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam and to the buildup of U.S. and North Vietnamese forces in South Viet Nam as soon as the parties to the war, including the Viet Cong guerrillas, and other interested governments agree to a conference.

The conference would immediately try to negotiate a cease-fire and to agree on the main principles of a Viet Nam settlement. He said these should include free elections in both North and South Viet Nam, leaving the decision about one or two Viet Nams to the freely elected Vietnamese governments, and an amnesty to all Vietnamese who participated in the war on either side in any capacity.

The size of both the North and South Vietnamese forces would have to be reduced. Foreign military bases and alliances would be prohibited, and U.S. and North Vietnamese forces would have to withdraw from South Viet Nam in accordance with a timetable.

All this would be policed by the International Control Commission.

Brown had lunch Tuesday with UN Secretary-General U Thant. Viet Nam was said to have dominated the conversation.

An informed source said Brown and Thant "don't see entirely eye to eye on the problem," inasmuch as the secretary-general is pressing for an immediate and unconditional halt to the U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam. Thant is said to believe this must happen before there can be any conference.

Viet Nam Peace Held Unlikely By Formosa

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Nationalist China declared today that peace will not be restored in Viet Nam "until the Communist aggressors are convinced that they cannot win by force."

"At present they are not so convinced," Ambassador Liu Chieh said in a policy speech prepared for delivery before the 118-nation UN General Assembly. "On the contrary, they believe that they are already half way to victory."

Liu asserted that neither North Viet Nam nor Communist China wants a political solution in Viet Nam.

"The only language they understand is the language of force and violence."

Liu expressed hope that peace would soon return to "the brave people of the republic of Viet Nam." He praised the efforts of leaders of various governments to get peace negotiations started. But he warned that for such negotiations to mean anything "there must be a clear understanding of the ends to be achieved.

"Certainly, the freedom and independence of the Republic of Viet Nam cannot be bargained away in the name of peace.

"Certainly negotiation cannot mean any abandonment of resistance to Communist aggression."

'WAR A TEST'

Communist China looks on the war in Viet Nam as a test case, Liu said.

"If it can succeed in Viet Nam, it can also succeed in other countries."

Liu accused Communist China of venturing into the nuclear field "in defiance of world opinion and contrary to the true interests of the Chinese people."

Peking, he asserted, is opposed to any plan to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

$2.5 Million Fire At Portland Harbor

PORTLAND (AP) — A five-alarm blaze ripped through a grain elevator, several warehouses and the Union Pacific Railroad yards at the Portland harbor Tuesday afternoon, causing an estimated $2.5 million damage.

In addition, three fire trucks were destroyed when part of the elevator collapsed on them, and three firemen were hospitalized with burns.

How much Life Insurance do you need?

It would be nice if we could give you the exact answer in our advertising, but for this we require considerable knowledge about your financial situation, your family responsibilities and your present assets.

However, we do have a formula which enables you to list most of your important financial needs. These guidelines for life insurance are expressed in terms of a total dollar amount in some cases; in a percentage of annual income in others.

Our formula looks like this: 1—M—½—¼—½.

1 — 1 year's income—the amount your family will need to cover Estate Clean-Up costs.
M — The mortgage remaining on your house.
½ — ½ your annual salary for your wife until the children are out of school.
¼ — ¼ of your present salary to your wife after the children are educated.
½ — ½ of your average annual earnings as a retirement income for yourself.

Now you have on paper the basis of a truly sound plan for financial security for you and your family. The next step is to guarantee this security with life insurance. The Man from Manufacturers can show you how much you need.

CLOSE COAL MINES

Harsh Cure For Industry

OTTAWA (CP) — A drastic proposal to kill the patient and cure the ailment was tabled in the Commons Tuesday as an industrial economics consultant's answer to the Cape Breton coal industry problem.

The only solution to the problem, said 76-year-old Dr. J. R. Donald, is to eliminate the industry over the next 15 years.

His report, commissioned a year ago, recommends two federal Crown corporations to implement the policy and ease its effects on the miners and mining communities.

First is the Sydney Coal Corporation, which would take over the Sydney coal field mining operations, including Glace Bay and Sydney Mines, of Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. Ltd. — responsible for more than 88 per cent of the jobs and production would phase out jobs and production until both were eliminated within 15 years.

WOULD TAKE UP SLACK

The second Crown agency, the Cape Breton Development Corporation, would use the savings from federal coal subsidies due to declining production to bolster and diversify Cape Breton's economy, replacing jobs that no longer will be available in the mines.

Just how much of the report will become government policy isn't known yet. Energy Minister Pepin, who tabled the report for Trade Minister Sharp, said it was tabled so it could be discussed in the House.

"The government will bring down its policy in due course," he added.

In Halifax, Premier Robert Stanfield said the report should be examined carefully by Nova Scotians.

"It's a report we should not reject out of hand."

He said his government would certainly support and even be willing to participate in the proposal of the Dosco takeover.

TIME LIMIT

But he said he disagreed with other parts of the report. The time limit on the industry's operation "is a matter of judgment" and depends on "future developments, including marketing aids from Ottawa."

William Marsh, president of District 26 of the United Mine Workers Ind. said the report was crazy and a complete contradiction of government policy as laid down by Health Minister MacEachen, former labor minister and the government's cabinet representative from Nova Scotia.

The report showed "complete disregard of the social consequence," Mr. Marsh said, and Dr. Donald was "incompetent and demonstrated his complete inability to make such a study."

Mr. MacEachen was not available for comment.

Dr. Donald held little hope for improvement in the province's coal industry. Competition from other fuels was so great that even U.S. coal could be shipped to Halifax and undersell Cape Breton coal were it not for subsidies.

Seven-Year Lease

CALGARY (CP)—Shareholders of Western Rolling Mills Ltd. today approved leasing the company's assets and equipment to Western Canada Steel Ltd. of Vancouver for seven years. Western Canada Steel, a Cominco subsidiary, will have option to purchase after the lease period. Western Canada will pay $650,000 during the period and profits will be shared equally.

Housewives Like Price War

CHICAGO (AP) — Major supermarket food chains in the greater Chicago area are engaged in price-cutting, and housewive think it's just wonderful.

Jewel Tea Co., which operates supermarkets in five mid-western states, started lowering prices on 2,327 nonperishable items in late September and the other chains quickly followed.

Harry Beckner, vice-president and general manager of Jewel, wouldn't call it a price war, saying: "We are simply offering customers a choice of what they will pay for staple items."

Some sample reductions:

★ ★ ★

A two-pound can of coffee for $1.19, previously $1.39; a 29-ounce can of pears for 29 cents, previously 39 cents; a large jar of stuffed olives 44 cents, previously 59 cents; a large can of tomato juice 37 cents, 44 cents; a jar of salad dressing 33 cents, previously 39 cents.

"I don't care if it's a price war or not," said Mrs. Earl Aykroid of suburban Park Ridge. "Just so prices go down. These reductions are welcome and amount to quite a saving."

4 Cents A Loaf In Portland

PORTLAND (AP) — Portland's week-old food price war in the supermarkets continued today with no end in sight.

Bread sold at four cents a one-pound loaf in west side stores. But in east side stores it was 20 cents.

Why the difference? "The west side is the hot spot," said the manager of one chain. "Prices change quickly. One store took our newspaper ad, cut off our name and posted it as its prices."

Most of the price cutting has been on staples. Beet sugar is priced at 88 cents for 10 pounds. "It cost us $1.07 to $1.10 a bag," one grocery manager said, "that's a pretty good bargain."

Several said the war broke out as a response to the growth of discount stores. It was first apparent about a week ago when a discount department store cut the price of a gallon of milk in two-quart containers from 99 cents to 94 cents. Within two days it was down to 79 cents.

Air Fare Cuts Not Only Answer

VANCOUVER (CP) — An aviation expert Tuesday warned Canada's tourist promoters of the futility of trying to make airlines lower their fares without putting equivalent pressure on other sections of the tourist industry to do likewise.

Knut Hammarskjold, director general of the International Air Transport Association, Montreal, said that without widespread reductions tourists will not save money. What is saved on air fare would be offset by increases in prices by hotels and sightseeing operators, he said.

Speaking at a combined Rotary-Canadian Tourist Association luncheon, Mr. Hammarskjold said he is alarmed by U.S. permission given to "nonsked" airline companies to perform inclusive tour charters.

He said the skimming of the cream by companies not bound to provide regular service — regardless of the lack of passengers — could cause international repercussions.

"Smaller nations and their national carriers may not remain passive and watch their traffic dwindle because of the invasion of a large number of non-designated airlines in larger countries attempting to take advantage of these new freedoms," he said.

He also said the introduction of giant aircraft and their human loads will require new thinking against congestion at world airports.

"Perhaps we should follow railways and steamship examples in carrying immigration and custom officers aboard aircraft to eliminate this congestion."

He said the new "jumbo jets" would not be a success if ground facilities were inadequate and said many major airports throughout the world are "not a very happy story."

U.K. Auto Makers May Increase Price

LONDON (Reuters) — Auto manufacturers may be forced by the government's economic squeeze to increase prices for home and overseas sales, the head of the British motor industry forecast today.

The warning came from Sir Patrick Hennessy, president of the Society of Motor Manufacturers, whose annual motor show opens here Oct. 18.

As car makers prepared their exhibits for the show, thousands of workers were being dismissed or put on short time because of the government's economic squeeze and its policy to switch workers to other industries.

Hennessy, chairman of Ford Motor Co., told a press conference that after the crisis is over tremendous efforts must be made to shorten the period of after-effects.

He added:

"Meanwhile, reduced production, causing substantially higher costs, is a threat to our prices at home and abroad."

Contract Awarded

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Hydro and Power Authority awarded a $241,300 contract to Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. to supply a 230,000-volt transformer for the Burrard Thermal generating plant, it was announced Tuesday.

Alston Named Top Manager

NEW YORK (AP)—Walter Alston, of Los Angeles Dodgers, was named the National League's manager of the year for the fourth time in an Associated Press poll today. This past season he led the Dodgers to their sixth pennant during his 13-year tenure.

Alston received 206 votes in the annual AP poll of baseball writers. Harry Walker of Pittsburgh Pirates was second with 130 votes and Wes Westrum of New York Mets was third with 16. A total of 380 writers participated in the balloting based on the regular season.

The Dodgers' skipper also was the league's Manager of the Year in 1955, 1959 and 1965.

A 54-year-old former schoolteacher from Darrtown, Ohio, Alston made a success of one of his most challenging assignments in 1966. The Dodgers' who batted a collective .256 and whose 606 runs scored topped only two other teams in the league, did not clinch the pennant until their final game.

LATE SURGE

Los Angeles trailed the leading Pirates with three weeks remaining behind the pitching of Sandy Koufax and reliever Phil Regan, plus some timely hitting—notably by outfielder Lou Johnson. The Dodgers finished 1½ games ahead of second-place San Francisco and three ahead of Pittsburgh.

Hank Bauer, who directed Baltimore Orioles to their first American League pennant, was named that circuit's manager of the year earlier this week.

Meanwhile, at Chicago, the White Sox announced the signing of Marv Grissom as a pitching coach. Grissom, 48, has been with California Angels for the past six years.

TEE TOPICS

Turyk At It Again

Ray Harrington, Bob Hunt and Ray Pumfrey picked off club championships at the weekend. And Mike Turyk, figuring he was a trifle overdue, also figured prominently in district golf news.

Kerr

Turyk is the Victoria Golf Club member who took up golf five years ago and discovered, seemingly, that the hole-in-one is one of the easier shots in the book.

He scored his ninth in five years with an ace on Oak Bay's par-three 13th hole on Saturday.

★ ★ ★

Otherwise, club championship events dominated the scene.

Pumfrey, father of former Canadian junior finalist Noel Pumfrey, captured the Gorge Vale title for the first time Sunday by defeating Karl Zyrick 4 and 3 in their 36-hole playoff.

Bill Haddow won the "B" final at the Gorge, defeating Don Knight 7 and 6.

At the same time, Shirley Naysmith won the women's championship for the 12th time, defeating Dorothy DeGirolamo 4 and 3.

Bob Hunt took the honors at Uplands with a 6 and 5 conquest of Keith Swetnam while Harrington, the club president, became Cedar Hill's club champion after downing Jack Pepper, two up.

Still to be decided is the Colwood champion. Veteran Laurie Kerr and Ricky Kent moved into the final with victories Sunday. They'll play off next weekend.

★ ★ ★

A Glen Meadows member, R. Stewart, scored 86-23—63 Monday to capture top honors in the annual Thanksgiving Day tournament at Uplands.

Wakeham

Stewart finished two shots ahead of Uplands' Ron Bernard, 76-11—65.

And Bill Wakeham was an easy winner of the gross prize. Back in Victoria after a stint as an assistant professional in Calgary, Wakeham scored a three-under-par 67 to finish five shots ahead of Uplands assistant Eric Wright.

★ ★ ★

Colwood's Milton Dow captured the Frank Thomas Memorial Trophy, emblematic of Vancouver Island southpaw supremacy, with an 83-17—66 round on his home course.

Brian Lindsay won low gross honors with a 79 while Jack Keller captured the seniors' low gross with an 85.

Keller, paying his first serious round in over two years, used "nothing bigger" than a three iron at Colwood. No woods.

Which makes that 85 look rather impressive!

★ ★ ★

Peter McIntyre of Victoria Golf Club scored a net 68 to capture the R. W. Mayhew Trophy and top honors in the Vancouver Island Seniors' final medal round of the season.

Gorge Vale's John Carlow, scoring a six-over-par 76 at Uplands, won low gross honors.

Burgess Ready To Pack It Up

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago White Sox have asked for waivers on catcher Smoky Burgess, all-time major league pinch-hitting champion, for the purpose of releasing him unconditionally.

General manager Ed Short said the 39-year-old Burgess expressed the desire to devote all his time to his automobile business in Forrest City, N.C.

Burgess batted .313 as a Sox pinch-hitter this season with 21 hits, boosting his all-time pinch-hit total to a record 136.

'TWAS A HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Victoria-born and reared, Dave Woodley celebrated his 21st birthday last week by signing professional hockey contract with Oklahoma Blazers of Central League. A defenceman who played all his minor hockey here before going on to Niagara Falls juniors, Woodley becomes first native Victorian to move into pro ranks since Murray and Lynn Patrick did it over 30 years ago. As a matter of coincidence, Lynn helped sign Woodley into Boston Bruins' farm system.

Argos' Candidates

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts have announced halfback Marv Luster and linebacker Al Ecuyer are their candidates for the Jeff Russell sportsmanship trophy this season. Luster and Ecuyer were nominated by their teammates.

CONFLICT MAY END . . . . . HOCKEY SLAVERY

The War Goes On . . .

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Boucher of Regina said Tuesday the new Canadian Major Junior Hockey League could end the practice of young hockey players being "sold into slavery" to professional clubs.

But Gordon Juckes, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, says Boucher's new league is attempting to keep alive the system of drafting teen-age players.

In the past, National Hockey League clubs have signed and drafted minor and junior players and often placed them on sponsored amateur clubs.

But under an agreement with the CAHA which goes into effect next July 1, NHL clubs will end sponsorship of amateur teams and will draft players only after they have graduated from junior ranks.

Boucher said that since the CAHA had suspended the seven CMJHL clubs—Edmonton, Calgary, Regina, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw, Weyburn, Sask., and Estevan, Sask.—it will allow the players to dicker with any NHL club rather than being drafted by an individual team at the end of their junior careers.

KIDS' BEST BREAK

"It's the best break kids ever got," he said.

But Juckes said the matter went deeper than this.

"We (CAHA) have just completed a four-year period of negotiations with the NHL to end the teen - age draft and now these operators—in hockey for money — believe they should have the right to draft instead".

This comment was in reference to a previous suggestion by Boucher that the CMJHL be allowed to draft up to four players from any western team. He suggested at one time a draft price of $300 to $500 for each player.

"How can they claim they're attempting to stop us allowing kids to go into slavery?" Juckes said.

Boucher said Tuesday that the CAHA is hoping the NHL will honor the suspension by the CAHA.

"The CAHA is using this as a threat, a weapon," he said.

NHL CONCURS

Juckes said the CAHA has a telegram from NHL president Clarence Campbell saying the NHL and all NHL affiliates have been instructed to live up to the CAHA suspension—including withdrawal of all financial assistance. Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs already have withdrawn individual sponsorship of clubs in the CMJHL. Montreal previously sponsored Regina Pats while Toronto sponsored Calgary Buffalos.

He said the players in the CMJHL have been instructed that they will be suspended individually by the CAHA if they continue to play in the league after Thursday, Oct. 13.

Atlanta 'Handed' Baseball's Braves

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The South has emerged a victor in the civil war over baseball,

Atlanta was told Tuesday it could keep the Braves of the National League as Wisconsin turned to the United States Supreme Court in a bid to restore the sport to Milwaukee through expansion.

The triumph was trumpeted by two sentences in a hazy, hidden footnote at the bottom of the 13th page of Wisconsin's 38-page plea to the nation's highest court to hear the case.

The footnote, State Attorney-General Bronson C. La Follette said, meant "Wisconsin is now asking only that Milwaukee be included in expansion plans for the National League."

Baseball's abandonment of Milwaukee, first city to be deserted by the major leagues since 1903, led to the antitrust conviction in April that was overturned in a 4-3 vote by Wisconsin's own Supreme Court three months later.

ORDERED BRAVES BACK

The Milwaukee judge who returned the original conviction against the National League and its 10 clubs had ordered the Braves brought back from Atlanta if Wisconsin were not awarded a 1967 expansion team.

The brief footnote to the appeal Tuesday acknowledged that the suit at first "originally alleged" the Braves' move to Atlanta was illegal, but conceded that the state Supreme Court had decided it would never order the team to return because of reasons of state law.

Only federal issues may be argued before the U.S. Supreme Court. The reluctant surrender under state law freed the Braves to remain in Atlanta.

The Wisconsin court ruled that baseball was a monopoly, but said the state couldn't enforce its antitrust law against the sport because of previous U.S. Supreme Court decisions bestowing immunity from federal antitrust law.

The footnote, vague and indefinite in its wording, went unnoticed until La Follette drew attention to it four hours after the plea was filed in Washington Tuesday.

Old Archie Puts Rassler On Right Path

Former light-heavyweight champ of the world Archie Moore may have hung up his gloves but he can still swing a mean haymaker.

Referee in Tuesday's wrestling card at Memorial Arena, he curbed rambunctious matman Don Jardine, who took the ageless Archie for an easy mark. Archie, resorting to the tactics that took him to the top in boxing, quickly put Jardine on the right track.

Jardine also lost his wrestling match, going down two falls of three to Don Denucci in the feature.

In other matches Alex the Great and Eric Froelic battled to a draw, Paul Jones and John Tolas drew, and Duke Miller whipped Red McNulty.

Victoria Defence May Be Indicator

SPORTS

DOUG PEDEN, Sports Editor

SPORTS DIARY

By SHIRLEY POVICH
(The Washington Post)

WASHINGTON — For those still baffled by the sudden death of the Los Angeles Dodgers in four games, which is the shortest distance between the winners' and losers' cheques in a World Series, a clinical study provides some of the answers.

First, it is necessary to induce a state of shock. This is what the Baltimore Orioles did to the Dodgers as soon as possible, in the first game.

In that one, it is remembered, the Orioles came up against Don Drysdale in the first inning and rapidly played boom-boom with his pitching. Drysdale walked Russ Snyder, and on his next three pitches the Orioles collected three runs with two direct-action thrusts by the Robinson boys, Frank and Brooks, who hit consecutive homers.

If this did not leave the Dodgers stupefied, Moe Drabowsky did. This former National League ne'er-do-well, who had barely caught on with the Orioles, took over the pitching in the third inning and flattened the Dodgers with a one-hit, no-run job that destroyed their cool and left them in a collective daze and vulnerable.

The Dodgers were still trying to shake this one off when they ran into a new jolt, in the second game. Now the unbelievable Orioles came up with a young pitcher who could outpitch Sandy Koufax, at least on Thursday, Oct. 6. Koufax was betrayed by the Dodgers' defence, which committed a record six errors. He gave up only one earned run, but Jim Palmer gave the Dodgers no runs at all.

They Lacked That Get-Up-and-Go

From that point it was downhill for the Dodgers, who were not only futile against Baltimore pitching, but flat in spirit, never able to muster the get-up that got them home in the NL pennant race. They were ripe for something like the third and fourth-game disasters that saw them fail to get any kind of a run.

Not only the image of the Dodgers has suffered, but the entire National League got a comeuppance from the Orioles. Baltimore wasn't hitting much, either, in the series, and its .200 team batting average usually amounts to a plea of "guilty and give us the loser's share." But it was sufficient to stamp out the Dodgers (team batting average .142) in four games.

The Orioles unmasked the Dodgers as a club that must have won the National League pennant by default. Obviously, if the Dodgers could win, they did not have much to beat. Two weak-hitting teams finished one-two in that league. The Dodgers were piteously bereft of the long ball, and the Giants, who outhit only the New York Mets, were the second-place club.

Only the Dodgers' pitching escaped humiliation in the World Series. Drysdale, Osteen and Koufax were barely outpitched as a group, even with Wally Bunker, Jim Palmer and Dave McNally stringing three shutouts together after Drabowsky brought the Dodgers up short in the first game. The Dodgers' batting order was exposed as patty-cake.

Dusty Didn't Know About Indians

The inference at the end of the series was clear. The Orioles were underrated as a baseball power and the entire National League was feeding on a reputation it had ceased to deserve. In the American League, for immediate future years, there is now a new anti-toxin: Who's afraid of the National League pennant winners?

The reasons, if any, appear to be small.

Let us hark back to the 1954 World Series, when the lamb similarly slaughtered the butcher — New York Giants sweeping the series from the invincible Cleveland Indians in four straight. The impact of that upset was an enduring one, and started a trend that may be repeated, this time to the detriment of the National League.

Coming up to that 1954 World Series, the National League was a joke and Durocher's Giants were longshots against the formidable Cleveland pitching of Early Wynn, Bob Lemon and Mike Garcia. A pinch-hitter named Dusty Rhodes, who was not a great reader and may not have known how hopeless it was, shattered the Cleveland pitching and the Giants won every game.

To that point, the American League had won seven World Series in a row. After that, dominance passed to the National, which won eight of 12 World Series and was snooting the American League in the All-Star games as well.

The Orioles have now recovered dignity for their league.

For the American League, the new problem is that the Orioles are a very young team and could be starting a dynasty. The average age of their three shutout pitchers in the series is only 22. But there is a comforting fact that the Dodgers may not easily comprehend. The Orioles, who won the pennant by nine games, had an eight-game lead at the All-Star break and could gain only one more game. Also, they were held to .500 ball by the other four clubs in the first division and could not dominate their own league as they did the National League's best team.

Leafs Chalk Up Fourth Straight Exhibition Win

(Special to The Times)

SPOKANE — Pre-season opposition has been finding it difficult to score against the Maple Leafs, and Victoria coach Frank Mario "hopes it's an indication" of what lies ahead in the forthcoming Western Hockey League campaign.

The Leafs whipped out a 5-1 decision over Spokane Jets of the Western International League here Tuesday night for Victoria's fourth straight exhibition victory.

In their four pre-season outings, the Leafs have given up only eight goals, and that's the statistic that impresses Mario.

"When you consider we've used two rookies in goal, along with shuffled lineups and other rookies, I find that impressive," said Mario. "I hope that is an indication of what lies ahead."

DEFENCE SHINES

With goaltenders Gary Holland and Mike Berridge performing well, the Leafs had little difficulty in defeating the Jets. The game's standouts, however, were Victoria rearguards.

Leaf blueliners appeared to completely control the game as Victoria out-shot the Jets 45-30.

Milan Marcetta, Lou Jankowski, Rollie Wilcox, Bruce Carmichael and defenceman Fred Hucul each scored once. Ron Goodwin spoiled Victoria's shutout hopes with a late, third-period goal.

Leafs wrap up their exhibition schedule in Trail tonight, facing the amateur Smoke Eaters, then return to Victoria for Saturday's WHL opener against Oakland Seals.

CLARK HUSTLES

Minus the services of Andy Hebenton, Mike Labadie and Mike Laughton, the Leafs got their best services out of rookie Neil Clark and the line of Marcetta-Bob Barlow-Carmichael.

Carmichael replaced Hebenton on Leafs' top-producing unit, and seemed completely at home with Marcetta and Barlow. Clark was a going concern all night.

The Leafs drew eight of the game's 10 minor penalties, but had little difficulty in killing them. Both of Spokane's penalties were costly, with first Hucul and then Carmichael scoring only moments after Leafs trotted out their power play.

First Period:
1. Victoria, Marcetta (unassisted) 13:31.
Penalties: Shvetz (V) 10:11.
Second Period:
2. Victoria, Jankowski (Redahl, Parenteau) 2:25.
3. Victoria, Wilcox (F. Hucul) 11:54.

Soviet Trotters Need More Time

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Yonkers Raceway has postponed its $100,000 United Nations Trot to Oct. 18, from Saturday.

The change was made after Yebgeniy Dolmatov, director of the two Russian representatives, requested extra time for the Soviet horses to prepare for the 1½-mile race. His trotters—Apex Hanover and Osman—arrived Tuesday.

Wright, Keating Dominate Parade

Mrs. V. Wright and Mrs. P. Keating dominated the parade for the prizes as Victoria West Lawn Bowling Club members wrapped up their season at a trophy-presentation night.

Each shared in three awards.

Trophy-winners in the men's section included Archie Findlay, E. Stott, J. McGregor, J. Wright, C. Dolstra, G. Timothy, E. Wakefield, V. Wright, F. Harris, N. Shearing, H. Atkins, P. Perrins, N. Findlay, P. Hawes, D. Perrin, and A. McConachy.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Leading off 1966-67 Bowler-of-the-Week competition sponsored by The Daily Times is Myrt Martin. Bowling in Mixed Classic League at Gibson's, she tops women's fivepin division with 257-310-272—839 series.

Hayhurst Quartet Connects

A rink skipped by Steve Hayhurst picked off top honors in the annual Thanksgiving mixed bonspiel, the opening event of the Victoria Curling Club's season.

The Hayhurst quartet climaxed an undefeated march in the five-event 'spiel by defeating Ray Dagg 11-8 in the "A" event final. One up coming home and with last-rock advantage, Hayhurst clinched victory by counting two in the last end.

Supporting Hayhurst were third Flora Martin, second Geoff Martin and lead Sadie Campbell.

Keith Dagg's Victoria entry picked off the "B" event by defeating clubmate Glen Coffey. Esquimalt's Clarence Dobbyn won "C" event; Glen Robertson of Victoria took the "D" event, and Dave Johnston, former Burnaby curler now living in Victoria, won the "E" prize.

Semifinal and final results:
"A" Event—Steve Hayhurst (V) def. Ray Dagg (V); semifinals—Hayhurst def. Dick Pick (V), Dagg def. Keith MacKenzie (V).
"B" Event—Keith Dagg (V) def. Glen Coffey (V); semifinals—Dagg def. A. Magnusson (Port Alberni), Coffey def. Sam Snobelen (Allan's).
"C" Event—Clarence Dobbyn (Esquimalt) def. Lyle Gordon (E); semifinals—Dobbyn def. W. T. Brown (E), Gordon def. Pete Holbec (Uvic).
"D" Event—Glen Robertson (V) def. John Wishlow (V); semifinals—Robertson def. John Williams (V), Wishlow def. Bill Szabo (Mission).
"E" Event—Dave Johnston (V) def. M. Errington (Uvic); Johnston def. Gar Taylor (V), Errington def. Jack Smith (V).

Close Call For Oriole Batting Ace

BALTIMORE (CP) — Frank Robinson, Baltimore Orioles' star slugger, says team-mate Andy Etchebarren saved him from drowning at a late-season swimming party.

The near tragedy happened Aug. 22 at a private party given for the Orioles by Leonard F. Rück, a funeral director.

Robinson, a non-swimmer, said he jumped into the shallow end of the private pool to head off an expected dunking by other members of the team.

"I was jumping up and down when I slipped off into the deep end," Robinson said. "I went down a couple of times and kept yelling for help every time I surfaced. My wife thought I was kidding and I guess everybody else did too."

When Robinson stayed beneath the surface for an extended period, Baltimore's rookie catcher jumped in and grabbed his teammate, who later won the triple crown and led the Orioles to their first American League pennant and World Series victory.

"I thought he was kidding at first," Etchebarren said. "But then I decided it was time to do something. When I reached Frank he was just off the bottom and couldn't move up."

BOSTON STALWART

GLASGOW (Reuters) — The Hartford, Conn., team of the new U.S. National Professional Soccer League has signed Douglas Millward, manager of the Scottish St. Mirren club, as coach, it was announced Tuesday night.

Millward, 34, is the third Briton hired by Hartford in recent weeks.

He signed a two-year contract at an estimated $12,600 a year, and will start looking for players at once.

The St. Mirren club is in the Scottish first division.

Other Britons signed by Hartford are Clive Toye, well-known London journalist, who took a public relations post with the new team, and John Smith, secretary of England's Queens Park Rangers, signed for an administration position.

San Diego Gulls of the Western League, getting goals from Jack Braun, Johnny MacMillan, Len Haley, Gord Wilkie, Warren Hynes, Al Nicholson and Fred Hills, had little difficulty in pelting an amateur Chilliwack team 7-0 Tuesday . . . San Diego moves to Vancouver Friday to help raise the curtain on the 1966-67 WHL season . . . At Boston, New York Rangers continued their pre-season mastery over the Bruins by defeating Boston 3-1 on goals by Bernie Geoffrion, Billy Hicke and Earl Ingarfield . . . Gilles Marotte scored Boston's lone goal . . . The 35-year-old Geoffrion suffered a mild concussion in the third period after a collision with teammate Phil Goyette . . . The injury was not serious . . .

Quebec Aces have suspended centre Ed Hoekstra for failing to report . . . Montreal Canadiens have assigned defenceman Noel Price and goalie Gary Bauman to Quebec . . . Both were standouts in Canadiens' pre-season workouts . . . Portland Buckaroos have returned winger Willie O'Ree to Los Angeles Blades . . . Bucks claim O'Ree's eyesight is "below par for a hockey player" . . . O'Ree went to Portland in a deal for goalie Dave Kelly and Tom McVie . . . McVie, after a brief holdout, has decided to report to the Blades . . . But with the O'Ree complication the deal now hangs in the air.

Mets Waiving Veteran Pair

NEW YORK (AP) — Waivers have been requested on shortstop Roy McMillan and pitcher Bob Friend by the New York Mets.

However, McMillan has been invited to spring training next February when it will be determined whether he has recovered from a shoulder operation he underwent last month. If he is unable to play, the Mets said, McMillan, 36, will be given another job in the organization.

Friend, 35, obtained from New York Yankees last June, posted a 5-8 record for the Mets.

". . . And next time you go pheasant hunting don't take along quite so much beer."

Hall's People Sweep Inlet

Anglers operating from the "bottom" of Saanich Inlet swept major prizes in the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association's monthly prize list.

Angler-of-the-month was Paul Cocco, who did it by landing a 38-pound, six-ounce spring salmon. Mrs. L. Nelson topped the ladies with a 22-pounder while junior honors went to Pete Ekstrom, with a 7¾-pounder.

All three fish out of Hall's Boathouse.

Hidden-weight winners were Jim Fulton, Tony Rosin, E. Jarvis and Dorothy Lockhart.

Vic High's Set For Homecoming

Friday will be homecoming time at Victoria High.

And, as always, the accent will be on sports events.

Organizer Dave Price is holding the door open for the return of all alumni to a program that starts at 4 p.m. and winds up with an evening dance.

Grass hockey, soccer, basketball and a cross-country race make up the sports events that, in the main, will pit grads against "the current crop."

The grass hockey and soccer matches start at 4 p.m. The cross-country entrants take off a half-hour later, and the basketball game wraps up the athletics at 7 p.m.

Grads wishing to participate in any of the events are asked to contact Price before Friday.

Former grads expected to participate in the sports events include Marty Taylor, Ron Stubbings, Oscar Valdal, Ranjit and Nirmal Dillon, John Cliff, John Valiant, Drew Schroder, Barney Spaven, Don Frampton, Al Glover, Jack Magi, Doug Bainbridge and Rod Fields.

Subjects Become Objects

LONDON (Reuters) — Seven out of 10 Britons are in favor of royalty, though the number of republicans in Britain is increasing, a survey published here disclosed today.

The figure showed that 16 per cent of the population, six per cent more than in 1960, now would vote for a republic.

London businessman Leonnard Harris, who commissioned the survey among 3,000 people for his book, Long to Reign Over Us?, said the main reason given was that royalty was too expensive. Among royalists was a strong opinion that the Royal Family must work and be seen "to earn their keep."

Prince Philip headed the personal popularity poll with 31 per cent of votes compared with the Queen's 28 per cent.

Prince Philip is praised for his dislike of fuss and ceremony.

IMPAIRED BY COFFEE NEW DRIVING PERIL?

BOSTON (AP)—Dr. Dale Friend, of the Massachusetts Medical Society, told the New England highway traffic safety conference Tuesday that a person who drinks 8 to 12 cups of coffee a day is a potential road hazard. "Excessive use of coffee tends to make many people jumpy, jittery and dizzy and can become a factor in highway accidents," he said.

Trading Stamps Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal private member's bill to ban trading stamps in supermarkets was introduced in the Commons Tuesday. Efforts to have it dealt with quickly were scuttled by other Liberal MPs.

Milton Klein (L — Montreal Cartier), sponsor of the bill, won Liberal applause as he said trading stamps eliminate competition, result in captive customers and affect food costs.

Frank Howard (NDP — Skeena) caught the Liberal benches off balance by suggesting the bill be given priority over 18 now on the order paper.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux said it might be difficult to get unanimous consent for the move.

There were several nays from government benches when he asked for reaction.

Mr. Howard then introduced a similar bill that he said goes beyond Mr. Kein's.

None of the 28 bills that have come up for second reading since last January have passage.

WOMEN TAKING PILLS ARE MUCH HEALTHIER

LONDON (Reuters)—Women taking contraceptive pills have a better chance than others of staying healthy, three London research scientists say.

The three doctors, from London's King's College anatomy department, reported today that contraceptive pills which increase the amount of estrogen—one of the natural female hormones—help mobilize the body's mechanisms against disease.

Canadians Not Involved in German Executions

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer told the Commons Tuesday he is satisfied there is no basis to charges that Canadian officers were involved in the execution of two German deserters by their own forces a few days after the end of the Second World War.

He said a defence department investigation satisfied him that the charges, raised by the German magazine Der Spiegel, are "completely without foundation."

The magazine said two sailors were found guilty by a German court martial approved by the Canadians and were shot with Canadian rifles.

Mr. Hellyer did not deny that Canadian officers knew about the executions, which Der Spiegel claimed took place in The Netherlands nine days after the Allies forbade summary military tribunals. Nor did he clarify who supplied the rifles used.

But he said the men shot were not prisoners of war. They were disarmed troops and the German commander was responsible for their discipline.

"At this juncture, it does not appear that there were any restrictions placed upon the Germans as to carrying out their normal legal processes."

Restrictions on German disciplinary procedures were contained in a military law which was not "promulgated to the headquarters of the 1st Canadian Army" until after the executions.

Mr. Hellyer also rejected what he called an allegation by one of Der Spiegel's sources of information that the trial and execution had been Canadian-inspired.

Theft Ring Nabbed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said Tuesday they rounded up a juvenile theft ring Saturday that has hit every major department store in the city. Police said the five-member gang ranged in age from 14 to 16 years.

The Old Fogey Finds Funspot

By GORDON RITCHIE

He'd been awake since early morning sitting on the edge of his bed staring out through the dirty window at the garbage-littered alley below.

It was 13 years now since he retired. Thirteen years in which most of his old friends had passed away or moved away to live with their children or gone into a rest home or hospital with no hope of every coming out again.

And when you're almost 80 and can't get about as much as you used to it's hard to find new friends to replace the ones you've lost.

●

Like Harry who used to be good for a game of chess or a few hands of poker every now and then until he dropped out of your life a few months ago.

You really ought to try and find out what happened to Harry, he thought. He might need some help or be in hospital.

Or maybe he found some other friends and left you alone, he thought sadly, just as a familiar knock sounded at the rickety old door with the paint peeling off the panels.

The door opened before he could get up to answer and a craggy weatherbeaten old face peered in and there was Harry looking as spry as ever.

●

But something was different. He had a mischievous glint in his eye. Come on you old fogey, Harry said. You're not going to spend all day in here.

And he went along because Harry like to play these little games and pretend they were setting out on a great adventure so he followed him down the creaking stairs and waited with him at the bus stop trying not to ask the questions Harry was dying for him to ask.

They got off the bus near the Bay and he followed Harry down Fisgard Street. We're not going to the police court he hoped where the dreary old men who can't find anything to do sit for hours and hours watching the passing parade of others' misery.

But they went on by the court and the police station to a bright new building which had a ramp leading up to the front door and a sign saying senior citizens' activity centre which Harry said meant this was the home of Silver Threads, an agency of the Community Chest.

And he pulled back saying come on Harry, you know I don't want to get mixed up in anything like this where bright young social workers make you play the games they think you want to play with old people 90 or so and herd you around like sheep as if you hadn't been through the Depression before they were even born — and pretend to be so nice and considerate but you know they think you're almost dead and not really a person.

●

Don't be stupid my friend, Harry said, and he took him by the arm and led him into the brightly-lit hall where all sorts of people, some old but some his own age, were milling around a desk.

And the young grey-haired woman behind the cafeteria-type table told him it would cost a dollar to register for a whole year.

Preposterous, Harry snorted, it should be a lot more and the lady smiled and said yes, a lot of the members had complained and said they wanted to pay more and the membership fee was going to be raised next year to $2 so they didn't need quite so much from the Community Chest which pays the cost of keeping the centre running.

And Harry said it's the best money you ever spent but he didn't have a dollar in his pocket so Harry offered to lend him the dollar but he wouldn't take and the lady said it's all right you can pay us later.

And they followed a group of people into a lounge filled with talk and laughter and people playing cards and checkers and chess.

So this is where you've been the past few weeks he said as Harry told him about the great stamp club they had and one man had a collection worth thousands of dollars he wouldn't sell for anything and about the films and concerts and the library and the choir and the dances and the carpentry shop and all the other activities made to order for the 4,300 member of the Silver Threads.

And Harry seemed to know his way around. They joined in a game of cards with two nice laides but just before they sat down Harry said you know the nicest thing about this place? They treat you like a person.

Canada's Appeal Backed by Brown

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — British Foreign Secretary George Brown came out "in support Tuesday of a Canadian appeal to the United Nations General Assembly to concentrate on building up an effective peacekeeping capability.

In a speech outling Britain's attitudes on major world questions, Brown expressed regret that a special 33-country committee, set up by the assembly last year in an effort to resolve legal and financial disputes about UN peacekeeping, has failed to reach any conclusions.

"Here the United Nations is not doing its job," Brown said.

"It has failed to provide the sinews of peace."

He said "the wise words" of Canada's External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, in a speech to the assembly Sept. 23, indicated the direction to be followed.

Martin dealt at length, and in some anger, with the peacekeeping problem.

"We have had a year to think things over," he said. "Surley it is time that we moved to resolve this problem."

ASKED STUDIES

In his speech, Canada called for studies on the means of improving preparations for peacekeeping operations; a Security Council look at the possibility of negotiationg agreements with member countries for provision of military forces and facilities; member countries to keep the secretary-general informed of what help they are prepared to provide; and the sharing of heavy peacekeeping costs in accordance with certain principles rather than on an arbitrary basis.

Brown said in his speech Tuesday the Canadian approach is "simple common sense and prudence."

The British foreign secretary said it is understandable that member countries pursue what they consider their own national interests, "but there has so far been little or no inclination on the part of member states to recognize that their national interest, is in fact the strengthening of this organizations."

If the UN's capability for keeping peace and settling disputes could be built up, this would mean an immediate strengthening of the world organization and improvement in the prospects for world peace.

PEARSON AMUSED BY COLLEAGUES' ANTICS

They're Elbowing Gently And Glad-Handing Briskly

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — If there was any doubt about Prime Minister Pearson's support as leader it was quickly dispelled by the ovations which greeted him at the national Liberal convention here.

But all Liberals are aware that Mr. Pearson will be stepping down soon — probably before the next election — and with this in mind many would-be successors were much in evidence at the conference.

They were moving about the crowds, circulating, smiling and shaking hands. They want to become better known to the rank and file of the Liberal party before Mr. Pearson makes any announcement in the next year or two that he has decided to retire.

When that time comes it will be too late to start campaigning.

Greene Impresses

A man who made a favorable impression on western Liberal delegates, especially those from the farming areas, was Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene. He spoke Monday night during discussion of agriculture resolutions and on all sides could be heard surprised reactions indicating that Mr. Greene is a "comer."

Very much in action at the conference is Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp. He is regarded as one of the front-runners — when it comes — in the leadership race.

Nova Scotia Suite

Mr. Sharp has a suite of rooms. He has taken a prominent role in the discussions especially in defending the government's action in postponing medicare's effective date to July 1, 1968. His forthright defence has carried weight and impressed many of the delegates.

Health and Welfare Minister Allan MacEachen, known to be diametrically opposed to Mr. Sharp's position on the medicare postponement, has also been very much in evidence at the conference.

He too has a suite of rooms known as the "Nova Scotia Suite." He held a big party on the eve of the opening of the conference — a fact that annoyed others who had agreed to forgo such entertaining in order to avoid any appearance of a leadership race.

Trade Minister Robert Winters has been moving in and out of the "workshop" discussions. He has been glad-handing delegates throughout the hotel. He too is regarded as one of those who will be in the running eventually when the time comes to select a new Liberal leader.

Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, another strong leadership candidate, has been actively circulating among the meetings. He has turned on his well-known charm. While he has been out in front making himself available and known to every Liberal he could approach, his executive assistants, headed by William Lee, have been moving around behind the scenes talking up the merits of the integration and unification of the services. Mr. Hellyer also has a suite of rooms.

Playing Low Key

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, another leadership candidate, is playing it in low key. The public opinion polls have named him frequently as the man most likely to succeed Mr. Pearson. But it will be Liberal delegates to the convention that make the choice. Mr. Martin is at the conference. But he does not appear to be campaigning. He is already well known, and popular.

John Turner, minister without portfolio, and Manpower Minister Jean Marchand are very much in evidence. They are dark horses.

Mtantime Prime Minister Pearson is amused over the antics and activities of his cabinet colleagues.

He does not resent their obvious ambitions. In fact he appears to welcome it as a healthy sign for the Liberal party.

BISHOPS WON'T FIGHT CONTRACEPTIVE SALES

OTTAWA (CP)—The Roman Catholic bishops of Canada said Tuesday they would not oppose the sale and advertising of contraceptives if there are safeguards against irresponsible advertising and to protect personal freedom.

In a brief to the Commons committee on health and welfare, the bishops added they could easily envisage active co-operation and even leadership by lay Roman Catholics to change a law which now "they might judge to be harmful to public order and the common good".

All Because Of $1.20 Turnip!

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. June O'Reilly of Toronto, who sent a gift-wrapped turnip to Prime Minister Pearson earlier this year in protest of high food costs, has received a reply from Mr. Pearson.

The Toronto housewife became angry when she had to pay $1.20 for the turnip.

Mr. Pearson referred to an enclosed statement he sent along with the letter that deals with "inflationary pressures that arise out of our present prosperity and rising prices."

He also said that while governments have a significant role to play in inflation, so do all Canadians.

ADVISES THRIFT

"We must all show a willingness to save instead of spending, to search for substitutes and to buy at the lowest possible prices. Higher prices cannot continue to exist unless someone is willing to pay them.

"This in turn has an effect on those essentials which have to be purchased whatever the prices."

Mr. Pearson said he sent a copy of Mrs. O'Reilly's letter to the minister of finance and the latter told him the total demands being placed upon the Canadian economy have exceeded the production which Canadians are able to achieve.

"It was against this background that the federal government moved to restrain excessive demands being placed on the economy, initially a year ago, with respect to the construction industry, and in a more general way in the budget brought down in March this year."

Manslaughter Verdict Given in Hotel Death

VANCOUVER (CP)—An assize court jury Tuesday found Jacques Belleau guilty on a reduced charge of manslaughter in the May 29th strangulation death of Katherine Leflar.

Belleau was remanded for sentence after the verdict was announced.

Police witnesses said Belleau admitted beating and kicking Miss Leflar in an eastern Vancouver hotel room. They said also that he claimed the woman had tried to rob him.

Strike Curbs Major Worry Of U.S. Labor

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor in the United States, preparing for a tumultuous year of big wage demands in 1967, is wary that Congress may seek the first law in 20 years to limit strikes.

Broad hints from congressional and government sources appear to confirm the possibility of an attempt at the first new strike law since the 1946 Taft-Hartley Act.

Also overshadowing big contract bargaining covering more than 2,000,000 workers will be President Johnson's search for new ways to control inflation.

Labor's worries stem from the recent 43-day airlines strike. Union leaders viewed the settlement as a major victory, but it smashed the White House guideline that sought to hold wage increases to 3.2 per cent a year.

The wage boosts of between five and eight per cent stirred deep concern about inflation and raised loud cries for permanent legislation to deal with strikes.

Senator Wayne Morse (Dem. Ore.) broke a long, close association with organized labor by introducing a bill to halt the strike. Congress never passed it, but now Morse predicts a 50-50 chance in the next Congress for "a new emergency disputes law."

FORESEES ARBITRATION

Morse said it will probably take the form of compulsory arbitration of strikes that threaten the national interest.

James J. Reynolds, assistant secretary of labor who helped settle the airlines strike, says:

"These strikes that have such an impact on the public comfort and the public interest will have to be shortened or will have to avoided."

While organized labor rejoiced in the death of the 3.2-per-cent wage guide, some union leaders see the possibility of wage-price controls if Johnson fails in efforts to cool off inflationary pressures. President George Meany of the AFL-CIO is said to be one of these.

Labor spokesmen say they don't think fear of strike legislation or wage controls will dampen big labor contract demands.

TO SET MINIMUM

Unions are virtually certain to consider five per cent a minimum demand, now that the 3.2 guide is dead.

But unless the inflationary heat is removed from the economy, one well placed labor source predicts the strong possibility of a recession.

Nevertheless, labor leaders show no signs of softening their wage demands next year. An AFL-CIO spokesman said the inflation is in one area—interest rates and profits.

AGREE IN OPPOSITION

Big labor and big business find themselves generally agreed in opposing government interference in labor-management disputes.

The Chambers of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers echoed the AFL-CIO in denouncing hard-and-fast ecomomic guidelines on wages and prices.

The Chamber of Commerce also agrees with labor that high wages — the chamber also applies this to prices — are the result and not the cause of inflation that has pushed up the cost of living more than two per cent this year.

But labor and business split sharply over the causes of inflation — labor blaming the special business investment tax credit and high interest rates, while business charges it up to federal "overspending."

The labor federation believes the country can afford both rising Viet Nam War costs and President Johnson's Great Society programs. But Dr. Carl H. Madden, Chamber of Commerce economist, urged sharp cuts in non-defence federal spending to ease inflationary pressures.

ASKED RESTRAINT

Johnson's latest move to halt inflation embraces portions of both concepts, but the president also called for wage-price restraint by labor and management.

Johnson proposed that Congress suspend a seven per cent business investment tax credit until Jan. 1, 1968; urged the independent federal reserve board to recognize a need for lower interest rates, and promised spending cuts in low priority federal programs.

Senator Morse says union leaders are risking wage-price controls in pushing for big wage increases. But compulsory arbitration, the senator says, would be drastic medicine that would hurt both labor and management.

COULD BE PLATFORM

Business generally opposes compulsory arbitration because it often results in wage settlements at management's top offer and unions dislike it because it limits their freedom of action.

But the airlines case could be the platform for a move in the next Congress for a law to limit strikes in which the public interest is involved.

Labor spokesmen believe the November elections will determine whether a move in Congress may be made. They fear if Republicans make big gains, unions may find themselves in a bitter battle such as the one that led to the 1946 Taft-Hartley Act, under which strikes affecting the national interest may be halted by court order for 80 days.

TARGET: 'BABY TRAFFIC'

ATHENS (Reuters) — The Greek government has moved to crack down on a lucrative racket in which Greek babies have been illegally sold and smuggled out of the country for adoption abroad.

Parliament passed a bill tightening up adoption procedures in an effort to curb the "baby traffic" while still permitting legal adoption practices.

Justice Minister Constatine Stefanakis said the new legislation is aimed at ensuring "adequate control and safeguards" with respect to the babies' foster parents.

The "baby traffic" was uncovered when mothers complained in court that their babies were taken away to be delivered to unknown destinations.

Last year, the head of a childrens' hospital in Salonika, northern Greece, was sentenced to four years in prision for illegally selling babies. A doctor and the hospital's chief midwife were also convicted.

It was later found that most of the disappearing babies were being sent abroad, mainly to the United States.

Poverty and the lure of a fat fee to help the remaining children in the family were the main causes prompting parents to give away their babies to agents in Athens and other major centres.

KOOTENAY TWILIGHT

She Dreams a Bit When the Geese Fly

By ELIZABETH FORBES

At one time during my recent holiday I stood on the shore of a small lake in the Kootenays.

It was the twilight time. A faint haze turned the surrounding mountains a misted blue.

With me was a friend of many years.

Behind us stretched an orchard my friend and her husband farmed together. Now she is running it alone.

Forbes

The last of the apples had just been picked. She had supervised the picking herself. She had even climbed the ladders to help speed up the work while the precious hours of autumn sunshine lasted.

Now it was done. The orchard was deserted. Nothing was left on the trees but a few culls.

My friend was tired. Her usually well-combed grey hair was standing in wisps about her head. Her brown face was streaked with dust and moisture. Her blue shirt had finger marks across the front and her dungarees were ripped and frayed at the cuffs.

Suddenly from across the lake there came a sound. It was garbled, throaty and yet with a quality that made us raise our heads and turn our eyes.

As we watched a flock of wild geese came toward us in wedge formation against the twilight sky.

They drifted at an angle across our corner of the lake, following their leaders on the long journey to winter quarters in the south.

The tired droop of my friend's shoulders straightened as she watched. Her eyes held to the beating wings until they had faded in the distance.

This is a woman who was born in the Kootenays, grew up, went to school and was married there.

In her adult life she has stayed close to the orchard. It is very seldom that she has left even to come out to the Pacific Coast.

There have been no long trips for her except through the books about other lands that spill out from shelves at either side of the huge stone fireplace.

Yet, when she turned back to me there was the look of far places in her eyes.

"When I see the geese flying like that I have the feeling of being airborne with them," she said softly.

As we walked back up the rise toward the house she said that no matter how well adjusted a woman may be to her mode of living, there are times when she would go wandering if she could.

★ ★ ★

It is some small happening, like the wing beat of the wild geese, that gives life to this longing and for an infinitesimal space in time blots out the immediate surroundings and brings far horizons very near.

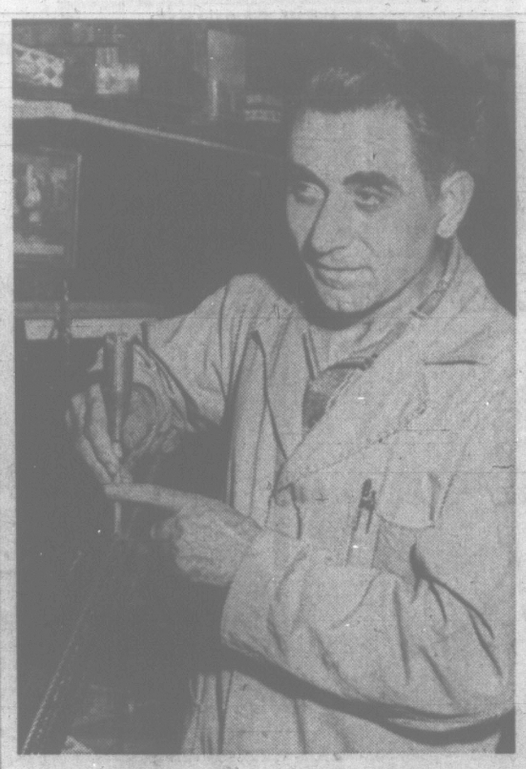

"It isn't that we are not content in our own special niches," she reasoned.

"In fact, I don't believe I'd actually want to go off and leave my own people or this place for long. It's just that when the night winds stir the trees . . . and the geese fly . . . I dream a bit!"

Then, so quietly I could hardly hear, she quoted from a poem she loves and remembers:

"Every woman, when the wild geese cry,
In the Fall,
Watches with a furtive, wistful eye,
Their swift arrow winging in the sky—
Hears the call!
"When ships go out . . . when seagulls rise . . .
When winds blow . . .
When the crying arrow southward flies . . .
If you watch them—if you watch their eyes—
You will know!
"Every woman is a wild, free thing
Deep inside!
Every woman hears the spaces sing,
Every woman would go wandering—
Far and wide!"

Somewhere in the dark that was now around us a wild bird cried. My friend listened, sighed . . . then turned resolutely toward the light and warmth of her comfortable home.

EUGENE CAMANDONA . . . the happy restorer

He's Breathing Life Into a Dying Business

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Eugene Camandona, 554 Elkwood, is an artiste Francais from Nice . . . but not the kind who paints or sculpts.

He is a restorer of antique furniture, a highly specialized skill fast dying in North America.

His charming wife Alice is also from Nice and equally talented. She is a former ballet dancer.

Both were French partisans in the Second World War.

At his 546 Johnson Street Workshop, the 45-year-old artist explained some of the reasons the repair of antique furniture is a dying business.

"It's too time consuming for this day and age," he said. "The work has to be done all by hand — the damaged marquetry or carvings. Cost of repairs would be exorbitant if it was based on hours of labor involved."

"But I like this work. It gives me pleasure to restore the splendid furniture of past centuries to its original beauty. They will never make any more like it. It would be too expensive."

Since coming to Victoria 14 years ago many Victorians have discovered he can work marvels on antique furniture thought to be beyond repair. He has restored 17th and 18th century chairs, tables and cabinets worth thousands of dollars.

He prepares his own French polish — a formula handed down by his family — for finishing his work. He imports some materials from England and Europe. They can be costly. A special gum sells at $12 an ounce.

"Antique furniture is a good investment," he said. "It never loses its value. But more important it is a work of art."

The son of Nice antique dealer, Mr. Camandona acquired a wide knowledge of the arts at an early age. He has one brother — a restorer of paintings for Prince Ranier of Monaco.

During the Second World War, he and his wife (they were not married then) helped to hide Jewish people from their Nazi persecutors. The penalty for harboring a Jew was the firing squad.

Alice ended up in a concentration camp for her partisan activities.

Mr. Camandona narrowly escaped death at Nice when a U.S. bomber mistook its target and dropped its load on his apartment building. He was hauled from the debris with head injuries.

Later he was sent to a German labor camp.

"La guerre cest terrible," said Mrs. Camandona in French.

Then she added in English: "There's nothing romantic about war . . . people haunted day and night, starvation, brutalities . . . I hope it never happens here."

Their formula for health and happiness is keep busy and enjoy things of beauty while you live.

"If young people today would spend less money and time on their cars and more on acquiring knowledge and learning to do things with their hands, they would be far happier," said Mrs. Camandona.

Mysterious Blindness Hits Eskimos

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A three-year medical study by British physician Dr. Arnold Freedman has shown 90 per cent of Eskimo men in Labrador begin to go blind at the age of 40 because of a mysterious disease, the cause of which is unknown.

The medical post says Dr. Freedman, working under the sponsorship of the International Grenfell Association, the Newfoundland Health Department and the E. A. Baker Foundation, gathered his findings from headquarters set up in 1963 at Happy Valley, Labrador.

They show most Eskimo men contract the disease, except those who hold indoor jobs. It was first believed to be related to snowblindness, but this theory was later disproved.

Known as Labrador keratopathy, the ailment causes a film to form at the edge of the eye and advance with age across the eye until the sufferer can only count the fingers on his hand by holding it up against a strong sun.

AFTER RIFLE FAILED TO FIRE

Gunman Choked Unconscious

NANAIMO (CP)—A former Ladysmith man told an Assize Court jury Tuesday that he had choked a man into unconsciousness after a rifle pointed by the man failed to fire.

Robert Victor Warren, 23, of Vancouver, testified at the trial of Ronald Boudot, 27, of Ladysmith, charged with attempted murder, possession of an offensive weapon and breaking and entering last New Year's Day.

* * *

Warren said he went to the home of Boudot's estranged wife and was sitting at a table in the apartment when Boudot smashed a window and pointed a rifle at him. He said Boudot attempted to fire but the rifle did not fire. He said Boudot then smashed the window more and reached in to unlock the door.

Warren said he disarmed Boudot in a struggle, choked him into unconsciousness and then took 10 bullets from the rifle.

The trial continues.

ISLAND DIGEST

'GAS, LEMONADE, OIL?'

Exploration Permit Given At Maple Bay

MAPLE BAY — Realtor Nat Staples has been granted an oil and gas exploration permit for 20,000 acres at Maple Bay.

Mr. Staples last week accidentally ignited a flammable liquid when digging a ditch in front of his waterfront property.

Samples are being tested to see if he has struck a source of oil or natural gas.

His lawyer, Jack Davie, said today the provincial government permit gives Mr. Staples the right to make siesmograph and drilling exploration.

FIRST RIGHT

It also gives him the first right to apply for an oil lease and a permit to drill.

However, Mr. Davie said: "It does not mean we can set up an oil rig on the shore of Maple Bay."

Mr. Davie said geololgically it seems the heart of Maple Bay is the most likely source of oil or natural gas in the area.

Apparently Maple Bay village was part of a landlocked sea until Salt Spring fell away from the rest of Vancouver Island.

Mr. Davie said: "These are places where one can best expect to find oil or gas."

Mr. Staples said this morning: "The first thing I want is to find out what the stuff is and clear the whole mess up.

GET RID OF SMELL

"Our main concern at present is to get rid of the heavy smell and we are going to cover up the ditch."

He said: "I want to know too if it is swamp gas, lemonade or oil."

Geologists from two major companies were in the Maple Bay area at the weekend taking samples for analysis.

Canadian Pacific Oil and Gas Co. is also investigating.

J. M. Taylor, general manager of the CPR subsidiary, said Tuesday they owned the onshore oil and gas right in the area. He was uncertain who owns the offshore rights.

7,000 ACRES

Ken Blakey of the provincial petroleum and natural gas branch said Mr. Staples might obtain rights to 7,000 or 8,000 of the acres he has filed on. The rest is probably freehold.

The property Mr. Staples wishes to obtain rights on is unoccupied Crown lands but the crown owns no mineral rights other than silver and gold.

Mr. Blakey said the government will not act until a check is made of the status of the property involved.

V.I. BRIEFS

Mighty Boost For Building At N. Cowichan

NORTH COWICHAN — Building permits issued in North Cowichan received a $934,500 boost in September.

This is the cost of the second stage in constucting a second newsprint mill at the B.C. Forest Products Ltd. Crofton complex.

The September total was $1,072,050 and the total for the year so far is $2,981,113.

The nine-month total in 1965 was $5,426,181.

* * *

CHEMAINUS — A high-speed chase through the centre of Chemainus and down the Trans-Canada Highway Monday ended in court for Ralph Edward Williams, Adelaide Street, Crofton.

He pleaded guilty to impaired and dangerous driving.

Williams was fined a total of $350 and his driver's licence was suspended for three months.

Cpl. Frank Johnson, RCMP, told the court Williams had to be chased at speeds up to 85 miles an hour before being stopped.

* * *

TEXADA ISLAND — The island's $3,950 centennial recreation area has been approved by the federal and provincial governments which will share in the cost of the development.

* * *

NANAIMO — The city's population has increased by 874 to 14,969 since the last census in 1961.

Population estimates for the suburban areas is 20,000.

* * *

COURTENAY — A spokesman for Crown Zellerbach Ltd., said Tuesday the company has no immediate plans to log in the Paradise Meadows area of the Courtenay loggink division.

* * *

COURTENAY — Comox district teachers have protested the hiring of a layman as the school district's adult education director.

The new director is Blair O. Mayne, a recently retired RCAF officer.

Hunters Walk Out

NANAIMO—Wellington hunters Lorne Bonel, 22, and Tom Ferguson, 17, walked out of the bush Tuesday after being reported missing Monday when they failed to return from a hunting trip in the Nanaimo Lake area.

Music Program Tonight At Cathedral

A program of music for organ, trumpets and choirs will be presented in St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral tonight at 8:15.

Taking part will be cathedral organist Jack Lenaghan, trumpeters Michael and Robert Gill and William Sullivan and the choirs of St. Andrew's and St. Patrick's, Oak Bay.

Albert Richter will be guest conductor.

STUDENTS DISCIPLINED

Works Boss Quits After Bus Dispute

Sooke School Board's wayward bus Tuesday led to the resignation of works superintendent William Holmes.

Mr. Holmes quit his job after a school board meeting at which delegation of parents complained about discipline on the school bus.

Already past the official retirement age, Mr. Holmes will leave at the end of the year.

The delegation was headed by Mrs. Francis Woodruff who claimed her children had been singled-out for discipline on the bus.

She said on one ocassion Mr. Holmes had ordered her son fro.a the bus and he was brought home by RCMP.

SPAT ON DRIVER

Other parents complained the bus driver had used bad language on one occasion.

They said he called a student a pig after the youth spat on him.

"There has always been trouble on the Spoke Road bus," said Mr. Holmes.

The board decided to ask the parents for written complaints of specific incidents and school principals will be asked for a report on school bus discipline.

LAWYER LEVELS CHARGE

'Improper Relationship' Between Board, Mine Firm

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Campbell River lawyer charged Tuesday there was an "improper relationship" between the provincial Pollution Control Board and Western Mines Ltd.

Anthony Sarich, representing the Campbell River Water District appealing a board decision granting the company permission to dump waste in Buttle Lake, said he could draw no other conclusion from dates on the permit.

Mr. Sarich made his charge before Mr. Justice Victor Dryer in B.C. Supreme Court.

He said the permit to dump mine waste into the Vancouver Island lake was issued Sept. 15. But a Western Mines plan attached to the permit of how waste would be distributed in the lake was dated Sept. 21.

Mr. Sarich argued that the Sept. 21 document should have been before the board before the decision was made.

Campbell River, which draws its water from the lake in Strathcona Park, is appealing granting of the permit on grounds that it was denied a hearing.

RODGERS MOVES TO TV

Richard Rodgers has been commissioned to write the musical score for a television version of Shaw's Androcles and the Lion.

Mr. Sarich was critical of the board on other grounds as well in that it based its decision on company evidence alone. He said Campbell River had asked by letter for a hearing but it was refused.

He suggested there was bias on the part of the board when it appeared to continue with the Western Mines application to assist the company in meeting a production deadline for its mine.

Western Mines proposals earlier this year to open the mine within the provincial park resulted in a storm of controversy at the last legislature and a change in the Parks Act to allow the company to go ahead.

Quaker Group Denies Ties With Viet Aid, U.S. Gov't

TORONTO (CP) — David Newlands, general secretary of the Canadian Friends service committee, denied Tuesday that his organization had been in contact with the U.S. treasury department concerning distribution of medical supplies in North and South Viet Nam, or about gaining access to U.S. prisoners of war in North Viet Nam.

A treasury department spokesman said in Washington Sturday that a Yale University Quakers group was being licensed to send up to $300 to a Canadian organization which would buy medical supplies and put them aboard a Russian freighter due to leave Montreal today.

He said the Canadian group told the department it was negotiating with North Viet Nam and the Viet Cong guerillas in South Viet Nam to have Quaker observers check on distribution of the supplies, and at the same time to get access to U.S. prisoners of war.

Mr. Newlands said:

"We have no intention of being a contact for the U.S. government in getting favorable treatment of U.S. prisoners of war in North Viet Nam unless we have a guarantee that we will have equal access to all prisoners of war in all parts of Viet Nam."

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, OCT. 12, 1966—PAGE 29

Arthur Mayse

These last three weeks, the Times has been listing me as on vacation. True, we did hook up our trailer and shove off for the Up-Island reaches, leaving our gleeful young with a freezer cargo of pizzas, chili and TV dinners.

But not to loaf; in fact we never worked harder.

Practically every day, we tramped at least two miles of freshet bar and stream bed in hip boots.

We tired our wrists with casting, and ocasionally were required to struggle with plump and saucy trout.

Evenings, we were pestered by salmon — heavy fall echos that cruised the saltchuck looking for a fight. It didn't seem to matter what lures happened to be attached to our lines: plugs, bucktails and homely Tom Macs, these pugnacious fish insisted on assaulting them.

That's how it went, and we're glad to be home again, with our fishing gear stowed and our trailer snugged down for the winter. Here, the work is easier.

Nor do our juniors seem displeased to have us back.

"Your know," said Ron, watching our Thanksgiving turkey emerge brown from the oven, "it won't bother me if I never eat another TV dinner in my life!"

★

Among the letters that turned up while I was away is one from Mrs. T. D. Grassick, who reports on what appears to be a flourishing juvenile racket.

"We have lived in a large garden apartment complex for over two years now," Mrs. Grassick writes, "and during that time, not only our family but many other tenants have been victimized by teen-age gangs which roam through here late at night, stealing whatever they can find.

"Returning home a little before midnight, my husband and I saw our oldest son's bike parked outside our apartment. In the morning it was gone."

That was the second family bicycle to disappear, and the next door neighbors, Mrs. Grassick reports, have also lost two.

"The police," she continues, are not able to do much, it seems .... I was told that a bunch of boys have been stealing bicycles, dismantling them, and then rebuilding them so that identification of any one bike would be impossible."

Since the police can't be everywhere at all times, it appears to me the answer here might be a private patrolman for the apartment complex ... either that or have young owners chain and padlock their two-wheelers to something reasonably solid overnight.

These expedients, however, don't answer the point Mrs. Grassick raises:

"The fact that we must now buy bike number three does not concern me as much as the knowledge that there must be a number of boys whose parents are indifferent to their whereabouts. Otherwise, how could they operate a secret workshop, or bring a bike home without a logical explanation?"

How, indeed?

As any serious horse-player will assure you, the Daily Racing Form with its fine-print breakdowns of past performance is required reading for those who frequent the tracks.

Unfortunately, horses can't read; and at Sandown these last few showery days, full many a beast that should have clipped off a winning race has disappointed the handicappers.

Last Saturday, with a two-spot wagered on a velvet nose, Win and I watched our carefully-studied derby choice turn in a performance that would shame a turtle. Close beside us at the rail stood a hearty enricher of the breed, around whose neck hung a pair of what looked to be high-powered binoculars.

These he unslung as the muddied mounts were led back to their stables.

Solemnly, he unscrewed one eye-piece of what still, to all outward appearances, seemed to be a mighty nice pair of binocs. Then, darn it he didn't tip them up and imbibe from them a long slug of whatever liquid consolation they held.

Refreshed, the fellow capped his cleverly-disguised flask and sauntered off, happier than any race-track loser has a right to be.

ONE OF ONLY TWO in Canada and only one in Victoria is this Lynx-Point Siamese cat owned by Mrs. Diane Evans, of 7199 Patricia Bay Highway. Sukianga Chui of Kisinana (her legal name) was raised in England by Mrs. Evans and brought to Victoria last year. She was then the first of her kind in Canada, but is now rivalled by Alvie's Tiki, owned by Mrs. Mary Maling, of Calgary. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

STAMP THE MAILER NOT THE 'PARCEL'

Tigers in the tank are one thing.

Kitties in the mailbox are another.

Which is why postman Howard Dufton pinched himself to make sure he wasn't cat-napping when he opened the main office box on Government Street today.

There, snuggled among the parcels was a female tabby kitten.

Since there was no forwarding address, Mr. Dufton did the only possible thing—he pussyfooted it down to SPCA headquarters.

Which just goes to prove: the feMAIL always gets through.

FREEDOM OF CITY

'Bob Mayhew Day' Set on Thursday

Victoria city council will suspend regular business Thursday as it pays honor to elder statesman Robert "Bob" W. Mayhew.

At 2 p.m. 180 guests, most of them close associates of Mr. Mayhew, will watch while Mayor A. W. Toone bestows the Freedom of the City on the distinguished politician and diplomat.

Senior alderman Geoffrey Edgelow will read the specially prepared tribute to the man who started his political career as a member of Oak Bay council in 1922.

It was the start of an illustrious march which took Mr. Mayhew through council ranks to a seat in parliament and eventually a place in the federal cabinet.

Mr. Mayhew first ran for parliament in 1937 and was elected on the Liberal ticket as Victoria's representative in Ottawa.

He held his parliamentary post until 1952 moving through the ranks as parliamentary secretary to the minister of finance and eventually to the post of minister of fisheries.

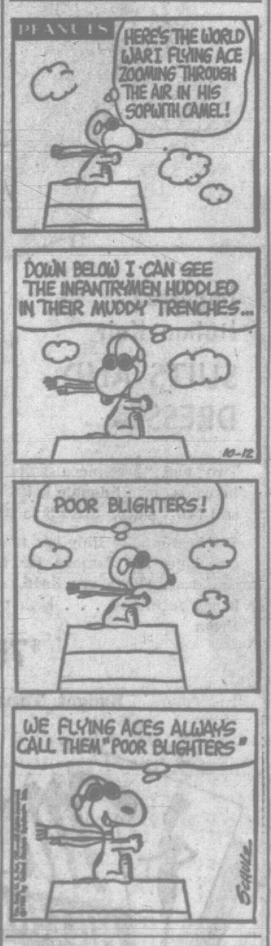

On retiring from the political arena Mr. Mayhew was appointed — at the age of 72 — Canada's ambassador to Japan.

86 THIS MONTH

Celebrating his 86th birthday this month Mr. Mayhew will be the seventh man in city history to be honored with the freedom of the city.

Remembered politically for many things, Mr. Mayhew lists the framing of the world famous Colombo Plan as one of the highlights of his political career.

He was a member of the original team which framed the blueprint for the plan which has poured millions of dollars in aid to Far Eastern countries.

Pipefitters Seek 12.5%; 35-Hour Week

Pipefitters at Victoria's two main shipyards are seeking a 12.5 per cent wage increase over two years and a 35-hour work week in current negotiations, a union spokesman said today.

The wage increase sought is just over 70 cents an hour on the present rate of $3.10. Other proposals include increases in annual vacation and statutory holiday day. The pipefitters now have a 40-hour week.

For the first time, the 22 union locals in three yards — Burrard in Vancouver and Victoria Machinery Depot and Yarrows here — are not bargaining together.

Five locals involving three unions are bargaining separately this time including the Victoria pipefitters.

The other 17 locals representing the majority of workers are bargaining together through the Joint Shipyard Conference.

The unions — including the big boilermakers unions in Victoria and Vancouver — are seeking a 65-cent wage increase and a 35-hour work week.

MEETING TODAY

The joint conference unions applied for a conciliation officer three weeks ago and the first meeting with the officer was scheduled for today.

The separate bargaining move stems from a dispute two years ago after all unions except one returned to work at the end of the 11-week strike.

Vancouver pipefitters held out for an extra 10 cents to match the higher rate paid to electricians and eventually won it.

HIGHER FOOD PRICES PREDICTED

City Truckers Knock Trailer Restrictions

Drop System Curb By Ferry Authority

By AB KENT
Times Business Writer

New freight trailer restrictions on British Columbia Ferries will lead to higher food prices for Vancouver Islanders, truckers predicted today.

Several shippers — who wished to remain anonymous — told the Times they feared higher freight rates will result from restrictions placed on the economical "drop trailer" system.

They were asked to comment on reports they are getting increasing pressure from the ferry authority.

"Increased freight rates are bound to lead to higher costs of consumer goods," said one. "Food is one of the items on which an immediate impact would be felt."

The ferry system recently reduced to a small quota the number of drop trailers freight firms are permitted to put aboard Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen ferries.

Some truckers feel the ferry authority is forcing them to ship truck and trailer together at a much higher cost. But Monty Aldous, ferry manager, denies this.

Savings in Fare, Wages, Space

The drop trailer is what has made B.C. Ferries the economical answer to overnight freight service from the Mainland.

Trucks drive the standard 40-foot trailers aboard ships at Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen terminals, unhitch and return to their point of origin, permitting the trailers to be picked up at the opposite terminal by other trucks.

The saving occurs in ferry charges and driver wages, besides cutting down on ferry space. Three additional automobiles can be carried for every two drop trailers that leave their trucks behind.

Standard charge for a drop trailer is $35, but when trucks are attached a different schedule of rates applies, based on weight and truck capacity.

The effect is an escalation of rates that could as much as double the cost of sending a truck-trailer unit by B.C. Ferries, plus the extra wages of a driver.

One trucker complained bitterly:

"When the government started the ferry service they went after the truckers ... They sent a representative around to us to beg us to use the new service. At that time we weren't using it because the rates were too high, but we negotiated with them."

Now, after the trucking firms have helped the ferry service over lean times, the authority wants to restrict the trucks, he said.

Never Catered to Freight Trucks

The ferry authority manager said it had never been policy to cater to freight trucks.

The authority was set up to handle passenger and private auto traffic, he said.

There is enough of this traffic without freight trucks, Mr. Aldous said.

He said the new restrictions were to cut down on the number of drop-trailers to make "more room for the motorist and avoid delays caused by trailer loadings.

"It was a time factor more than a money factor — and the inconvenience to the public," Mr. Aldous said.

Several shippers see the end of drop-trailers by the end of the year, or before the next summer sailing schedule takes effect.

The recently begun CPR freight ferry service is picking up more business as trailers are squeezed off the government service.

Asked whether he felt that was the intended effect, a shipper said:

"It is a mystery to me and many others in the industry just what is afoot. I was all for fighting it, but the die is cast."

Restrictions at Prime Times

A big stumbling block in the cross-Gulf service is the prime time at which restrictions are most felt.

To provide overnight service, carriers must collect and load shipments most of the day and rely on late afternoon and evening ferry trips when quotas are imposed.

The CPR service is on a one-a-day basis, making it hard for shippers to conform.

So far the ferry authority has turned a deaf ear to the suggestion that one or two ferries a day be scheduled for freight only.

This alternative would satisfy the shippers and provide high revenue for the authority because only a skelefon crew, no dining room staff, no stewards, pursers or other non-essentials would be required.

Mr. Aldous said peak traffic times would still be hard to predict and delays would result.

WAYNE TOMLINSON
. . . honest smile

CAR VICTIM'S WALLET FOUND BY YOUNGSTER

If you see this boy's picture in the paper again it will probably be the day he does something well, or wonderful or wise.

Wayne Tomlinson, 12, of 2855 Rockwell, was on his way to play cornet in the Salvation Army band Tuesday when he found a wallet with $68 in bills in it.

He saw by a card in the wallet that it belonged to a "retired lady" and took it straight to city police station.

The woman, Mrs. E. Gillingwater, is in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after being struck by a car Tuesday near where Wayne found the wallet.

Pair Charged After Four Cars, Power Pole Struck

A car driven amok through city streets hit four other cars and sideswiped a power pole in the space of four minutes Tuesday afternoon.

Shortly after 1 p.m. city police received calls that a wildly-driven vehicle had crashed into two cars going west on Bay near Fernwood.

Retreating from those collisions, the car hit a parked vehicle and a power pole.

Two minutes earlier it was reported to Saanich police the same car collided with another at Richmond and Emerson.

TWO FLED

Two men were seen leaving the car.

Later Tuesday, Robert McRae, 18, of Vancouver and James Erdman, 1156 May St. were charged by police.

McRae appeared in central court today and pleaded not guilty to two charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident, two charges of being a minor without insurance, a careless driving charge and a charge of assaulting a police officer.

Erdman pleaded not guilty to charges of being intoxicated in a public place and assaulting a police officer.

McRae was remanded on $250 bail to Monday, and Erdman on $200 bail for a week.

Also shortly after noon Tuesday a 10-year-old cyclist suffered a dislocated knee when he collided with a car.

Kevin Kelly, 870 Pembroke, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital and released.

Police said the boy was riding east on Pembroke and was about to turn on to Vancouver when he collided with a car driven by Gerard Cockburn, 1335 Pembroke.

The Cockburn car hit a road sign then crossed the front lawn at 2109 Vancouver coming to rest near the front steps.

Damage to the car was estimated at $300.

HEAD CUTS

A two-car collision at Wildwood and Ross sent two men to Jubilee Hospital for treatment of head cuts.

A car driven by Harvey Johnson, 1738 Ross met the car of Allan Robinson of Chemainus at the intersection. Damage was slight.

Mrs. E. Gillingwater, 2885 Murray Drive, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with arm injuries about 6 p.m. after she was in collision with a car while walking in the 2900 block Admirals.

Saanich police said the car was driven by Mrs. Charlotte Gillies, 2831 Murray Drive.

A Colwood area man is in Jubilee Hospital with severe face cuts following an accident Tuesday in which driver of car involved was his 14-year-old son.

Melvin Nohr, R.R. 6, was a passenger in a car which struck a stump on the Thetis Lake Road.

Colwood RCMP said the lad, driving the car lost control while adjusting a radio dial. Damage to the car was estimated at $200.

$245,000 Sewer Plan Proposed

Saanich council will be asked at its next meeting to submit a sewer extension bylaw to ratepayers in the North Shelbourne area near Mount Douglas Park.

Involved are 265 homes in the area which takes in Kenmore, Shelbourne from Feltham to north of Kenmore and Cedarglen.

Total cost of the proposed scheme, which will need a 60 per cent or more vote to pass when it is placed before ratepayers, is $245,000.

Average cost to each property is $132 a year with payments spread over 20 years.

$46 MORE

About 90 homes serviced by the Montclaire sewage treatment plant would pay an average $46 plus a $23 charge they are already paying. The treatment plant would be discontinued and become part of the sanitary system with discharge through the Gordon Head outfall.

Municipal engineer Neville Life said the date for a vote will be decided by council. The planned sewers must also receive the routine approval of the health and municipal affairs departments.

The public works committee has recommended council approve preparations for a bylaw.

More Policemen Requested For Peninsula

Sidney will request the attorney-general's department to expand its police protection service for the north end of the Saanich Peninsula.

Village chairman Arthur Freeman at a council meeting Tuesday said the present RCMP force of four men, jointly serving North Saanich and Sidney, is inadequate.

He advocated the force be raised to nine men.

Ask The Times

Q. How are bio-degradable detergents less noxious to our waterways than regular detergents? Can you buy them here? Do they do the job as well as ordinary detergents? J.R.S.

A. A B.C. Pollution Control engineer advises that while bio-degradable detergents are by no means "a panacea" for pollution of water by detergents, they break down more readily and more fully under waste treatment than ordinary detergents, or about 40 per cent breakdown to 5 per cent by the others. Bio-degradable detergents are now on sale in B.C. stores and are well-marked as such. Their performance is "on a par" with that of regular detergents.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

THEY KNOW ARCHIE AT RED CROSS HEADQUARTERS

He's a Blue-Blood Among Donors

By BOB DONAHUE

Archie Mooradian weighs "200 and plenty" and stands five foot four inches tall.

His nose barely reaches the top of the sandwich bar he operates in a downtown hotel and his rotundity has long been legendary in beer parlour circles.

But for some Archie Mooradian, son of an Armenian immigrant, stands tall.

Ask the people down at Red Cross House.

They will pull out his card and it will show that Albert Mooradian (his proper name) has donated more than 80 pints of blood since 1943 when the blood donor service was instituted in Canada.

For it was in that year one day in a military hospital in Kingston, Ont., that this corpulent, cheerful man saw the miracle of live-saving with donated blood.

"That day," he says," they brought in this little boy, about 10 years old, who was badly injured.

"We looked at him and we thought 'too bad.' Then the doctors took him away.

"And later we learned that while they were operating on him that blood was needed. I was one of many donors.

"They gave him eight pints and he lived."

This Thursday, after breakfast, Archie Mooradian will make his 97th donation of a pint of blood and he will start work at 11 a.m. "feeling better."

Feeling better, he says, not only in the heart, but physically.

"Its the same as a car runs better with a change of oil. I just feel better. And then there was that boy in 1943," says Archie Mooradian, a fat man who every three months gives his most precious gift.

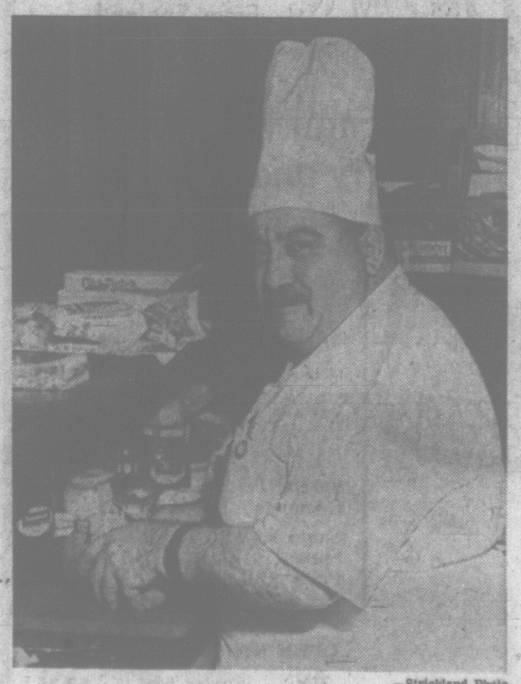

His blood donor card reads like a travel guide.

The neat, black type tells that he has donated blood everywhere from here to New Brunswick, from Seattle to New York and from Nome to Acapulco.

"It was just that I eventually woke up to the fact that it was so easy. I can do it in the morning and its nothing.

"Sometime when times were bad (there have been a few") I've felt like selling it. But then it goes back to 43.

"Funny thing. I wonder why other people give blood."

HE FEELS BETTER physically and mentally after giving blood, says 80-pint man Archie Mooradian.

The forthcoming marriage has been announced of Lorraine Edna Elliott, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Elliott, 381 Walter Avenue, to Mr. John Blair McCallum, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McCallum, 749 Lavender Avenue. The wedding will take place this coming Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Centennial United Church. Dr. S. J. Parsons will officiate. The bride-elect is a 1956 graduate of St. Joseph's Hospital's School of Nursing. (Miss Elliott's photo by Chevrons Studio, her fiance's by Meyers Studio.)

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roberge, 1556 Lionel Street, announce the forthcoming marriage of their eldest daughter, Linda Marie Dora, to AB Eric Alfred Breidfjord, RCN, son of Mrs. V. Breidfjord, Churchbridge, Sask., and the late Mr. Breidfjord. The wedding will take place on Saturday, Oct. 22, at 7 p.m. in St. Patrick's Church. Chaplain Regis Pelletier, RCN, will officiate. (Miss Roberge's photo by Jus-Rite Portrait Studio.)

Newlyweds Will Live in Surrey

Following a honeymoon trip touring central and northern British Columbia, Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Gerow will make their home in North Surrey.

The bride is the former Bonnie Jean Reimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Reimer of Sidney, and the groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gerow of Gerow Island, Burns' Lake, B.C. Rev. H. C. McDiarmid officiated at the ceremony in St. Paul's United Church, Sidney.

During the signing of the register, the bride's cousins, Elizabeth and Joyce Gardner sang "The Lord is my Shepherd."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of taffeta, trimmed at the empire waistline with lace. Similar accents bordered the cuffs of the wrist-length sleeves. The gown was styled en train. A pearl headpiece held her shoulder-length veil of scalloped white tulle, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses, stephanotis and white ribbons.

Miss Lynn Gordon was maid of honor in an empire-line gown of pink peau de soie, styled with sleeves ending in lily points. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations and green streamers.

Bridesmatron Mrs. K. Hornby and bridesmaid Miss Marian Hastings were in similar gowns of Nile green and they carried colonial bouquets of white and pink carnations.

All wore the bride's gifts of silver chains and pearl pendants.

Best man was Ted Nielson, Port Kells, B.C. Ushering guests were Ken Copley, North Surrey, and the bride's brother, Douglas Reimer.

Rev. C. Whitmore proposed the toast to the bride at the reception following in the church hall.

Given to Bride by the Groom's Grandmother

HEIRLOOM BRACELET IS 'SOMETHING OLD'

A gold heirloom charm bracelet, a gift of the groom's grandmother Mrs. B. Burgess, was "something old" worn by Dianne Marie Trottier, recently, when she became the bride of Walter B. Burgess.

The bracelet was the only jewelry accent to her floor-length gown of crystal crepe. Alencon lace formed the bodice, which featured a natural waistline, a scalloped neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Her cathedral train of the same Alencon lace extended back from the shoulders. A self-fabric rose held her three-tier veil of silk illusion net. Each tier was edged with seed pearls. Her crescent bouquet was of white gardenias, stephanotis and ivy.

Fr. A. E. Leonard heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland J. Trottier, 4051 Shelbourne Street, and the son of Mrs. Edna Mai Burgess, 290 East Burnside Road. Baskets of white chrysanthemums and gladioli decorated St. Patrick's Church, Oak Bay, for the ceremony. Mr. Trottier gave his daughter in marriage.

"Ave Maria" was played by organist Mrs. L. Gill during the signing of the register.

Floor-length gowns of royal blue velvet, styled with white lace bodices, were the choice of the bride's attendants. The sleeveless dresses featured scoop necklines. Headpieces were single roses of blue velvet and they carried bouquets of white carnations accented by blue velvet and net.

Miss Heather Spetch was maid of honor. Bridesmatron was Mrs. N. Halpenny and bridesmaids the Misses Norma West and Pat Kachanoski.

George W. Bell, Vancouver, was best man. Ushering were Jerry Monkhouse, Robert McDonald and the bride's brother, Stephen Trottier.

Flowers from the garden of Mr. and Mrs. B. Burgess, the groom's grandparents, decorated guests' tables at the reception in the Tally-Ho Travelodge. Yellow roses and candelabra flanked the three-tier wedding cake.

Herbert Thome proposed the toast to his niece.

The newlyweds will make their home in Beckley Manor, Dallas Road, when they return from their honeymoon in California and Nevada.

For travelling, the new Mrs. Burgess chose a two-piece suit of winter white wool, complemented by caramel brown accessories. Her corsage was of cymbidium orchids.

Keep Chilly Weather Outside Your Door

By PENNY SAVER

Don't spend your cool days sniffling away and feeling chilled to the bone. I know when I have a cold, the best remedy is a cup of hot lemon and honey and a warm, cosy fire in the fireplace. Now it's time to get the old storm windows out, not only for the sake of keeping warm, but to keep other cold animals out. Last night, I kept hearing the strangest knocking sound outside the basement windows. It was a "thump" followed by a weird moan. The culprit was the biggest Tom cat that I've ever seen!

I found sheets of polythene that are just made for keeping drafts outside where they belong. The clear, see-through plastic comes in three by six-foot sheets, priced at two for 39 cents. They're easy to install and come with reinforcing strips and nails. These are ideal for cottage windows, too.

I don't know about you, but when the weather starts turning chilly, I can hardly stand going into our basement. It seems to be so cold down there all the time.

Our basement is more of a utility centre than anything else, so I find myself bundling up in sweaters and jackets whenever I must stay down there for any length of time. I found a little heater in one shop that sells for $11.49. These are very light and portable and burn naphtha gases or catalytic fuels. There are no fumes and the heater is completely harmless and flameless. It's a good safety measure to have in your car during the cold months ahead. They're good all-year-round items. Pick one up today.

If you are like me when you're driving in unfamiliar territory, you don't need fog or rain to completely lose your sense of direction. Even I know which way I'm going with the car compass that I found. Priced at $1.99, this gadget is suitable for all cars. It has suction cups which makes mounting simple on any frame. Directions are easy to read in big white letters on the black background of the streamlined, plastic case.

Remember Penny's number is 382-3131. Give her a call if you want to know where she found these items.

DEAR ABBY . . .

'Phone Thank You' Meaningful, Too!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Over the years I have sent many greeting, anniversary, birthday, get-well, and sympathy cards. And Abby, I am not lying when I say that out of the 52 cards sent last year, only three people have had the courtesy to thank me. Aren't people supposed to say "thank you" for being remembered with a card? Should I just save the price of these cards, my postage, and my time?

IGNORED

DEAR IGNORED: People of breeding still telephone their thanks, or drop a note in response to a greeting card. If you enjoy remembering people with cards, continue to do so, but if the rudeness of some have soured you for all, call a halt.

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend and I were secretly married by a judge last year while we were college seniors. Now we are graduated and my parents want to give me a church wedding. My being an only child, it would mean a lot to them. We live in a small town and with my own ears I have heard our pastor tell things he had no business telling.

Do I have to tell him we were married before? He would surely tell someone and it would get back to my folks, and I hate to have them hurt. Also, is it legal to have two marriage licenses on file without a divorce in between?

MUST KNOW

DEAR MUST: First, find a lawyer in your town who talks less than your pastor. (This should be easy.) Ask him about the legality of two marriage licenses. And I advise you to tell your pastor about the previous ceremony.

But tell your parents first. Since it was only a civil ceremony, they will want you to have a religious ceremony as well.

DEAR ABBY: My son passed away suddenly a year ago. He was only in his twenties and left a widow and two small children, one year old and two years old. The day after my son was buried, my daughter-in-law got rid of every stitch of clothing he owned, took down their wedding picture and put away his pipes, and everything that was his.

She said that way the children wouldn't ask questions about where their father was. My son was a good husband and father and he loved those children. She never visits us. If we want to see our grandchildren we have to go there. This has been on my mind so long I just can't stand it. Please help me.

HEART-BROKEN

DEAR HEART-BROKEN: Your daughter-in-law could have been understandably distraught and befuddled when she removed all reminders of her husband, but as time heals the hurt, she should realize that the children should know something of their father. Until and unless she changes, it will be up to you to visit your grandchildren and to preserve the memory of your son.

CONFIDENTIAL to "HUMILIATED HOST:" Don't invite him again. It is just as ill-bred and hoggish for a man to monopolize the conversation all evening as it is for a guest to eat all the food at the dinner table.

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"A cheque book with my name in it - what a nice welcome! But it's not the only reason I switched to North West Trust"

It's extremely nice, mind you. What they call a "Personalized" cheque book, printed with my name and complete with a deposit record book. In a very smart wallet, too. But, believe me, I hardly needed any encouragement to switch to North West Trust. Heavens! When I heard they pay 4½% interest on savings - well, that's half as much again as I used to get. And they pay the same interest on current accounts, too - without any charge for cheques. I should have switched to North West Trust long ago!

CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

New Beds — President Mrs. E. R. Owen announced that five special beds had been bought for the Gorge Road Hospital at the recent meeting of the hospital's Women's Auxiliary, held in the board room. Plans were discussed for the forthcoming rummage sale, to be held in the Elks' Hall, Oct. 15, and for the Christmas bazaar, which will take place on Dec. 1 in the hospital.

Make Plans—Plans for an anniversary sale were made when the Ladies' Auxiliary to the YM-YWCA met in the home of president Mrs. P. Meredith. It was agreed to have stalls of home cooking, French Room clothing, children's clothes and a Christmas stall.

Bedpan Bouquet — A floral arrangement, contained in a 19th century crockery bedpan, centred the table when members of the Victoria Unit, Nursing Sisters' Association of Canada, gathered in the Red Lion Motor Inn for a smorgasbord dinner. Carrying out the centennial theme, a number of members attended in costume. Speaker James K. Nesbitt reviewed the history of British Columbia, and in keeping with the theme of the evening, Mrs. G. M. Stewart portrayed Florence Nightingale. Special guests were Mrs. Ruth Pearce, a great - great - granddaughter of Sir James Douglas and Mrs. J. Thompson, who donated many of the decorations. Miss Elvina Nordlund was convener.

To Host Workshop

The Victoria Women's Institute and Esquimalt Women's Institute will be joint hostess groups for a workshop and conference, to be held at the Fraser Street Hall in Esquimalt this Thursday. Registration will be at 9 a.m. and members are reminded to bring a sandwich luncheon. Tea and coffee will be served, in addition to afternoon tea.

Bazaar and Tea

Arrangements of autumn flowers and foliage will set the theme for the fall bazaar and tea Thursday, of Britannia Lodge No. 216, Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association. Featured attractions will be stalls of home cooking, aprons, white elephants and fancywork, and a door prize will also be offered.

A lodge member for 50 years, Mrs. A. Sadler will open the event at 2 p.m. in The Bay's Douglas Room. General convener is Mrs. M. Stew.

Woman Government Official Has Book Published

STEPS FROM STATE TO STANZAS

NEW YORK (AP) — As everybody knows, people in government write a lot: Interoffice memos, personnel ratings, reports in triplicate.

But poetry?

Yes. And when you're Katie Louchheim you don't have to be apologetic about it. Mrs. Louchheim is the top woman in the U.S. state department.

In her publisher's office (Doubleday) she noted that on the publication date for her thin volume of verse, With or Without Roses, she coincidentally became acting assistant secretary of state for educational and cultural affairs for the six weeks that her boss, Charles Frankel, was away on a trip.

The slim, green-eyed blonde grandmother has been in U.S. public affairs almost as long as she has been writing poetry, about 25 years. She knows official and social Washington inside out.

For that reason some of her capital readers may react a little personally to such lines as "a bureaucrat is seldom seen without a pen — or with a dream."

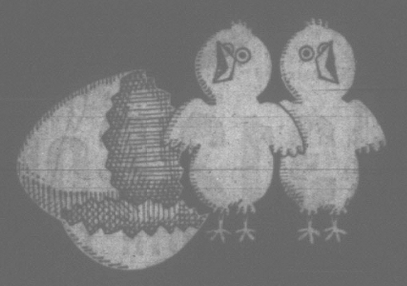

Or in a poem about hypocrisy: "The Mayflower's daughters wear it on two-orchid bosoms." Or about the loud portentous talk at a dinner of VIPs: "What is lost is not a nation but the art of conversation."

Mrs. Louchheim said she thought some readers might try to label the people in her verse, such as the white-gloved name dropper "her white teeth nibbled friends," but the truth is they're composites.

Most of the 60 poems — 40 have been printed before in magazines and newspapers — are about facets of American life and inter-personal relationships.

The wife of Walter C. Louchheim, a private investment counsellor, she was appointed on Oct. 1 deputy assistant secretary of state for educational and cultural affairs.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Today let me give you three combination exercises — those which are corrective to more than one figure defect.

Lowman

1. Lie on your back with feet together and legs straight, arms resting on the floor at your sides. Lift both legs up as far as you can comfortably. Separate your legs while still holding them up. Bring the legs together and slowly lower them to the floor. Keep the knees stiff throughout this exercise. Lift legs, separate them, bring them together and lower them to the floor.

This exercise is slimming to the abdomen and firming to the inner and outer thighline.

2. Stand with your left side toward the wall and place your left hand on the wall for balance. Now swing your right leg forward with a stiff knee. At the same time swing your right arm backward with a straight elbow. Now swing the right leg backward as you swing the right arms forward and up. Reach as far upward as you can with your arm so that you feel the pull. Continue with a smooth swing, the leg and arm moving in opposite directions. Do the same thing with your left leg and arm.

This is firming to the abdomen and hips and slimming to fatty deposits under and back of the arm.

3. Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms resting at your sides. Bend both knees up close to your abdomen. Raise your head at the same time and try to touch your knees with your nose or come as close as you can. Return head and legs to the floor. Continue, slowly.

This is a wonderful exercise for the abdomen and the neckline.

Just a few combination exercises done a few times a day will beautify the figure.

If you would like to have my combination exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for them. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

New Hostility To Apartheid Seen at U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The African group's running battle with South Africa has reached a new pitch of fury in the United Nations this year, with continuing attacks on white supremacy.

The black nations were incensed over the World Court decision throwing out on a legal technicality their charge that South Africa violated its mandate over South-West Africa by introducing apartheid (race segregation) there.

Denouncing the court ruling as a betrayal of the mandate's 500,000 blacks, African leaders persuaded the General Assembly to air their protests on South-West Africa in tandem with its general policy debate.

The traditional statements of policy by heads of government and foreign ministers, which usually dominate the opening weeks, were limited to the morning sessions of the 118-nation assembly. Afternoons were given over to attacks on South Africa's administration of the territory once governed under a League of Nations mandate.

A parade of speakers echoed the 20-year-old demand that the territory be placed under UN trusteeship.

At the same time, the mandate was under scrutiny in the assembly's trusteeship committee.

The question came up again Monday in the assembly's social and humanitarian committee. The committee approved a resolution condemning racial discrimination and urging all countries to impose economic and diplomatic measures and an arms embargo against South Africa.

CANADA ABSTAINS

The vote was 86 to 2 with 18 abstentions. The Communist bloc voted for the resolution while Canada, the United States, Britain and France were among the abstainers. South Africa and Portugal voted against it.

The resolution was considered certain to win General Assembly approval since all UN members are represented on the committee.

The issue comes up again when the assembly's special political committee, its No. 2 debating body, considers a UN report on apartheid.

The 35 African nations on the firing line are supported by most of the 27 Asian members and the 10-nation Soviet bloc.

Guinea has called on the UN to take over the mandate "by force if necessary."

African orators accused the United States, Britain and France of running guns to South Africa. The Ivory Coast asserted that the big powers had shown too much weakness on South-West Africa, "a weakness we consider complicity."

The Soviet Union also came under attack, as petitioners from nationalist organizations in South-West Africa appeared before the trusteeship committee. One charged that the Kremlin had abandoned its militant stand of the past and was taking a conciliatory attitude toward imperialism on the dark continent.

Attempts by South Africa to justify on legal grounds its continuing mandate over South-West Africa went largely unheard. When Pretoria's chief delegate, D. P. de Villiers, took the floor to defend his government's policies, African, Asian and Communist delegates walked out along with a scattering of European neutrals, leaving the ambassador talking to a nearly empty room.

Etruscan Tablet Discovered

—A newly-discovered Etruscan inscription, believed to be the longest ever found, today stirred fresh hopes among scientists who have been trying for decades to decipher the mystery language.

The 72-word inscription on a leaden tablet came to the light in a well in front of the ruins of a small Etruscan-Roman temple at Punta Della Vipera on the coast south of here.

Dr. Mario Moretti, superintendent of antiquities of southern Etruria, who has been directing excavation in the area for the past three years, said the temple apparently was dedicated to Minerva, the goddess of wisdom.

He said Etruscan sailors used to bring gifts to the temple, and the tablet may be one of the gifts.

Johnson Plans 10% Boost For Pensioners

BALTIMORE (AP) — President Johnson outlined today a broad blueprint for at least $2,200,000,000 of increases in social security pensions. The average pensioner who now gets $85 monthly would get an additional $8.50 or more a month.

The president said he wants Congress to approve average benefit increases of at least 10 per cent. And he proposed minimum monthly cheques of $100 for persons under social security for 25 years compared with the present $44.

Some Republicans, noting that Johnson made his pronouncement less than a month before the Nov. 8 election, accused him of playing politics. None of the increases would take effect until Jan. 1, 1968—another election year.

Johnson announced his proposals—details will go to Congress in January—at a social security awards ceremony here. The federal pension program, which sends monthly cheques to 22,000,000 Americans, has its headquarters in Baltimore.

RELEASES TEXT

He authorized aides to give newspaper men advance word of his proposals late Tuesday. Here is how he worded his "four basic proposals," which officials said might be expanded before he sends them to Congress:

"First and most fundamental: I will recommend to the next Congress an average increase in social security benefits of at least 10 per cent—to provide every beneficiary a higher standard of living. I will propose that those in the lowest benefit brackets receive proportionately higher increases.

"Second: I will propose that every worker who has been regularly employed under social security for 25 years or more shall be guaranteed a minimum monthly benefit of $100.

"Third: I will recommend specific proposals that will materially increase the income of those under social security who continue to work after reaching retirement age. (Benefits now are reduced if a pensioner earns more than $1,500 a year.)

"Fourth: I will recommend that hospital and medical care coverage be provided not only to the aged, but to the more than 1,000,000 disabled social security beneficiaries."

Administration officials said the cost of Johnson's "minimum" package would be $2,200,000,000 and that about $1,500,000,00 of this could be financed under present and scheduled social security taxes.

They said the balance might be funded by a higher pay roll tax, by raising the present $6,600 limit for taxable annual income, or a combination of the two.

Johnson said more than one-third of social security recipients "exist on incomes below the poverty line."

FORMER MEMBER of Adolf Hitler's Elite Guard, Albert Pfitzer, 54, has turned down job as head of West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's office. Pfitzer will retain the post of executive director of the Bundesrat, which represents the federal states in parliament. (AP Wirephoto.)

Traffic Safety Conference Set

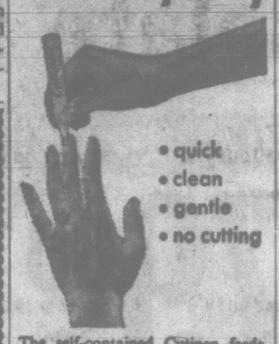

TORONTO (CP) — A conference of provincial cabinet ministers responsible for highway traffic and safety legislation will be held here Oct. 17 and 18.

Transport Minister Irwin Haskett of Ontario, who issued the invitations, said in a statement all provinces have indicated they will participate.

U.S. PROBES CUBAN DROWNINGS

'Death Corridor' Ferry Risky

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A risky ferry service has been brought to public attention with the disappearance of 44 Cuban refugees in a small boat caught by hurricane Inez.

Thousands of refugees have been whisked out of Cuba by exiles in the United States who make the voyage back and forth across the often rough Florida Straits.

The U.S. coast guard is investigating the sinking of the boat last weekend in which only the boat's captain, 32-year-old Enrique Gonzalez, survived. A scond man picked up with Gonzalez later died and four bodies have been recovered.

Gonzalez said the disastrous voyage was his eighth, and the first unsuccessful one. He said he and 45 passengers were tossed into the sea when a "huge wave" capsized his overcrowded 24-foot blockade runner.

Some members of Miami's Cuban colony of 150,000 claim the price of bringing refugees to Miami has been as high as $1,000 each.

But operators of the shuttle service across "death corridor," as exiles call the sea lane between Cuba's coast and Florida, say there is no fare.

An exile identified only as Juan, said he has made five ferry trips to Cuba and has brought back more than 200 refugees.

"It costs more than $1,000 to make a trip," he said. "You may make it into Cuba, or the Castro patrols may kill you or capture you. You may make it back or you may not.

"We allow people to pay us whatever they wish to bring back their relatives. Some give us their car or a gold ring or money. Others nothing."

A relative of nine members of a family lost on the ferry smashed by Inez said she paid nothing.

"I had nothing to pay," said Maria Perez. Her 70-year-old father, a sister and brother-in-law and their six children vanished in the storm.

Juan said: "Thirteen thousand Cubans have come to the United States in small boats, and half of these have been brought out by Cubans who went from Miami to get them. That is the only way most of them can get out."

Ten flights arrive weekly in a refugee airlift financed by the U.S. government. More than 37,000 have arrived by airlift.

But young, draft-age men are not permitted to make these flights and so the ferry service continues.

LADY L.
Sophia Loren
Odeon Theatre

This is the tale of a Parisian laundress who rises to social greatness as the consort of a landed English duke.

With warm peach-like Sophia Loren as the laundress and suave dry-humored David Niven as the Duke, the stage seems set for a sparkling, period-style comedy. But, alas, Lady L. doesn't sparkle. It is witty in spots and the settings are lavish but somehow the story never catches fire.

LONELY GIRL, warmed by the attentions of a new acquaintance, responds happily in this scene from the first act of Shelagh Delaney's poignant play, "A Taste of Honey," which opens at McPherson Playhouse Friday night. Richard Wood and Gina Bigelow are the actors in the Bastion Theatre production.

It opens in prologue style with the 80-year-old Lady L. arriving at the stately ducal residence to be greeted by her distinguished sons—four generals, an admiral and a bishop.

For some unexplained reason, Lady L. bears a strong resemblance to the late Queen Mary, due mainly to her make-up, her hat and her gracious silvery hair.

Their records, of course, are totally dissimilar.

The flashbacks reveal that Lady L. once delivered the laundry to a pleasure house in Paris. She virtuously turned down invitations to join the regular staff, but fell for a visiting French anarchist (Paul Newman).

★ ★ ★

Newman naturally is escaping from the gendarmerie but finds time to have an affair with the lovely laundress. They go to Nice where Newman dresses up as a Roman Catholic priest before attempting the assassination of a visiting prince.

The plot is foiled when Sophia (Lady L.) substitutes a fake bomb for the original. She meets Duke Niven who gets both of them out of the country aboard his private train.

Later the duke proposes marriage and is accepted with the proviso that Lady L. still loves the anarchist. A son is born to inherit the dukedom but it is very clear that the duke is not the father.

Sophia gleams like a crown jewel against a background of velvety settings; Niven is drolly amusing and Paul Newman is dourly romantic as the French anarchist.

The film was directed by the talented actor Peter Ustinov, who also wrote the script from a novel by Romain Gary.

It could have been high comedy but somewhere along the line it becomes a rather tawdry farce.

HOME GARDEN

Old-Timers Cut Off Late Flower Spikes

By HILDA BEASTALL

With the continuation of mild weather and just the right amount of moisture in the top inch or so of soil, many of our summer blooming perennial plants are looking particularly healthy.

Hilda

Some of those which are at their best each June are even putting up late flower spikes.

The new gardener is quite thrilled at this phenomenon, but you'll spot the old-timers who are going over their plants to cut off these flower stems.

Now this may seem a strange thing to be doing, but experience shows that certain plants will do a lot better next year if the growth they made this summer and fall is prevented from blooming.

Mentioning a few of them by name will perhaps assist beginning gardeners to know what to look for in their own gardens.

Border pinks, or carnations, all members of the genus dianthus, mostly bloom in June, though Dianthus "Loveliness" possibly the most fragrant of all, continues for almost four months.

WINTER BETTER

However, these rosette forming, or mat forming plants will winter better and give more flowers next year if all flower stems being produced now are cut off at their base, just above the rosette leaves.

Another group of plants which have a rather long summer season of bloom are the geums, in both the long stemmed red "Mrs. Bradshaw" and yellow "Lady Stratheden" and the dwarfer ones such as the orange Borisii.

New flower stems at this time of year only seem to weaken the plants, and since they seldom manage to open fully, they contribute little to the total appearance of the garden.

Scabious, pyrethrums and the two lychnises are other splendid garden perennials to benefit from the removal of all flower spikes at this time.

Film Exchange Union Accepts Pay Offer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 25-member Vancouver Film Exchange Employees' Union accepted a two-year contract Tuesday that provides pay increases retroactive to Jan. 1.

The union, local 71 of the International Alliance of Theatre, Stage Employees and Motion Picture Machine Operators of Canada, had threatened to strike after negotiations came to a halt last month.

A strike would have halted shipment of films from Vancouver to more than 600 theatres throughout the province.

The union accepted a $4.75 a week pay increase retroactive to January and a further $2.50 a week boost in the second year of the contract.

Union members earned an average of $73 a week under the previous contract.

Communications Monopolies Hit At Grit Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal action to discourage communication monopolies was requested by a plenary session of the national Liberal policy convention today.

Joe Macaluso, member of Parliament for Hamilton West and co-chairman of a workshop that proposed the resolution, said it was aimed at organizations which own all public information outlets in a community.

Although the resolution proposed discouragement, Mr. Macaluso said its intent was to break up the monopolies.

Toad Hall Doors To Be Re-opened

A revival of Toad of Toad Hall will replace the previously scheduled pantomime production of Mother Goose this Christmas season, it is announced by Victoria Theatre Guild.

Casting for Toad, a highly successful production four years ago, takes place Wednesday night at 8 in Servetus Hall, 106 Superior Street.

Director Tony Burton would particularly like to see any members of the former cast.

Reilly Rejoins CBC

TORONTO (CP)—Peter Reilly, who last week resigned as executive producer of news and public affairs for the CTV television network, Tuesday rejoined the CBC as story editor and producer for a new TV public affairs program called Sunday.

Star-Studded 'Backfield' With Satchmo

Behind that golden trumpet and the gravel voice a Louis Armstrong Night at the Memorial Arena Monday will be talent like Danny Barcelona's.

Not the starriest of the all-stars (Louis the Lip pretty well owns that title) Danny is a Honolulu-born drummer.

Like pianist Billy Kyle, Buddy Catlett on bass, Buster Bailey and his clarinet, and Tyree Glenn on trombone, he will background old Mr. Hello Dolly himself.

Louis Armstrong and His All Stars plan a musical blitz for Victoria — everything from "When the Saints Come Marching In" through "Ain't Misbehaving" to Basin Street Blues.

Danny and Billy and Buddy and Buster and Tyree, and of course the Man and Legend Louis, will hit the highs of the Muskrat Ramble, the far-outs of Shadrack and the deep blue lows of the Mahogany Hall Stomp.

Musical meeting time is 8:30 p.m. Tickets and reservations are on sale at the Arena.

2 Million on Call

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress voted Tuesday to give President Johnson the authority to call to active duty without declaring a national emergency the country's nearly 2,000,000 reservists and National Guardsmen.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Producer Terry Kyne calls "Nightcap," a local Toronto show, "a startled and frightened rebuttal to the Canadian dream of good entertainment, featuring some of the least impressive performers ever assembled under one roof."

You know, he's perfectly right.

The show, which apparently fractures Torontonians, but then anything fractures them, wasted an hour of prime CBC-TV time Monday. It filled the Show of the Week slot with effective pointlessness.

Stephen

The entire 60 minutes was not lost, however. There were some amusing segments like the skit surrounding Conservative leader John Diefenbaker, Prime Minister Pearson and an excellent take-off of CBC national affairs chief Norman De Poe (Depot in the sketch).

However, in the main, the program's attempts at satire were lost through lack of communication with the point of the exercise.

Look back at the movie comedy of the late twenties and thirties when such as Buster Keaton, Charlie Chaplin, The Keystone Kops, plus others, successfully poked fun at the times, and without benefit of the spoken word.

The satirists of today should look back to try to find that success formula instead of filling the airwaves with unmitigated drivel.

There is no doubt in my mind that the producers of Nightcap are looking for just this sort of review of "The Best of the Worst of Nightcap."

Look, they'll say, he's got the point. But the producers and performers themselves miss the point.

Torontonians may be soft in the head over this type of comedy but Canadians, as a general rule, thoroughly enjoy satire or irreverent comedy if well done. They savor it with a relish denied more obvious attempts at breaking the bubble of sophistication.

The hour smacked of an amateurishness usually associated by the critics with the efforts of small, low-budget stations rather than one obviously loaded with money and willing to spend it, if the size of the band is any indication.

There is room for top-line satirists in the Canadian way of things but this group is obviously not cut out to fill the role.

We've now seen "The Best of the Worst of Nightcap." Is there a "Best of the Best of Nightcap" which would attract superlatives?

Anti-War Group Seeks To Meet LBJ

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Keith Holyoake today rejected an offer from New Zealand's Committee on Viet Nam to call off planned demonstrations against President Johnson next week in return for a meeting with him.

He said in a statement that the committee should make its anti-war protest to President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam, not President Johnson.

The committee could rest assured that the elected representatives of the New Zealand people would have appropriate talks with Johnson during his visit Oct. 19 and 20, Holyoake said, adding:

"It would be an impertinence for the Committee on Viet Nam to assume they spoke for New Zealand."

DEPARTMENT OF FISHERIES

Sealed tenders addressed to W. R. Hourston, Regional Director of Fisheries, 1155 Robson Street, Vancouver 5, B.C., will be received up to 12 noon Monday, October 31, 1966, for the construction of a 55-foot wooden Fisheries Protection Vessel. Plans and specifications may be obtained from the Department of Fisheries at Vancouver upon deposit of $50.00 in the form of a certified cheque or money order payable to the Receiver-General of Canada. Deposits will be refunded when plans and specifications are returned in good order.
The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.
A. W. H. NEEDLER,
Deputy Minister.

NOTICE TO LOGGERS

Tenders are invited for the logging of timber in Compartment 1 of Tree Farm Licence No. 27, Nitinat Lake.
The successful tenderer will be required during the period of five (5) years commencing January 1, 1967, to log annually approximately nine (9) million feet board measure of timber subject to Forest Service approval of cutting plans.
Contractors are requested to submit tenders on forms obtainable from the Company's Cowichan Division office for the logging of approximately nine (9) million fbm of timber during the period January 1, 1967 to December 31, 1967. The successful tenderer will be given the opportunity to continue to log approximately nine (9) million fbm of timber annually during the balance of the five-year period at rates to be agreed upon annually.
Facilities for boarding and lodging crews will be available in the new established camp area.
Logging specifications and pertinent data with respect to the logging and road construction may be inspected at this Company's Cowichan Division office (Cayeuse) subject to prior arrangements with the Manager.
Tenderers are requested to furnish reasonable proof of financial responsibility and ability to perform.
Tenders addressed to the undersigned will be received up to 12 o'clock noon, Pacific Standard Time, October 26, 1966.
The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

Hall Addition Given Approval by Council

Esquimalt council gave approval in principle Tuesday night to construction of a new wing on the municipal hall.

The addition would relieve overcrowding in quarters now occupied by the fire-police department, and termed "totally inadequate" in a police commission study.

Coun. Roy Elphick said he had toured the present facilities and was "appalled at the condition."

"The interrogation room shares a common entrance with the refreshment room," he said.

The whole department is "just a hodge-podge of rooms and none of them are adequate."

A meeting of Esquimalt's fire committee with the police commission will discuss potential cost of the new wing.

Council also decided to request a branch library for Esquimalt from the Greater Victoria Library Board.

A library with seating arrangement for 50 persons would be an ideal goal, said Coun. Gerald Horne, council's representative on the library board.

In other business, council

- agreed to foot Esquimalt's share of an additional $1,032 for new family court plans;
- was told no fire loss was reported for September in Esquimalt;
- learned the municipality numbered 13,419 inhabitants according to this year's census figures, an 11.38 per cent increase, less than expected, since the 1961 census of 12,048.

GARDENS OWNER:

Park Expenditures Must Be Continued

The president of Butchart Gardens Tuesday urged Victoria city council to continue making heavy expenditures on city parks.

In a brief speech to luncheon guests at his world famous gardens, Ian Ross said any thoughts of cut-backs in park maintenance programs should be rejected.

"Victoria has a world-wide reputation as a city of parks and gardens," he said. "That reputation should be maintained. If you ever cut back on your parks maintenance and beautification program it will take 10 years to bring them back to high standard."

His guests were members of city council and department heads who before the luncheon had been taken on a brief tour of Victoria and the Gardens with Rebel Mowatt as tour guide.

During his luncheon speech Mr. Ross also urged council members to forget parochial thinking when it came to developing the tourist trade.

"It is the second largest industry in B.C.," he said. "We should approach the tourist trade not just from the local angle but from the Vancouver Island angle, indeed the B.C. angle."

He noted that since 1904 Butchart Gardens had only been closed to the public for two days.

"I think we can be proud of that record," he said. "We are open every day of the year, every year. We have only closed the gardens for two days since they opened in 1904 — and that was when the gardens were the private garden of my grandparents."

Mr. Ross said that although rising costs had forced an admission charge on visitors during the spring, summer and fall months the Gardens were open, free of charge, from the end of October to spring.

VISITORS WELCOME

With a permanent staff of 40 — increasing to 150 during the tourist season — Mr. Ross said visitors were welcome the year round.

So great has been international interest in the one-time lime stone quarry that Mr. Ross has had guide leaflets printed in all major languages.

"The latest venture into foreign language leaflets has created a bit of a problem for us," he said. "We decided this year to have leaflets printed in Russian because we were getting so many tourists of Ukrainian descent.

"The London firm of Cooks did a Russian translation for us, but when we sent it off to Toronto to be printed by a Ukrainian printer he laughed and told us no self-respecting Ukrainian would understand the language.

"As a result I think we shall finish up having them printed in both languages."

What is the most-often asked question by tourists visiting the famous Gardens?

"That's easy," said Mr. Ross. "It's 'where's the ladies' room.'"

Conway Parrott, general manager of Vancouver Island Coach Lines who provided the transportation for the three-hour tour, told council members that the opening of the B.C. Ferry run from Kelsey Bay to Prince Rupert had provided a big boost to tourism in Victoria.

"This year between May and September we carried 6,500 passengers on the run between Victoria and Kelsey Bay," he said. And I am sure that total will increase each year."

Hanging 'Probably' Was Just

LONDON (AP)—A High Court judge reported today that Timothy Evans was probably a murderer—but may have been hanged for a murder he didn't commit.

The hanging of Evans in 1950 set off a movement in Britain that resulted two years ago in the abolition of the death penalty.

Evans was convicted of killing his infant daughter Geraldine and was hanged. He was charged, too, with killing his wife Beryl but this charge was not tried.

The main prosecution witness was John Reginald Halliday Christie, who shared a house with Evans. Three years later Christie himself was hanged as the killer of at least five women.

Judge Daniel Brabin, who this year conducted a 32-day inquiry into the Evans case, reported that no jury could have been satisfied of Evans' guilt had they known of Christie's penchant for killing.

He added he believed it probable Christie killed the child for whom Evans was hanged—but that Evans killed the mother.

TOO LATE NOW

But the judge made clear he believed that 16 years after the killings true facts cannot be unearthed. Witnesses had forgotten events at the time.

He noted that both Christie and Evans had confessed to killing Beryl Evans — though Evans withdrew his confession in court and accused Christie of the murder.

"One fact which has hampered all efforts to find the truth is that both Christie and Evans were liars. They lied about each other. They lied about themselves."

Politician Convicted

PANAMA (AP)—A seven-man jury convicted politician Alfredo Jimenez Tuesday night of attempted murder in the shooting 23 months ago of Dr. Roberto Arias, husband of British ballerina Dame Margot Fontayne.

Jimenez denied the shooting but jumped $5,000 bail months ago when the charge was changed from assault with a deadly weapon. He was tried in absentia.

Funds to Train Deaf Requested of Cabinet

Western Institute for the Deaf Tuesday asked the provincial cabinet to grant it $9,300 this year and $10,000 next year to help train deaf persons for jobs.

"The government is spending a lot of money on education of deaf but not enough on followup services, particularly for young deaf people going into the labor force," WID president Dr. David Kendall of Vancouver told reporters.

He led a delegation that presented a brief to Welfare Minister Wesley Black and Labor Minister Leslie Peterson which showed that in a survey of 400 deaf persons in Vancouver 27.2 per cent were unemployed and 37 per cent earn less than $1,200 a year.

The institute is supported by the United Community Services of Greater Vancouver.

Ex-Victorians Killed —Murder Charge Laid

A 48-year-old man has been charged in Agassiz with the murder of two former Victoria residents.

Walter Henry Fyfe was charged following the shooting deaths in Harrison Hot Springs Monday of his wife, Jacqueline, and 86-year-old Joseph Dufresne, an uncle of her first husband.

Mrs. Fyfe, formerly Mrs. Dufresne, and the uncle lived in the 3700-block Savannah until a year ago. Then they moved to 1642 Richardson and, later, to Foul Bay Road.

Mrs. Dufresne was divorced from her first husband. She is believed to have married Walter Fyfe some time in the past year.

Neighbors of the Dufresnes in Victoria said they "kept pretty much to themselves." They appeared to have few friends.

Walter Fyfe was arrested by police near Mission about an hour after the shooting in Harrison Hot Springs. Neighbors said Fyfe and his wife had just returned from a beer parlor prior to the shooting.

Dufresne was shot by a bullet from a .303 rifle in the living room of his home. Mrs. Fyfe was shot as she stood in the doorway of the house.

Mrs. Fyfe's two children by her former marriage fled to a neighbor's home after the slaying.

U.S. Relaxes Export Curbs To Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. commerce department relaxed export restrictions today on about 400 non-strategic commodities for shipment to Russia and her Eastern European allies.

The move is in line with remarks last Friday in New York City by President Johnson. He said export controls between East and West would be relaxed in a move to ease tensions and promote trade.

The action could also serve to isolate further China and her Asian allies.

Commodities on which trade restrictions were relaxed, effective today, include textile products, some metal manufactures and machinery, food stuffs, chemical materials and products, and a variety of manufactured articles.

These products now can be exported to Eastern Europe without prior specific approval of the commerce department. They will move under what the department terms a general licence.

The changes do not apply to the Soviet - controlled zone of East Germany with which the United States has no diplomatic relations.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Douglas Gallant, age 9, of Peterborough, Ont., Canada, for his question:

What Is Phosphorus?

There is phosphorus in the rocks of the earth. True, there is more iron in the ground, but phosphorus is more plentiful than zinc or nickel, tin or lead. You could walk a million miles and never see a trace of it because it is mixed with other minerals, hidden in rock phosphates and calcium phosphates. There are huge beds of phosphorus-bearing rocks in the southern and western United States.

Phosphate rocks are mixed with sand and other cindery coke fuel and the other minerals form molten slag. The phosphorus escapes as cloudy white fumes. It is trapped and piped through water. This changes it to a liquid and then into waxy white crystals of solid phosphorus. If left in the air, it becomes yellow and may fire itself.

Metal tongs are used to pop the solid phosphorus into a tank of water. If touched by hand it causes severe burns that take weeks to heal. It is soft enough to be cut like cheese. But this must be done under water or the knife may make it catch fire. The tricky stuff is poisonous, and in the dark it glows with a spooky light.

You might think that phosphorus can never be tamed and made useful — but it can. White or yellow phosphorus is given a trace of iodine and sealed into an airtight furnace. The heat changes it into red phosphorus — and this reddish brown powder is not poisonous and it does not set itself on fire. It is treated and blended with other chemicals to make all sorts of useful phosphate chemicals.

These safe forms of phosphorus help to make dyes and detergents, matches and medicines and even baking powders. We need traces of phosphorus in our foods, and so do all the plants and animals. The plants soak up safe phosphate chemicals from the soil. We get our share by eating vegetables and meats and dairy foods from animals that have eaten plants. The phosphorus in our phosphate foods helps to build strong bones and teeth, nerves and wide-awake brain cells.

The growing crops take tons of phosphates from the ground every year, and every year the farmer must add chemical food for the next crops. He mixes fertilizers with the soil. Tone of phosphate rocks are powdered to make fertilizers. Powdered bones, manure and other waste material from animals also are used. All these fertilizers are rich in chemical phosphates that plants and animals need.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Paul Whinery, age 10, of Ponca City, Okla., for his question:

Do the names of the Great Lakes mean anything?

The map of North America wears a blue enameled brooch upon its heart. It is the five Great Lakes, linked together to form the largest reservoir of fresh water in all the world. Four of them straddle the friendly boundary between Canada and the United States, and all of them are shared by a friendly agreement between the two countries.

Long before white settlers made their homes in this central region, early traders and explorers used the wide lakes as waterways. Almost everywhere they met Indians, some as allies and some as enemies, some as traders, some as hunting and trapping companions. Lake Huron, Lake Michigan and Lake Erie are named for local Indian tribes. Lake Superior, the biggest, is named for its superior size. Lake Ontario was not named for a tribe, but with an Indian word intended to describe the beauty of its scenery.

YOUR HEALTH

Handicapped Make Good Employees

By WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Alvarez

Miss Pamela Chapman writes me that during the past three years the Macon Hospital in Georgia has trained and employed blind stenographers in their record room with "amazing results." These handicapped people not only are highly efficient but they have served as an inspiration to all hospital personnel. Mrs. Van Norte, who trained them, says that they are now the backbone of her department. I'm always so happy when I hear of good, wonderful people who are giving work to persons who much want to work but because of some handicap are rejected by employment managers.

As I have said several times in this column, one of my dear friends whom I respect and admire tremendously is Henry Viscardi of Abilities, Inc., in Albertson, N.Y., who now employs over 400 persons, all of them handicapped in some way. They may be in a wheelchair, they may be almost blind or deaf, or even without legs, but if they can assemble electrical wiring they can work for Mr. Viscardi, and they can get a good monthly wage.

I was so impressed when Henry told me of the fine man of 50 who, one day years ago, came in and said he was so unhappy because he couldn't get a job anywhere. He was turned down because he had a great high blood pressure and a bad heart.

Henry put him to work, and soon found him so able and helpful and dedicated that he made him a supervisor. To be sure, the man lived only 10 years or so, but during that time he was happy; he was an expert workman, he was earning a living; and he was not on relief. And here is the point I wish all employers would note: Henry lost nothing by giving the man a job — he gained much.

Sometimes when I talk of this sort of thing to an employment manager, he says, "But people like that would make problems with our retirement plans and our pension arrangements."

But I have talked to insurance experts about this, and they tell me that the man could be employed on a temporary, month-to-month basis — without any promise of a pension, or of sickness insurance.

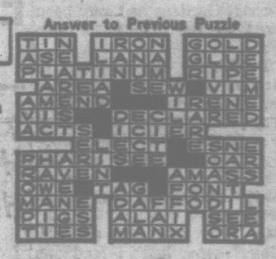

Actually, I know a number of physicians who, after having been retired at age 65 from one big clinic, just moved into another, where for 10 years or more, they kept doing splendid work. These men were of great value to the clinic to which they went, if only because of their wisdom, their experience, and their skills were so great. They served as walking encyclopedias for their younger associates.

STORES GRIN AND BEAR HOUSEWIVES' BOYCOTT

OTTAWA (CP)—Housewives continued their boycott of supermarkets Tuesday, confident their protest against high food prices is being felt.

But supermarket managers insisted the boycott has no effect at all. Some said business was better than normal after the long weekend.

Mrs. Lawrence Wilson, a 32-year-old housewife who launched the action said "We are winning the battle, regardless of what store managers say".

Don McClymont, president of the Ottawa Board of Trade, said not a single retailer has reported being hurt by the boycott which started last Thursday.

FOOD PRICES

Grilling Set For Middlemen

OTAWA (CP)—The joint committee of the Senate and Commons investigating rising prices apparently is going to grill food wholesalers and chainstore retailers intensively when they appear before it next week.

SEN. CROLL
. . . 'wide spread'

Senator David Croll (L—Ontario), co - chairman who presided at Tuesday's hearings, said testimony so far presented indicates the price spread between farm and table seems widest ... the wholesaling and retailing business.

He asked agriculture department officials to watch next week's hearings and prepare a wind-up brief in which they don't limit themselves to their strictly - confined departmental responsibilities.

As experts in the broad field of farm production and marketing, and as retail consumers themselves, Senator Croll said, the government experts can help pin down the root causes of higher food prices.

The committee will hear testimony Thursday from Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, and from the officials of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics who compile price indexes.

WILL CALL RETAILERS

Next week, in three days of hearings, the committee will call representatives of Loblaws, Steinbergs, A and P, Dominion and Safeway stores.

Officially, the federal agriculture department keeps track of prices only at the farmer-to-wholesaler market level, and keeps an eye on production and marketing trends at home and abroad.

But the witnesses went farther in Tuesday's late sitting.

E. A. Eardley, director of the fruit and vegetable division, said he understood produce wholesalers generally charged a 12½-per-cent mark-up after processing and packaging costs, and retail produce counters charged a 50-per-cent mark-up on the price paid to wholesalers.

S. B. Williams, assistant deputy minister, said the amount of the retail food dollar the farmer receives falls in direct proportion to the amount of processing involved.

For instance, Mr. Williams said, for every $1 spent on canned tomatoes and corn, the farmer receives less than 20 cents. Mr. Eardley said the price paid to farmers for peas, corn and tomatoes is less than five cents a 20-ounce tin.

You Like Bacon So Price Takes A Jump

OTTAWA (CP)—Bacon prices are high because Canadians have grown accustomed to bacon and eggs instead of ham and eggs, for breakfast.

This in substance was the testimony given the joint committee of the Commons and Senate Tuesday by H. K. Leckie, general manager of the Meat Packers Council of Canada.

He said that over - all, meat packers and processors make a small margin of profit on their total sales of meat products to food wholesalers and retailers.

HELD UP

But as prices of some meats rise and fall with great sensitivity to the laws of supply and demand, bacon prices have tended to remain high. This is because housewives buy all the bacon offered and aren't inclined to buy more when prices fall.

Replying to questioning by several committee members, Mr. Leckie said the price of bacon is not related back to the cost of hog production or the prices paid by packers to hog producers in the same way as prices of other pork cuts.

Since last January, he said, wholesale prices of hams have dropped to 89 cents a pound from $1.06. But bacon prices have remained high.

MORE HOGS

Max Saltzman (NDP—Waterloo South) asked whether prices would not come down if housewives boycotted bacon, and stopped buying for several weeks.

"It always has," Mr. Leckie said. "That's an inescapable fact. But it would be better to have more hogs on the market, and more bacon. That would mean more business for everyone."

SMALL MARGIN

Mr. Leckie said the meat packing industry generally works on a net profit margin of one per cent or less of sales, and wholesale meat prices closely follow prices paid to livestock producers.

Truscott Defence Refuted

OTTAWA (CP) — The Crown produced two expert pathogists today, one from London and one from New York, who told the Supreme Court of Canada they believe 12-year-old Lynne Harper was sexually assaulted and strangled at the wooded spot where her body was found June 11, 1959.

Professor Keith Simpson, an Oxford lecturer and consultant to Scotland Yard, and Dr. Milton Helpern, chief medical examiner for New York City, based their opinions on an examination of photos and medical evidence at the trial of Steven Truscott, convicted of the slaying.

"There is nothing inconsistent in the evidence with death having taken place where this girl lay," Prof. Simpson said.

SAY BODY MOVED

The defence has produced experts who contend the Harper girl was attacked and slain elsewhere, then dragged to the spot where an RCAF search party found her near Clinton, Ont.

Dr. Helpern said: "I would say from the pictures of the body and the condition of the body that death occurred where the body was found."

He based this view on the presence of the girl's clothing at the scene and marks on her body that could be attributed to the rough ground. It was unlikely in a homicide that clothing would be picked up by the killer and carried to another spot if the body was moved by him.

Dr. Helpern also supported the Crown contention that stomach contents indicated death occurred within two hours after the girl's last meal.

"In my opinion, from the amount of food in the stomach, the fact that the body was of a healthy and energetic girl and that death was rapid . . . I would conclude that death occurred not more than two hours after the food was ingested," he said.

He added: "I think that is the rule in these cases."

A string of defence experts have attacked the two-hour theory and advanced arguments that death could have occurred several hours later—at a time when the Truscott boy was in his home.

DISAGREES ABOUT BODY

Questioned by Donald Scott, Welland Crown attorney who is special prosecutor at the hearing, Prof. Simpson also disagreed with earlier defence evidence that the girl's body had lain on its left side for some time after death and later was placed on its back, the position in which it was found by an RCAF search party.

He said there was "a very simple explanation of the discoloration along the left side of the body which defence experts had interpreted as indicating the position after death.

He said the marks could have been caused by movement of the body after it was discovered and during the process of examination and of photography.

The London pathologist, a lecturer at Oxford and a veteran of more than 100,000 autopsies in 31 years, also challenged defence evidence that the girl could not have been sexually attacked where the body was found.

Defence experts had testified that the absence of semen in the immediate area of the body showed the attack had occurred elsewhere.

Prof. Simpson said he had

FIREMAN keeps watch on flames that still burned this morning, seven hours after blaze did $30,000 damage to a barn, animals and hay at Colquitz Prison Farm on Wilkinson Road. Firemen said the flames were impossible to extinguish and they concentrated on keeping it from spreading.

Arson Charge Laid After Fire at Jail

44 Pigs Roasted Alive

Saanich police have charged a 38-year-old man with arson in connection with a $30,000 blaze early today at Colquitz Prison Farm on Wilkinson Road.

Detective-Sergeant Robin Stewart of Saanich said a suspect was questioned by detectives at the scene of the fire shortly after it was discovered at 1 this morning.

The man was questioned later at Saanich police station and formally charged around 10 o'clock. He was to appear in magistrate's court this afternoon.

44 PIGS KILLED

The fire killed 44 pedigreed pigs, consumed 200 tons of hay, and destroyed two barns. Damage is estimated to be at least $30,000.

The barn is about two blocks from the main jail.

The presence of the hay in the barn did not give firemen a chance. The hay was still burning at 8 this morning, seven hours after the fire was discovered.

Fire Chief Joseph Sutherland said his men were also hampered by having to lay 1,700 feet of hose to bring water to the fire.

By the time firemen arrived on the scene, on the prison property at the end of Roy Road, a large barn and an attached smaller barn were both "really going," according to Chief Sutherland.

The pigs were housed in the big barn. All were roasted alive with the exception of one sow that was saved.

Firemen brought in a bulldozer to knock down the adjacent barn and set up a fire break to keep the blaze from spreading to other farm buildings.

KY

Jealousies Threaten Split In Ky Cabinet

SAIGON (CP)—Regional jealousies flared in Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's cabinet today, threatening a split in the government just two weeks before Ky is to attend a summit conference at Manila.

Several ministers were reported to have resigned or on the verge of doing so.

The Associated Press said five civilian ministers, disgruntled at what they contend is anti-southern manoeuvring by government leaders from the northern provinces, sent a letter to Chief of State Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu saying they were on the verge of resigning, informed sources said.

Reuters news agency reported that usually well-informed sources in Saigon said seven cabinet members submitted their resignation.

Ky refused to accept the resignations of the seven ministers, all civilians, the sources said. Ky had met the seven ministers several times, Reuters said, and had appealed to them to stay in the cabinet for the sake of government unity.

Informed sources said the government crisis appeared timed to exert maximum political leverage on Ky since leaders of the military junta want to present a solid front of stable government in Manila.

OIL FEVER MOUNTS ON ISLAND

Drilling fever may hit the Maple Bay-Ladysmith areas as well as some adjoining islands as the provincial government offers almost 60,000 acres of Crown reserves for oil and natural gas exploration.

Robert Moss, deputy oil and natural gas commissioner, today said the reserved areas to be auctioned are "just north of this Maple Bay occurrence."

He was referring to last week's discovery by realtor Nat Staples of a flammable liquid in the bottom of a drainage ditch on his land which has aroused interest of two oil companies who sent investigators out from Alberta. (See story Page 25.)

Three exploration permits for parcels totalling 59,802 shoreline acres ranging from Maple Bay to Ladysmith and portions of Gabriola, Valdes, Thetis, Pylander, Galiano, Reid, Hall, Secretary and Salt Spring Islands are included in the auction list.

58 PARCELS

The list, totalling 640,460 acres in 58 parcels, will go up for sale Nov. 23 in the mines and petroleum resources department's third offering this year.

About 75 per cent of the Vancouver Island-Gulf Islands parcels is under water, Mr. Moss said.

"Our offering of these parcels is not in any way connected with (Mr. Staples') discovery," he said. "I want to make that clear.

"Our list was made and published at least two weeks ago while his discovery came only last week. It's just a coincidence."

Mr. Moss said it was difficult to assess how interested the oil industry was in any given area until "the money is laid on the line," because most companies try to avoid tipping their hands.

Ex Parte Injunctions Attacked by Liberals

McILRAITH
. . . discussion muted

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal policy conference today laid down a set of labor principles that included a call for the elimination of the ex parte injunction, a sore point with unions.

This form of injunction is granted by a judge to one party in a dispute without hearing the other side of the story. Unions object to its use by employers to limit picketing and halt strikes.

Such disputes, the policy said, should be shunted to a special government board to handle, rather than be subject to ex parte injunctions.

A task force was established to review labor law also was urged to consider legal methods to allow continuous collective bargaining during the life of a labor contract.

This was seen as a reflection of the Freedman report on railway run-throughs that recommended management negotiate technological charge during the life of a contract with the unions.

The industrial relations program, largely the work of John Turner, minister without portfolio, said government must provide protection for people disrupted by technological change and automation.

It said federal manpower policy objectives should include adult retraining and training and employer obligations to provide advance notice of plant shutdown or relocation.

Workers displaced through new technology should get relocation expenses. Consideration should be given to a royal commission on the status of women.

The program was rammed through by weary delegates in a post-midnight session, amid a number of complaints that labor was getting the short end of the stick at the three-day convention.

Bryce Mackasey, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, said he was ashamed the convention had devoted so little time to labor, "the backbone of the Liberal party."

Fear Leaks To Press

OTTAWA (CP) — Discussion of government policy in the Liberal caucus is muted becaue of a fear of leaks to the press, George McIlraith, government leader in the Commons, said today.

MPs do not feel free to express their full views on policy, Mr. McIlraith told a workshop discussion on Parliament at the party's national policy conference.

Cabinet ministers did not disclose fully the problems they face.

The workshop passed a resolution for a later full session of the conference urging that caucus proceedings remain "strictly secret so that the fullest type of disclosure of government policy can be made to caucus and thus give individual members the greatest possible influence in decision-making."

TEL AVIV (AP)—Israeli and Jordanian forces exchanged fire for 20 minutes today after an Israeli army patrol strayed into Jordan's territory during an early morning fog, an Israeli military spokesman announced.

One Israeli soldier was wounded.

'Landymore Swears Brief Was Altered'

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Terry Nugent told the Commons today he has a sworn affidavit by retired Rear-Admiral William Landymore saying Defence Minister Hellyer altered the admiral's prepared brief before it could be given to the Commons defence committee.

But Mr. Nugent's attempt to present a motion charging Mr. Hellyer with breach of Commons privileges for "tampering" with a witness before a Commons committee was disallowed by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

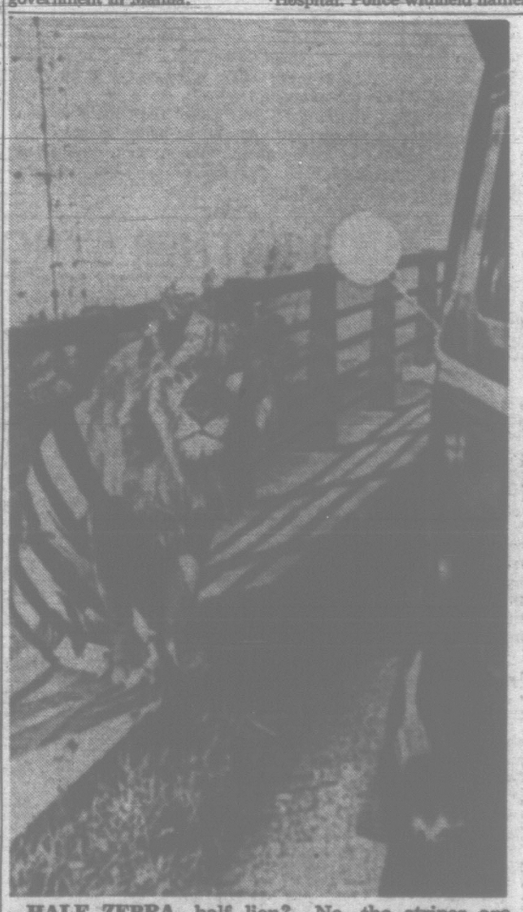

Gordon Churchill (PC — Winnipeg South Centre) said he plans to raise the matter later.

Mr. Nugent said Admiral Landymore went to Mr. Hellyer's office before his committee appearance and gave his brief orally. He was asked to leave a copy of the statement with the minister. The brief later was returned to the admiral with four pages deleted and two others substituted.

PROBERS URGE OTTAWA

TO END CRITICISM

'Lift Veil of Secrecy on Campaign War Chests'

OTTAWA (CP) — The multi-million dollar campaign war chests of the federal political parties will be open to public view if the government adopts a mammoth election expenses report made public Tuesday.

The committee report, two years in preparation, recommends creation of an impartial body to check and recheck the parties' revenues and spending.

Candidates would be required to submit sworn statements detailing the names of donors and the amounts, while national parties would file statements about the totals received from business and other groups.

A proposed registrar of election and political finance would be empowered to investigate and launch court actions leading to stiff fines or imprisonment and ejection from Parliament for persons convicted of violations.

The committee, headed by Montreal lawyer Alphonse Barbeau with representation from three federal parties, was appointed in 1964 in response to criticism about present methods financing campaigns.

The report was tabled in the Commons by State Secretary Judy LaMarsh.

At present the public learns little about the sources for the millions — the committee estimated the 1965 election cost the five federal parties about $16,000,000—that is raised for the country-wide campaigns.

And the history books are dotted with scandals where political contributions amounted to bribes for government favors.

The committee also recommends partial subsidization of candidates, expenses through grants, mailing privileges and more free-time broadcasting.

And further savings are aimed at in a recommendation to limit the most expensive part of campaigning — the purchase of advertising space and time—to the final four weeks of a campaign.

Central to the report is a recommendation that the existence of political parties be legally recognized by requiring them to register with the new registrar's office and to designate persons responsible for their financial affairs.

The committee recommends that the "doctrine of agency" be used so that an agent for a candidate or party is fully aware of all financial transactions and is responsible for their legality.

Besides receiving detailed financial reports from parties and candidates, the new registrar's office would receive statements from broadcasters and publishers about their revenues to enable a double check.

Candidates would have to send the registrar, within 30 days of an election, a sworn report giving the name and address of each donor and the amount of money.

They would have to submit vouchers for all expenditures above $10 along with the name and address of recipients. The goods or services received for the expenditures would have to be described.

National parties would be re-

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, OCT. 12, 1966—PAGE 29

Arthur Mayse

These last three weeks, the Times has been listing me as on vacation. True, we did hook up our trailer and shove off for the Up-Island reaches, leaving our gleeful young with a freezer cargo of pizzas, chili and TV dinners.

But not to loaf; in fact we never worked harder.

Practically every day, we tramped at least two miles of freshet bar and stream bed in hip boots.

We tired our wrists with casting, and ocasionally were required to struggle with plump and saucy trout.

Evenings, we were pestered by salmon — heavy fall cohos that cruised the saltchuck looking for a fight. It didn't seem to matter what lures happened to be attached to our lines: plugs, bucktails and homely Tom Macs, these pugnacious fish insisted on assaulting them.

That's how it went, and we're glad to be home again, with our fishing gear stowed and our trailer snugged down for the winter. Here, the work is easier.

Nor do our juniors seem displeased to have us back.

"Your know," said Ron, watching our Thanksgiving turkey emerge brown from the oven, "it won't bother me if I never eat another TV dinner in my life!"

★

Among the letters that turned up while I was away is one from Mrs. T. D. Grassick, who reports on what appears to be a flourishing juvenile racket.

"We have lived in a large garden apartment complex for over two years now," Mrs. Grassick writes, "and during that time, not only our family but many other tenants have been victimized by teen-age gangs which roam through here late at night, stealing whatever they can find.

"Returning home a little before midnight, my husband and I saw our oldest son's bike parked outside our apartment. In the morning it was gone."

That was the second family bicycle to disappear, and the next door neighbors, Mrs. Grassick reports, have also lost two.

"The police," she continues, are not able to do much, it seems .... I was told that a bunch of boys have been stealing bicycles, dismantling them, and then rebuilding them so that identification of any one bike would be impossible."

Since the police can't be everywhere at all times, it appears to me the answer here might be a private patrolman for the apartment complex . . . either that or have young owners chain and padlock their two-wheelers to something reasonably solid overnight.

These expedients, however, don't answer the point Mrs. Grassick raises:

"The fact that we must now buy bike number three does not concern me as much as the knowledge that there must be a number of boys whose parents are indifferent to their whereabouts. Otherwise, how could they operate a secret workshop, or bring a bike home without a logical explanation?"

How, indeed?

As any serious horse-player will assure you, the Daily Racing Form with its fine-print breakdowns of past performance is required reading for those who frequent the tracks.

Unfortunately, horses can't read; and at Sandown these last few showery days, full many a beast that should have clipped off a winning race has disappointed the handicappers.

Last Saturday, with a two-spot wagered on a velvet nose, Win and I watched our carefully-studied derby choice turn in a performance that would shame a turtle. Close beside us at the rail stood a hearty enricher of the breed, around whose neck hung a pair of what looked to be high-powered binoculars.

These he unslung as the muddied mounts were led back to their stables.

Solemnly, he unscrewed one eye-piece of what still, to all outward appearances, seemed to be a mighty nice pair of binocs. Then, darn it he didn't tip them up and imbibe from them a long slug of whatever liquid consolation they held.

Refreshed, the fellow capped his cleverly-disguised flask and sauntered off, happier than any race-track loser has a right to be.

ONE OF ONLY TWO in Canada and only one in Victoria is this Lynx-Point Siamese cat owned by Mrs. Diane Evans, of 7199 Patricia Bay Highway. Sukianga Chui of Kisinana (her legal name) was raised in England by Mrs. Evans and brought to Victoria last year. She was then the first of her kind in Canada, but is now rivalled by Alvie's Tiki, owned by Mrs. Mary Maling, of Calgary. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

STAMP THE MAILER NOT THE 'PARCEL'

Tigers in the tank are one thing.

Kitties in the mailbox are another.

Which is why postman Howard Dufton pinched himself to make sure he wasn't cat-napping when he opened the main office box on Government Street today.

There, snuggled among the parcels was a female tabby kitten.

Since there was no forwarding address, Mr. Dufton did the only possible thing—he pussyfooted it down to SPCA headquarters.

Which just goes to prove: the feMAIL always gets through.

FREEDOM OF CITY

'Bob Mayhew Day' Set on Thursday

Victoria city council will suspend regular business Thursday as it pays honor to elder statesman Robert "Bob" W. Mayhew.

At 2 p.m. 180 guests, most of them close associates of Mr. Mayhew, will watch while Mayor A. W. Toone bestows the Freedom of the City on the distinguished politician and diplomat.

Senior alderman Geoffrey Edgelow will read the specially prepared tribute to the man who started his political career as a member of Oak Bay council in 1922.

It was the start of an illustrious march which took Mr. Mayhew through council ranks to a seat in parliament and eventually a place in the federal cabinet.

Mr. Mayhew first ran for parliament in 1937 and was elected on the Liberal ticket as Victoria's representative in Ottawa.

He held his parliamentary post until 1952 moving through the ranks as parliamentary secretary to the minister of finance and eventually to the post of minister of fisheries.

On retiring from the political arena Mr. Mayhew was appointed — at the age of 72 — Canada's ambassador to Japan.

86 THIS MONTH

Celebrating his 86th birthday this month Mr. Mayhew will be the seventh man in city history to be honored with the freedom of the city.

Remembered politically for many things, Mr. Mayhew lists the framing of the world famous Colombo Plan as one of the highlights of his political career.

He was a member of the original team which framed the blueprint for the plan which has poured millions of dollars in aid to Far Eastern countries.

All HMC ships in port except McKenzie, due in Friday morning.

Pipefitters Seek 12.5%; 35-Hour Week

Pipefitters at Victoria's two main shipyards are seeking a 12.5 per cent wage increase over two years and a 35-hour work week in current negotiations, a union spokesman said today.

The wage increase sought is just over 70 cents an hour on the present rate of $3.10. Other proposals include increases in annual vacation and statutory holiday day. The pipefitters now have a 40-hour week.

For the first time, the 22 union locals in three yards — Burrard in Vancouver and Victoria Machinery Depot and Yarrows here — are not bargaining together.

Five locals involving three unions are bargaining separately this time including the Victoria pipefitters.

The other 17 locals representing the majority of workers are bargaining together through the Joint Shipyard Conference.

The unions — including the big boilermakers unions in Victoria and Vancouver — are seeking a 65-cent wage increase and a 35-hour work week.

MEETING TODAY

The joint conference unions applied for a conciliation officer three weeks ago and the first meeting with the officer was scheduled for today.

The separate bargaining move stems from a dispute two years ago after all unions except one returned to work at the end of the 11-week strike.

Vancouver pipefitters held out for an extra 10 cents to match the higher rate paid to electricians and eventually won it.

HIGHER FOOD PRICES PREDICTED

City Truckers Knock Trailer Restrictions

Drop System Curbed By Ferry Authority

By AB KENT
Times Business Writer

New freight trailer restrictions on British Columbia Ferries will lead to higher food prices for Vancouver Islanders, truckers predicted today.

Several shippers — who wished to remain anonymous — told the Times they feared higher freight rates will result from restrictions placed on the economical "drop trailer" system.

They were asked to comment on reports they are getting increasing pressure from the ferry authority.

"Increased freight rates are bound to lead to higher costs of consumer goods," said one. "Food is one of the items on which an immediate impact would be felt."

The ferry system recently reduced to a small quota the number of drop trailers freight firms are permitted to put aboard Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen ferries.

Some truckers feel the ferry authority is forcing them to ship truck and trailer together at a much higher cost. But Monty Aldous, ferry manager, denies this.

Savings in Fare, Wages, Space

The drop trailer is what has made B.C. Ferries the economical answer to overnight freight service from the Mainland.

Trucks drive the standard 40-foot trailers aboard ships at Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen terminals, unhitch and return to their point of origin, permitting the trailers to be picked up at the opposite terminal by other trucks.

The saving occurs in ferry charges and driver wages, besides cutting down on ferry space. Three additional automobiles can be carried for every two drop trailers that leave their trucks behind.

Standard charge for a drop trailer is $35, but when trucks are attached a different schedule of rates applies, based on weight and truck capacity.

The effect is an escalation of rates that could as much as double the cost of sending a truck-trailer unit by B.C. Ferries, plus the extra wages of a driver.

One trucker complained bitterly:

"When the government started the ferry service they went after the truckers . . . They sent a representative around to us to beg us to use the new service. At that time we weren't using it because the rates were too high, but we negotiated with them."

Now, after the trucking firms have helped the ferry service over lean times, the authority wants to restrict the trucks, he said.

Never Catered to Freight Trucks

The ferry authority manager said it had never been policy to cater to freight trucks.

The authority was set up to handle passenger and private auto traffic, he said.

There is enough of this traffic without freight trucks, Mr. Aldous said.

He said the new restrictions were to cut down on the number of drop-trailers to make "more room for the motorist and avoid delays caused by trailer loadings.

"It was a time factor more than a money factor — and the inconvenience to the public," Mr. Aldous said.

Several shippers see the end of drop-trailers by the end of the year, or before the next summer sailing schedule takes effect.

The recently begun CPR freight ferry service is picking up more business as trailers are squeezed off the government service.

Asked whether he felt that was the intended effect, a shipper said:

"It is a mystery to me and many others in the industry just what is afoot. I was all for fighting it, but the die is cast."

Restrictions at Prime Times

A big stumbling block in the cross-Gulf service is the prime time at which restrictions are most felt.

To provide overnight service, carriers must collect and load shipments most of the day and rely on late afternoon and evening ferry trips when quotas are imposed.

The CPR service is on a one-a-day basis, making it hard for shippers to conform.

So far the ferry authority has turned a deaf ear to the suggestion that one or two ferries a day be scheduled for freight only.

This alternative would satisfy the shippers and provide high revenue for the authority because only a skeleton crew, no dining room staff, no stewards, pursers or other non-essentials would be required.

Mr. Aldous said peak traffic times would still be hard to predict and delays would result.

WAYNE TOMLINSON

CAR VICTIM'S WALLET FOUND BY YOUNGSTER

If you see this boy's picture in the paper again it will probably be the day he does something well, or wonderful or wise.

Wayne Tomlinson, 12, of 2855 Rockwell, was on his way to play cornet in the Salvation Army band Tuesday when he found a wallet with $68 in bills in it.

He saw by a card in the wallet that it belonged to a "retired lady" and took it straight to city police station.

The woman, Mrs. E. Gillingwater, is in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after being struck by a car Tuesday near where Wayne found the wallet.

Two Men Charged After Four Cars, Power Pole Struck

A car driven amok through city streets hit four other cars and sideswiped a power pole in the space of four minutes Tuesday afternoon.

Shortly after 1 p.m. city police received calls that a wildly-driven vehicle had crashed into two cars going west on Bay near Fernwood.

Retreating from those collisions, the car hit a parked vehicle and a power pole.

Two minutes earlier it was reported to Saanich police the same car collided with another at Richmond and Emerson.

TWO FLED

Two men were seen leaving the car.

Later Tuesday, Robert McRae, 18, of Vancouver and James Erdman, 1156 May St. were charged by police.

McRae appeared in central court today and pleaded not guilty to two charges of failing to remain at the scene of accident, two charges of being a minor without insurance, a careless driving charge and a charge of assaulting a police officer.

Erdman pleaded not guilty to charges of being intoxicated in a public place and assaulting a police officer.

McRae was remanded on $250 bail to Monday, and Erdman on $200 bail for a week.

Also shortly after noon Tuesday a 10-year-old cyclist suffered a dislocated knee when he collided with a car.

Kevin Kelly, 870 Pembroke, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital and released.

Police said the boy was riding east on Pembroke and was about to turn on to Vancouver when he collided with a car driven by Gerard Cockburn, 1335 Pembroke.

The Cockburn car hit a road sign then crossed the front lawn at 2109 Vancouver coming to rest near the front steps.

Damage to the car was estimated at $300.

HEAD CUTS

A two-car collision at Wildwood and Ross sent two men to Jubilee Hospital for treatment of head cuts.

A car driven by Harvey Johnson, 1738 Ross met the car of Allan Robinson of Chemainus at the intersection. Damage was slight.

Mrs. E. Gillingwater, 2885 Murray Drive, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with arm injuries about 6 p.m. after she was in collision with a car while walking in the 2900 block Admirals.

Saanich police said the car was driven by Mrs. Charlotte Gillies, 2831 Murray Drive.

A Colwood area man is in Jubilee Hospital with severe face cuts following an accident Tuesday in which driver of car involved was his 14-year-old son.

Melvin Nohr, R.R. 6, was a passenger in a car which struck a stump on the Thetis Lake Road.

Colwood RCMP said the lad, driving the car lost control while adjusting a radio dial. Damage to the car was estimated at $200.

$245,000 Sewer Plan Proposed

Saanich council will be asked at its next meeting to submit a sewer extension bylaw to ratepayers in the North Shelbourne area near Mount Douglas Park.

Involved are 265 homes in the area which takes in Kenmore, Shelbourne from Feltham to north of Kenmore and Cedargien.

Total cost of the proposed scheme, which will need a 60 per cent or more vote to pass when it is placed before ratepayers, is $245,000.

Average cost to each property is $132 a year with payments spread over 20 years.

$46 MORE

About 90 homes serviced by the Montclaire sewage treatment plant would pay an average $46 plus a $23 charge they are already paying. The treatment plant would be discontinued and become part of the sanitary system with discharge through the Gordon Head outfall.

Municipal engineer Neville Life said the date for a vote will be decided by council. The planned sewers must also receive the routine approval of the health and municipal affairs departments.

The public works committee has recommended council approve preparations for a bylaw.

More Policemen Requested For Peninsula

Sidney will request the attorney-general's department to expand its police protection service for the north end of the Saanich Peninsula.

Village chairman Arthur Freeman at a council meeting Tuesday said the present RCMP force of four men, jointly serving North Saanich and Sidney, is inadequate.

He advocated the force be raised to nine men.

Ask The Times

Q. How are bio-degradable detergents less noxious to our waterways than regular detergents? Can you buy them here? Do they do the job as well as ordinary detergents? J.R.S.

A. A B.C. Pollution Control engineer advises that while bio-degradable detergents are by no means "a panacea" for pollution of water by detergents, they break down more readily and more fully under waste treatment than ordinary detergents, or about 40 per cent breakdown to 5 per cent by the others. Bio-degradable detergents are now on sale in B.C. stores and are well-marked as such. Their performance is "on a par" with that of regular detergents.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

THEY KNOW ARCHIE AT RED CROSS HEADQUARTERS

He's a Blue-Blood Among Donors

By BOB DONAHUE

Archie Mooradian weighs "200 and plenty" and stands five foot four inches tall.

His nose barely reaches the top of the sandwich bar he operates in a downtown hotel and his rotundity has long been legendary in beer parlour circles.

But for some Archie Mooradian, son of an Armenian immigrant, stands tall.

Ask the people down at Red Cross House.

They will pull out his card and it will show that Albert Mooradian (his proper name) has donated more than 80 pints of blood since 1943 when the blood donor service was instituted in Canada.

For it was in that year one day in a military hospital in Kingston, Ont., that this corpulent, cheerful man saw the miracle of live-saving with donated blood.

"That day," he says," they brought in this little boy, about 10 years old, who was badly injured.

"We looked at him and we thought 'too bad.' Then the doctors took him away.

"And later we learned that while they were operating on him that blood was needed. I was one of many donors.

"They gave him eight pints and he lived."

This Thursday, after breakfast, Archie Mooradian will make his 97th donation of a pint of blood and he will start work at 11 a.m. "feeling better."

Feeling better, he says, not only in the heart, but physically.

"Its the same as a car runs better with a change of oil. I just feel better. And then there was that boy in 1943," says Archie Mooradian, a fat man who every three months gives his most precious gift.

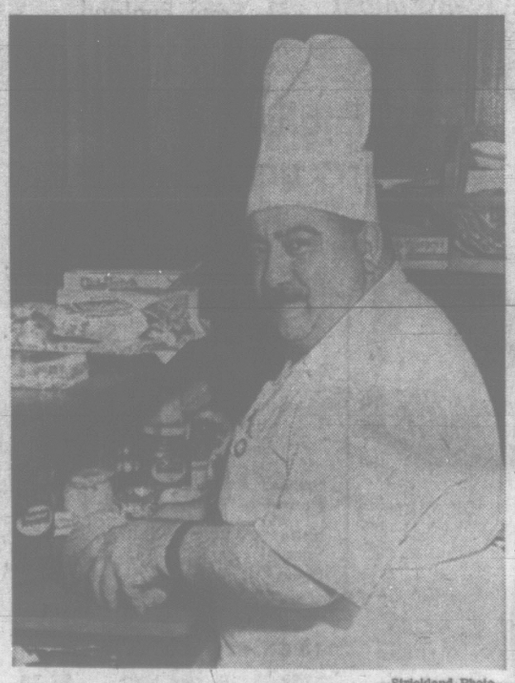

His blood donor card reads like a travel guide.

The neat, black type tells that he has donated blood everywhere from here to New Brunswick, from Seattle to New York and from Nome to Acapulco.

"It was just that I eventually woke up to the fact that it was so easy. I can do it in the morning and its nothing.

"Sometime when times were bad (there have been a few") I've felt like selling it. But then it goes back to 43.

"Funny thing. I wonder why other people give blood."

—Strickland Photo.

HE FEELS BETTER physically and mentally after giving blood, says 80-pint man Archie Mooradian.

Senior alderman Geoffrey Edgelow will read the specially prepared tribute to the man who started his political career as a member of Oak Bay council in 1922.

It was the start of an illustrious march which took Mr. Mayhew through council ranks to a seat in parliament and eventually a place in the federal cabinet.

Mr. Mayhew first ran for parliament in 1937 and was elected on the Liberal ticket as Victoria's representative in Ottawa.

He held his parliamentary post until 1952 moving through the ranks as parliamentary secretary to the minister of finance and eventually to the post of minister of fisheries.

On retiring from the political arena Mr. Mayhew was appointed — at the age of 72 — Canada's ambassador to Japan.

80 THIS MONTH

Celebrating his 86th birthday this month Mr. Mayhew will be the seventh man in city history to be honored with the freedom of the city.

Remembered politically for many things, Mr. Mayhew lists the framing of the world famous Colombo Plan as one of the highlights of his political career.

He was a member of the original team which framed the blueprint for the plan which has poured millions of dollars in aid to Far Eastern countries.

SHIP MOVEMENTS

DEPT. OF TRANSPORT

Sir James Douglas sailed this morning for Carmanah and Pachena; Racer in Sandheads patrol area; Stonetown on Station Papa; in port: Camsell, Estevan, Beady, St. Catharines and Vancouver.

All HMC ships in port except McKenzie, due in Friday morning.

Pipefitters Seek 12.5%; 35-Hour Week

Pipefitters at Victoria's two main shipyards are seeking a 12.5 per cent wage increase in each of two years and a 35-hour work week in current negotiations, a union spokesman said today.

The wage increase sought is just over 70 cents an hour on the present rate of $3.10. Other proposals include increases in annual vacation and statutory holiday day. The pipefitters now have a 40-hour week.

For the first time, the 22 union locals in three yards — Burrard in Vancouver and Victoria Machinery Depot and Yarrows here — are not bargaining together.

Five locals involving three unions are bargaining separately this time including the Victoria pipefitters.

The other 17 locals representing the majority of workers are bargaining together through the Joint Shipyard Conference.

MEETING TODAY

The joint conference unions applied for a conciliation officer three weeks ago and the first meeting with the officer was scheduled for today.

The separate bargaining move stems from a dispute two years ago after all unions except one returned to work at the end of the 11-week strike.

Vancouver pipefitters held out for an extra 10 cents to match the higher rate paid to electricians and eventually won it.

HIGHER FOOD PRICES PREDICTED

City Truckers Knock Trailer Restrictions

Drop System Curb By Ferry Authority

By AB KENT
Times Business Writer

New freight trailer restrictions on British Columbia Ferries will lead to higher food prices for Vancouver Islanders, truckers predicted today.

Several shippers — who wished to remain anonymous — told the Times they feared higher freight rates will result from restrictions placed on the economical "drop trailer" system.

They were asked to comment on reports they are getting increasing pressure from the ferry authority.

"Increased freight rates are bound to lead to higher costs of consumer goods," said one. "Food is one of the items on which an immediate impact would be felt."

The ferry system recently reduced to a small quota the number of drop trailers freight firms are permitted to put aboard Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen ferries.

Some truckers feel the ferry authority is forcing them to ship truck and trailer together at a much higher cost. But Monty Aldous, ferry manager, denies this.

Savings in Fare, Wages, Space

The drop trailer is what has made B.C. Ferries the economical answer to overnight freight service from the Mainland.

Trucks drive the standard 40-foot trailers aboard ships at Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen terminals, unhitch and return to their point of origin, permitting the trailers to be picked up at the opposite terminal by other trucks.

The saving occurs in ferry charges and driver wages, besides cutting down on ferry space. Three additional automobiles can be carried for every two drop trailers that leave their trucks behind.

Standard charge for a drop trailer is $35, but when trucks are attached a different schedule of rates applies, based on weight and truck capacity.

The effect is an escalation of rates that could as much as double the cost of sending a truck-trailer unit by B.C. Ferries, plus the extra wages of a driver.

One trucker complained bitterly:

"When the government started the ferry service they went after the truckers ... They sent a representative around to us to beg us to use the new service. At that time we weren't using it because the rates were too high, but we negotiated with them."

Now, after the trucking firms have helped the ferry service over lean times, the authority wants to restrict the trucks, he said.

Never Catered to Freight Trucks

The ferry authority manager said it had never been policy to cater to freight trucks.

The authority was set up to handle passenger and private auto traffic, he said.

There is enough of this traffic without freight trucks, Mr. Aldous said.

He said the new restrictions were to cut down on the number of drop-trailers to make "more room for the motorist and avoid delays caused by trailer loadings.

"It was a time factor more than a money factor — and the inconvenience to the public," Mr. Aldous said.

Several shippers see the end of drop-trailers by the end of the year, or before the next summer sailing schedule takes effect.

The recently begun CPR freight ferry service is picking up more business as trailers are squeezed off the government service.

Asked whether he felt that was the intended effect, a shipper said:

"It is a mystery to me and many others in the industry just what is afoot. I was all for fighting it, but the die is cast."

Restrictions at Prime Times

A big stumbling block in the cross-Gulf service is the prime time at which restrictions are most felt.

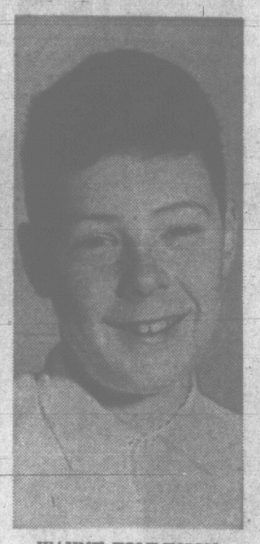

To provide overnight service, carriers must collect and load shipments most of the day and rely on late afternoon and evening ferry trips when quotas are imposed.

The CPR service is on a one-a-day basis, making it hard for shippers to conform.

So far the ferry authority has turned a deaf ear to the suggestion that one or two ferries a day be scheduled for freight only.

This alternative would satisfy the shippers and provide high revenue for the authority because only a skeleton crew, no dining room staff, no stewards, pursers or other non-essentials would be required.

Mr. Aldous said peak traffic times would still be hard to predict and delays would result.

CAR VICTIM'S WALLET FOUND BY YOUNGSTER

If you see this boy's picture in the paper again it will probably be the day he does something well, or wonderful or wise.

Wayne Tomlinson, 12, of 2855 Rockwell, was on his way to play cornet in the Salvation Army band Tuesday when he found a wallet with $68 in bills in it.

He saw by a card in the wallet that it belonged to a "retired lady" and took it straight to city police station.

The woman, Mrs. E. Gillingwater, is in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after being struck by a car Tuesday near where Wayne found the wallet.

Pair Charged After Four Cars, Power Pole Struck

A car driven amok through city streets hit four other cars and sideswiped a power pole in the space of four minutes Tuesday afternoon.

Shortly after 1 p.m. city police received calls that a wildly-driven vehicle had crashed into two cars going west on Bay near Fernwood.

Retreating from those collisions, the car hit a parked vehicle and a power pole.

Two minutes earlier it was reported to Saanich police the same car collided with another at Richmond and Emerson.

TWO FLED

Two men were seen leaving the car.

Later Tuesday, Robert McRae, 18, of Vancouver and James Erdman, 1156 May St. were charged by police.

McRae appeared in central court today and pleaded not guilty to two charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident, two charges of being a minor without insurance, a careless driving charge and a charge of assaulting a police officer.

Erdman pleaded not guilty to charges of being intoxicated in a public place and assaulting a police officer.

McRae was remanded on $250 bail to Monday, and Erdman on $200 bail for a week.

Also shortly after noon Tuesday a 10-year-old cyclist suffered a dislocated knee when he collided with a car.

Kevin Kelly, 870 Pembroke, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital and released.

Police said the boy was riding east on Pembroke and was about to turn on to Vancouver when he collided with a car driven by Gerard Cockburn, 1335 Pembroke.

The Cockburn car hit a road sign then crossed the front lawn at 2109 Vancouver coming to rest near the front steps.

Damage to the car was estimated at $300.

HEAD CUTS

A two-car collision at Wildwood and Ross sent two men to Jubilee Hospital for treatment of head cuts.

A car driven by Harvey Johnson, 1738 Ross met the car of Allan Robinson of Chemainus at the intersection. Damage was slight.

Mrs. E. Gillingwater, 2885 Murray Drive, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with arm injuries about 6 p.m. after she was in collision with a car while walking in the 2900 block Admirals.

Saanich police said the car was driven by Mrs. Charlotte Gillies, 2831 Murray Drive.

A Colwood area man is in Jubilee Hospital with severe face cuts following an accident Tuesday in which driver of car involved was his 14-year-old son.

Melvin Nohr, R.R. 6, was a passenger in a car which struck a stump on the Thetis Lake Road.

Colwood RCMP said the lad, driving the car lost control while adjusting a radio dial. Damage to the car was estimated at $200.

$245,000 Sewer Plan Proposed

Saanich council will be asked at its next meeting to submit a sewer extension bylaw to ratepayers in the North Shelbourne area near Mount Douglas Park.

Involved are 265 homes in the area which takes in Kenmore, Shelbourne from Feltham to north of Kenmore and Cedarglen.

Total cost of the proposed scheme, which will need a 60 per cent or more vote to pass when it is placed before ratepayers, is $245,000.

Average cost to each property is $132 a year with payments spread over 20 years.

$46 MORE

About 90 homes serviced by the Montclaire sewage treatment plant would pay an average $46 plus a $23 charge they are already paying. The treatment plant would be discontinued and become part of the sanitary system with discharge through the Gordon Head outfall.

Municipal engineer Neville Life said the date for a vote will be decided by council. The planned sewers must also receive the routine approval of the health and municipal affairs departments.

The public works committee has recommended council approve preparations for a bylaw.

More Policemen Requested For Peninsula

Sidney will request the attorney-general's department to expand its police protection service for the north end of the Saanich Peninsula.

Village chairman Arthur Freeman at a council meeting Tuesday said the present RCMP force of four men, jointly serving North Saanich and Sidney, is inadequate.

He advocated the force be raised to nine men.

Ask The Times

Q. How are bio-degradable detergents less noxious to our waterways than regular detergents? Can you buy them here? Do they do the job as well as ordinary detergents? J.R.S.

A. A B.C. Pollution Control engineer advises that while bio-degradable detergents are by no means "a panacea" for pollution of water by detergents, they break down more readily and more fully under waste treatment than ordinary detergents, or about 40 per cent breakdown to 5 per cent by the others. Bio-degradable detergents are now on sale in B.C. stores and are well-marked as such. Their performance is "on a par" with that of regular detergents.

THEY KNOW ARCHIE AT RED CROSS HEADQUARTERS

He's a Blue-Blood Among Donors

By BOB DONAHUE

Archie Mooradian weighs "200 and plenty" and stands five foot four inches tall.

His nose barely reaches the top of the sandwich bar he operates in a downtown hotel and his rotundity has long been legendary in beer parlour circles.

But for some Archie Mooradian, son of an Armenian immigrant, stands tall.

Ask the people down at Red Cross House.

They will pull out his card and it will show that Albert Mooradian (his proper name) has donated more than 80 pints of blood since 1943 when the blood donor service was instituted in Canada.

For it was in that year one day in a military hospital in Kingston, Ont., that this corpulent, cheerful man saw the miracle of live-saving with donated blood.

"That day," he says," they brought in this little boy, about 10 years old, who was badly injured.

"We looked at him and we thought 'too bad.' Then the doctors took him away.

"And later we learned that while they were operating on him that blood was needed. I was one of many donors.

"They gave him eight pints and he lived."

This Thursday, after breakfast, Archie Mooradian will make his 87th donation of a pint of blood and he will start work at 11 a.m. "feeling better."

Feeling better, he says, not only in the heart, but physically.

"Its the same as a car runs better with a change of oil. I just feel better. And then there was that boy in 1943," says Archie Mooradian, a fat man who every three months gives his most precious gift.

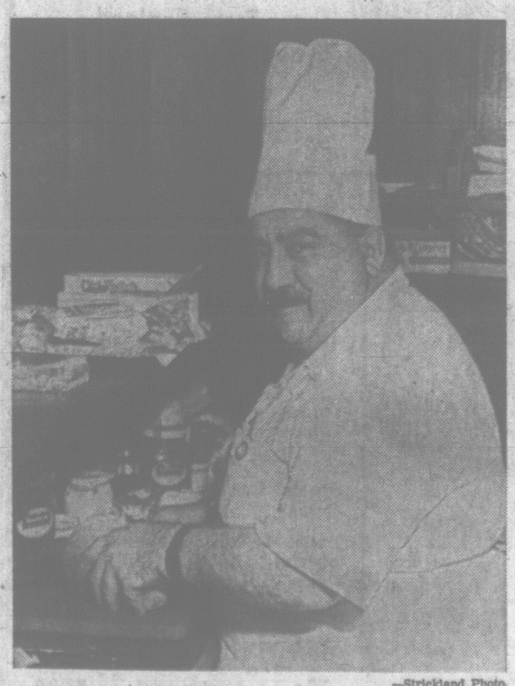

His blood donor card reads like a travel guide.

The neat, black type tells that he has donated blood everywhere from here to New Brunswick, from Seattle to New York and from Nome to Acapulco.

"It was just that I eventually woke up to the fact that it was so easy. I can do it in the morning and its nothing.

"Sometime when times were bad (there have been a few") I've felt like selling it. But then it goes back to 43.

"Funny thing. I wonder why other people give blood."

HE FEELS BETTER physically and mentally after giving blood, says 87-pint man Archie Mooradian.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Lowman

Today let me give you three combination exercises — those which are corrective to more than one figure defect.

1. Lie on your back with feet together and legs straight, arms resting on the floor at your sides. Lift both legs up as far as you can confortably. Separate your legs while still holding them up. Bring the legs together and slowly lower them to the floor. Keep the knees stiff throughout this exercise. Lift legs, separate them, bring them together and lower them to the floor.

This exercise is slimming to the abdomen and firming to the inner and outer thighline.

2. Stand with your left side toward the wall and place your left hand on the wall for balance. Now swing your right leg forward with a stiff knee. At the same time swing your right arm backward with a straight elbow. Now swing the right leg backward as you swing the right arms forward and up. Reach as far upward as you can with your arm so that you feel the pull. Continue with a smooth swing, the leg and arm moving in opposite directions. Do the same thing with your left leg and arm.

This is firming to the abdomen and hips and slimming to fatty deposits under and back of the arm.

3. Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms resting at your sides. Bend both knees up close to your abdomen. Raise your head at the same time and try to touch your knees with your nose or come as close as you can. Return head and legs to the floor. Continue, slowly.

This is a wonderful exercise for the abdomen and the neckline.

Just a few combination exercises done a few times a day will beautify the figure.

If you would like to have my combination exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for them. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Truscott Defence Refuted

OTTAWA (CP) — The Crown produced two expert pathogists today, one from London and one from New York, who told the Supreme Court of Canada they believe 12-year-old Lynne Harper was sexually assaulted and strangled at the wooded spot where her body was found June 11, 1959.

Professor Keith Simpson, an Oxford lecturer and consultant to Scotland Yard, and Dr. Milton Helpern, chief medical examiner for New York City, based their opinions on an examination of photos and medical evidence at the trial of Steven Truscott, convicted of the slaying.

"There is nothing inconsistent in the evidence with death having taken place where this girl lay," Prof. Simpson said.

SAY BODY MOVED

The defence has produced experts who contend the Harper girl was attacked and slain elsewhere, then dragged to the spot where an RCAF search party found her near Clinton, Ont.

Dr. Helpern said: "I would say from the pictures of the body and the condition of the body that death occurred where the body was found."

He based this view on the presence of the girl's clothing at the scene and marks on her body that could be attributed to the rough ground. It was unlikely in a homicide that clothing would be picked up by the killer and carried to another spot if the body was moved by him.

Dr. Helpern also supported the Crown contention that stomach contents indicated death occurred within two hours after the girl's last meal.

"In my opinion, from the amount of food in the stomach, the fact that the body was of a healthy and energetic girl and that death was rapid . . . I would conclude that death occurred not more than two hours after the food was ingested," he said.

He added: "I think that is the rule in these cases."

A string of defence experts have attacked the two-hour theory and advanced arguments that death could have occurred several hours later—at a time when the Truscott boy was in his home.

DISAGREES ABOUT BODY

Questioned by Donald Scott, Welland Crown attorney who is special prosector at the hearing, Prof. Simpson also disagreed with earlier defence evidence that the girl's body had lain on its left side for some time after death and later was placed on its back, the position in which it was found by an RCAF search party.

He said there was "a very simple explanation" of the discoloration along the left side of the body which defence experts had interpreted as indicating the position after death.

He said the marks could have been caused by movement of the body after it was discovered and during the process of examination and of photography.

The London pathologist, a lecturer at Oxford and a veteran of more than 100,000 autopsies in 31 years, also challenged defence evidence that the girl could not have been sexually attacked where the body was found.

Defence experts had testified that the absence of semen in the immediate area of the body showed the attack had occurred elsewhere.

Prof. Simpson said he had

FIREMAN keeps watch on flames that still burned this morning, seven hours after blaze did $30,000 damage to barn, animals and hay at Colquitz Prison Farm on Wilkinson Road. Firemen said the flames were impossible to extinguish and they concentrated on keeping it from spreading.

Oil, Gas Fever May Hit Island

60,000 Acres Offered

Drilling fever may hit the Maple Bay - Ladysmith areas as well as some adjoining islands as the provincial government offers almost 60,000 acres of Crown reserves for oil and natural gas exploration.

Robert Moss, deputy oil and natural gas commissioner, today said the reserved areas to be auctioned are "just north of this Maple Bay occurrence."

He was referring to last week's discovery by realtor Nat Staples of a flammable liquid in the bottom of a drainage ditch on his land which has aroused interest of two oil companies who sent investigators out from Alberta. (See story Page 25.)

Three exploration permits for parcels totalling 59,802 shoreline acres ranging from Maple Bay to Ladysmith and portions of Gabriola, Valdes, Thetis, Pylander, Galiano, Reid, Hall, Secretary and Salt Spring Islands are included in the auction list.

58 PARCELS

The list, totalling 640,460 acres in 58 parcels, will go up for sale Nov. 23 in the mines and petroleum resources department's third offering this year.

About 75 per cent of the Vancouver Island-Gulf Islands parcels is under water, Mr. Moss said.

"Our offering of these parcels is not in any way connected with (Mr. Staples') discovery," he said. "I want to make that clear.

"Our list was made and published at least two weeks ago while his discovery came only last week. It's just a coincidence."

Mr. Moss said it was difficult to assess how interested the oil industry was in any given area until "the money is laid on the line," because most companies try to avoid tipping their hands.

ARSON CHARGE LAID

Fire Levels Prison Barn

Lorne Patrick Mitchell, a 38-year-old laborer, this afternoon pleaded guilty to setting fire to a barn at Colquitz Prison Farm.

Mitchell, who lives at 828 Courtney, set the fire because he had a grudge against the jail, Detective-Sergeant Robin Stewart told the court.

Mitchell was remanded to Oct. 20 for presentence report. A psychiatric examination will be carried out.

Saanich police have charged a 38-year-old man with arson in connection with a $50,000 blaze early today at Colquitz Prison Farm on Wilkinson Road.

Detective-Sergeant Robin Stewart said a suspect was questioned by detectives at the scene of the fire shortly after it was discovered at 1 this morning.

The man was questioned later at Saanich police station and formally charged around 10 o'clock. He was to appear in magistrate's court this afternoon.

44 PIGS KILLED

The fire killed 44 pedigreed pigs, consumed 200 tons of hay, and destroyed two barns. Damage is estimated to be at least $30,000.

The barn is about two blocks from the main jail.

The presence of the hay in the barn did not give firemen a chance. The hay was still burning at 8 this morning, seven hours after the fire was discovered.

Fire Chief Joseph Sutherland said his men were also hampered by having to lay 1,700 feet of hose to bring water to the fire.

By the time firemen arrived on the scene, on the prison property at the end of Roy Road, a large barn and an attached smaller barn were both "really going," according to Chief Sutherland.

The pigs were housed in the big barn. All were roasted alive with the exception of one sow that was saved.

Firemen brought in a bulldozer to knock down the adjacent barn and set up a fire break to keep the blaze from spreading to other farm buildings.

Ex Parte Injunctions Attacked by Liberals

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal policy conference today laid down a set of labor principles that included a call for the elimination of the ex parte injunction, a sore point with unions.

This form of injunction is granted by a judge to one party in a dispute without hearing the other side of the story. Unions object to its use by employers to limit picketing and halt strikes.

Such disputes, the policy said, should be shunted to a special government board to handle, rather than be subject to ex parte injunctions.

A task force was established to review labor law also was urged to consider legal methods to allow continuous collective bargaining during the life of a labor contract.

This was seen as a reflection of the Freedman report on railway run-throughs that recommended management negotiate technological charge during the life of a contract with the unions.

The industrial relations program, largely the work of John Turner, minister without portfolio, said government must provide protection for people disrupted by technological change and automation.

It said federal manpower policy objectives should include adult retraining and training and employer obligations to provide advance notice of plant shutdown or relocation.

Workers displaced through new technology should get relocation expenses. Consideration should be given to a royal commission on the status of women.

The program was rammed through by weary delegates in a post-midnight session, amid a number of complaints that labor was getting the short end of the stick at the three-day convention.

Bryce Mackasey, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, said he was ashamed the convention had devoted so little time to labor, "the backbone of the Liberal party."

McILRAITH
. . . discussion muted

Fear Leaks To Press

OTTAWA (CP) — Discussion of government policy in the Liberal caucus is muted becaue of a fear of leaks to the press, George McIlraith, government leader in the Commons, said today.

MPs do not feel free to express their full views on policy, Mr. McIlraith told a workshop discussion on Parliament at the party's national policy conference.

Cabinet ministers did not disclose fully the problems they face.

The workshop passed a resolution for a later full session of the conference urging that caucus proceedings remain "strictly secret so that the fullest type of disclosure of government policy can be made to caucus and thus give individual members the greatest possible influence in decision-making."

Jealousies Threaten Split In Ky Cabinet

SAIGON (CP)—Regional jealousies flared in Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's cabinet today, threatening a split in the government just two weeks before Ky is to attend a summit conference at Manila.

Several ministers were reported to have resigned or on the verge of doing so.

The Associated Press said five civilian ministers, disgruntled at what they contend is anti-southern manoeuvring by government leaders from the northern provinces, sent a letter to Chief of State Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu saying they were on the verge of resigning, informed sources said.

Reuters news agency reported that usually well - informed sources in Saigon said seven cabinet members submitted their resignation.

Ky refused to accept the resignations of the seven ministers, all civilians, the sources said. Ky had met the seven ministers several times, Reuters said, and had appealed to them to stay in the cabinet for the sake of government unity.

Informed sources said the government crisis appeared timed to exert maximum political leverage on Ky since leaders of the military junta want to present a solid front of stable government in Manila.

McNamara Tours Viet Battle Sectors

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara toured battle sectors of South Viet Nam today as 4,000 fresh U.S. troops arrived in the country.

The troops, the last contingent of the 4th Infantry Division, brought the American force in Viet Nam to 325,000 men.

PROBERS URGE OTTAWA — TO END CRITICISM

'Lift Veil of Secrecy on Campaign War Chests'

OTTAWA (CP) — The multi-million dollar campaign war chests of the federal political parties will be open to public view if the government adopts a mammoth election expenses report made public Tuesday.

The committee report, two years in preparation, recommends creation of an impartial body to check and recheck the parties' revenues and spending.

Candidates would be required to submit sworn statements detailing the names of donors and the amounts, while national parties would file statements about the totals received from business and other groups.

A proposed registrar of election and political finance would be empowered to investigate and launch court actions leading to stiff fines or imprisonment and ejection from Parliament for persons convicted of violations.

The committee, headed by Montreal lawyer Alphonse Barbeau with representation from three federal parties, was appointed in 1964 in response to criticism about present methods of financing campaigns.

The report was tabled in the Commons by State Secretary Judy LaMarsh.

At present the public learns little about the sources for the millions — the committee estimated the 1965 election cost the five federal parties about $16,000,000—that is raised for the country-wide campaigns.

And the history books are dotted with scandals where political contributions amounted to bribes for government favors.

The committee also recommends partial subsidization of candidates, expenses through grants, mailing privileges and more free-time broadcasting.

And further savings are aimed at in a recommendation to limit the most expensive part of campaigning — the purchase of advertising space and time—to the final four weeks of a campaign.

Central to the report is a recommendation that the existence of political parties be legally recognized by requiring them to register with the new registrar's office and to designate persons responsible for their financial affairs.

The committee recommends that the "doctrine of agency" be used so that an agent for a candidate or party is fully aware of all financial transactions and is responsible for their legality.

THIS WORLD OF OURS

People and Things

NAKINA, Ont.—Picture in these days of soaring food prices a trackside supermarket with free meat for all.

Women wading waist-deep in wieners. Indians barbecuing a hind-quarter of beef while they picked out various other items. Sides of beef for the taking. Hundreds and hundreds of pounds of lunch meats and sausages and turkeys and hams as well.

It all came about, and in time for Thanksgiving dinner, as a result of a freight train derailment. Thirty-two cars went off the tracks Sept. 30 at Penequani, 55 miles west of here, and most of them were loaded with meat.

The CNR decided to destroy the meat because some of it was damaged. But before it was scheduled for burial in a nearby gravel pit, the railway told townspeople they could come and get it—all they wanted.

The result was the greatest Thanksgiving in the 43-year history of this northwestern Ontario railroading community, 200 miles north of Port Arthur.

Soon storage space had run out. In less than 24 hours the nearest community, Geraldton, had sold all its deep freezers and more were ordered from Winnipeg and Port Arthur.

"We've got so much meat now that we'll have to stuff turkeys with cooked ham," said one resident.

DETROIT—Leapin' Lena was buried in 1926 under an apple tree in Perry Andrew's backyard.

She was 15 at the time, and buried because no one would promise Andrews to treat her in the manner to which she was accustomed.

Leapin' Lena was a Model-T Ford.

Bill Morris, Andrews' son-in-law, helped with the funeral:

"The old man wanted to give me Lena just after I married his daughter. But I wanted to remodel her and make her sporty. He said he'd rather bury Lena than see her ruined."

So he did.

Now Morris is getting heady to exhume her.

Harvey Verstreet of the Detroit Historical Museum wants to dig Lena up and put her on display, rust permitting.

BILLINGHAM, Eng.—Officials of Britain's nationalized railways breathed a sigh of relief today after workmen discovered a missing refrigerated box car carrying £15,000 ($45,000) worth of coins.

The box car, normally used for carrying meat, was being used under a secret cover plan for transporting currency around Britain, where rail and banking officials have become extra-security conscious since the Great Train Robbery of 1963.

The box car was loaded with bags of silver coins three days ago and coupled to a freight train for a 40-mile trip from a bank in Sheffield to one in Bradford, in the north of England.

It then went astray—possibly because someone had slapped an "empty" label on the side of the car. It eventually was shunted onto a factory siding where workmen found it.

PATERSON, N.J. — Patients at the Mount Carmel Guild Social Service Centre, a rehabilitation hospital for alcoholics and drug addicts, from now on will go to the corner of Straight and Narrow Streets for treatment.

Narrow Street was called Cedar Street until the Paterson board of public works agreed to change its name Tuesday.

The change was asked by Msgr. William Wall, director of the centre, who wanted to remind patients to stay on the straight and narrow road to rehabilitation.

Water Study Urged Before Any Export

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada should refuse to export water to the United States until it completes an assessment of its own needs, delegates to a national Liberal party convention workshop decided Tuesday.

The recommendation was one of several passed by the workshop on resources. Others called for federal control over water pollution, a tightening of offshore fishing regulations and definition of policy for Northern Canada.

Delegates were divided on water export with one faction seeking to retain all Canada's water resources and another pressing for export.

Bruce Howard of the Penticton area, said Canada does not have a water surplus.

Joseph Coyle of Montreal said the export of water would improve Canada's economic position.

WANT ADVISORY BOARD

The 60 delegates also endorsed a recommendation that a joint federal-provincial advisory board be established to advise on water pollution control, fisheries and irrigation.

A recommendation favoring a national and international power grid was watered down to ask the government to stimulate the development of long-distance transmission lines.

Maritime delegates favored national and international power grids as a means of using the abundant supplies of coal in sections of the Maritime Provinces.

Delegates endorsed export of Canadian oil to expand production and improve the Canadian economy. They also called for an oil pipeline from Alberta to Montreal.

Maritime and British Columbia delegates won approval for a resolution asking that Canada's newly-adopted 12-mile fishing limit be strictly enforced, providing exclusive rights within this area to Canadians.

. . . CAMPAIGN EXPENSES

nancial reports from parties and candidates, the new registrar's office would receive statements from broadcasters and publishers about their revenues to enable a double check.

Candidates would have to send the registrar, within 30 days of an election, a sworn report giving the name and address of each donor and the amount of money.

They would have to submit vouchers for all expenditures above $10 along with the name and address of recipients. The goods or services received for the expenditures would have to be described.

National parties would be required to report within 60 days of an election on the total amount of money received from private individuals, corporations, trade unions and associations and foreign sources, although they would not be required to name the individual donors.

WOULD SHOW SPENDING

Parties would also file a statement of spending showing how much was given to provincial organizations and candidates and the amount spent on advertising, leaders' travelling and other transportation costs, salaries and services.

Party leaders and other candidates and their agents would be subject to stiff penalties if the laws were infringed.

In all cases, convictions would throw them out of Parliament and bar them from running for seven years. When a party leader or his agent was convicted of breaching the act, the party or association would be subject to a fine of from $5,000 to $50,000.

The registrar would be empowered to enter the offices of parties to audit books.

The size or source of campaign contributions would not be restricted, but expenditures would.

A candidate would be allowed to spend only 10 cents per riding voter on print or broadcasting advertising and no other groups would be allowed to buy space or time for him.

PROHIBIT PAYMENTS

Payments to agent, scrutineers or persons driving voters to the polls would be prohibited and subject to severe penalties.

Both the CBC and private broadcasting would be required to provide six hours of free time to be allocated among the parties, with the registrar's office paying for 50 per cent of this time used in private broadcasting.

Parties would be prohibited from buying or using any additional time on radio or television.

Broadcasters and publishers would be prohibited from charging other than standard rates for political advertising during a campaign.

Public subsidies for candidates would take two forms:

—A candidate obtaining at least 15 per cent of the total vote would receive after the election two cents for every elector in the riding toward paying proven expenses in buying advertising space or time.

—Every candidate would be reimbursed for the postage costs of mailing one item of literature to every elector in his riding, providing the item weighed no more than two ounces for householder unaddressed mail or one ounce for first class letter mail.

To further aid the local candidate, the committee recommended that radio and television stations be encouraged to provide free time on an equitable basis among the candidates.

And it recommended a personal income tax credit for donations up to $300 by individuals to a candidate in an election year or to a party in any year.

The report says a 50-per-cent credit should be granted for $1-$20 contributions, 40 per cent for $21-$100 donations and 30 per cent for $101-$300 donations. clude a prohibition against pub-

Other recommendations in lishing the results of public opinion polls about probable election results during a campaign and a change in the minimum votes a candidate must obtain to have his $200 election deposit returned.

The committee said that instead of having to receive half the votes of the winning candidate to get his money back, the candidate should only have to poll 12½ per cent of the votes cast in his riding.

Political affiliations would be written beside the candidates names on ballots and a new "you-vote-at" card would be sent to all voters. This would replace the mailing of preliminary lists of electors now sent only to urban voters.

Besides Mr. Barbeau, the committee was composed of M. J. Coldwell, former national leader of the CCF party, Gordon F. Dryden, secretary-treasurer of the Liberal Federation of Canada, Arthur R. Smith, former Conservative MP for Calgary South and Dr. Norman Ward, political science professor at the University of Saskatchewan.

Mental Test Ordered

A Sidney man who faces three charges of attempted murder was committed today to the River View provincial mental hospital at Essondale for observation.

Kenneth Wayne Ingram, 25-year-old laborer of 1986 John Road, Sidney, was described in Victoria magistrate's court as "seriously disturbed mentally."

He was arrested following a shooting affray in Sidney RCMP office early Sunday.

Magistrate D. G. Ashby directed that Ingram's trial should stand over until Nov. 10.

Exponent Of LSD Free Again

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Timothy Leary is free on his own recognizance following his arrest on a charge of violating a customs regulation on a trip to Canada.

Federal officers arrested him Tuesday at La Guardia Airport. They said he went to Canada without notifying customs that he had a narcotics conviction, a notification required by federal law.

Leary appeared on a television show in Toronto Monday night.

The 45-year-old former Harvard lecturer is free on $2,500 bail while appealing a federal conviction in Texas for possession of untaxed marijuana. He was sentenced to 30 years in prison and a $30,000 fine.

Leary recently announced he is founding what he calls a new "religion" based on the use of LSD and other hallucinatory drugs as "sacraments." However, he said he will not advocate use of the drugs until he obtains a court order making them legal for religious purposes.

When he was arraigned before U.S. commissioner Max Schiffman in Brooklyn on the customs violation he gave Millbrook, N.Y., as his address.

Schiffman said Leary could continue his travels for lectures and appearances, provided he notifies the U.S. attorney's office of his plans.

handled many cases involving rape before death. In some of them, seminal fluid had been located around the body. But in many others it was absent.

COULD BE OTHERWISE

"I would certainly not regard absence as evidence that sexual intercourse did not take place," he told Mr. Scott.

Referring to marks on the body shown in photographs, he said "collectively, they are very much like the kind of marks I would expect to see if the body were pressed or held down on this type of undergrowth." This would be particularly true of a body in which there was movement.

The defence experts had interpreted the marks as proof the body had been dragged to the spot after death.

Prof. Simpson said he was surprised in the manner that Dr. Charles Petty of Baltimore had based his findings on the presence of rigor mortis in the girl's body.

WERE WORTHLESS

He said the arched back, one of the symptoms used by Dr. Petty, was normal in both live and dead bodies and was of no value in determining the presence or the degree of rigor mortis. The position of one finger of the girl's hand probably was caused by it being held for a police photograph and also was of no help in establishing rigor mortis.

He repeated that he would have come to the same conclusions as had Crown doctors who performed the autopsy — that the girl died between 7 p.m. and 7:45 p.m. June 9, 1959.

He also said that the changes after death observed in the body were consistent with the time factor. Defence doctors have said the changes indicated a time of death several hours after that estimated by the Crown.

Prof. Simpson also upheld the opinion of Crown doctors that wounds on Truscott's penis could have been the result of forcible sexual intercourse.

He said that after hearing Truscott's own evidence and reading the trial evidence he concluded that Truscott's penis, already sore, could have been further injured in a sexual assault.

Prof. Simpson was continuing testimony he began Tuesday when he said he believed there was a "very complete and conscientious investigation" by medical and police officers at the time the crime was discovered.

He described as "most credible" the work of Dr. J. L. Penistan, a local pathologist who performed the autopsy on the Harper girl's body. Dr. Penistan formed an opinion from stomach contents that the girl had died within two hours of her last known meal at 5:45 p.m. the day she was last seen alive, then narrowed it to between 7 and 7:45 p.m.

Former 'Exec' Takes Command Of HMCS Fraser

New captain of the recently converted helicopter-destroyer, HMCS Fraser, will be Cmdr. John F. Watson, of Victoria.

Cmdr. Watson was the Fraser's executive officer from 1962 to 1964.

The Fraser will operate from Halifax along with her six sister ships following her commissioning Saturday.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

SYNOPSIS — A drying trend that has produced extensive clearing in northern districts of B.C. should become evident over Vancouver Island and the lower mainland this afternoon. The cloud cover and shower activity in the southern interior, however, is not expected to break up until tonight. Meantime, a fresh disturbance presently far out to sea will bring rain and strong winds to the north coast early on Thursday, and clouds from this system will spread into the central interior late in the day. Elsewhere in B.C. mainly sunny weather is in store for Thursday.
